

Stanfield Takes Very Dim View

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield objected Wednesday to being left out of the constitutional conference but, he said, "I've been kept out of better places than that."

Stanfield said he did not object to the talks being held in private but felt leaders of the opposition parties should have been allowed in as observers.

Stanfield was not optimistic about the possibilities of progress in the talks because of deterioration of financial relations between the provinces and Ottawa.

Ottawa's Secret Parley Friendly Canada Safe—Bennett

OTTAWA (CP) — Secrecy was still the watchword, but Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers left the opening session of the federal-provincial constitutional conference Wednesday obviously satisfied with their progress in the delicate field of spending powers and tax sharing.

"There was progress in mutual education," said the smiling prime minister as he left the all-day session in Ottawa's old Union Station building.

"A very friendly conference and Canada is safe," said Premier Bennett of British Columbia.

"I am just delighted," said Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan. "Now we're down to gut issues."

"I am very happy with the discussions to date," said Premier John Roberts of Ontario. But he would go no further. "It is the rules of the game that there should be no comment."

Trudeau and the premiers agreed on the secrecy aspect prior to the conference. It was reported to have been strongly re-emphasized by the prime minister when they gathered around the huge felt-covered table Wednesday.

It was in sharp contrast to the February constitutional conference here when all the discussions were televised live and reporters were allowed to sit in on the meetings.

It was reliably reported

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's armed forces may be trimmed to a strength of roughly 85,000 during the next three years from the present 98,000, according to informed defence department sources.

'Nonsense'

General Didn't Say It

General Jean Allard, chief of the Canadian general staff, has categorically denied statements attributed to him to the effect that current plans for the reduction of the armed forces are ill-timed and unwise.

The story of the general's criticism, printed in the Toronto Telegram on Tuesday, brought a response from the office of Defence Minister Leo Cadieux Wednesday, that "it is a piece of nonsense."

Author of the Telegram's article is Douglas Stuebing, who based it on an interview he had with Allard while the chief of staff was visiting the Canadian United Nations contingent on Cyprus on May 29.

Calgary's June Snow Brings Record Low

CALGARY (CP) — A record low of 31 degrees was set here Wednesday afternoon as snow fell across the city for about three hours.

The light fall combined with rain to give total precipitation of about .20 inches, a weather office spokesman said.

Stocks Skidding

Bank Jump 'Deplorable'

TORONTO (CP) — "Deplorable but obviously necessary" was how R. N. Steiner, Toronto Stock Exchange chairman, Wednesday described the increase in bank lending rates which gave the exchange the largest single-day drop in its history.

All the major Canadian chartered banks increased their prime lending rates to an unprecedented 8 per cent Wednesday, in the wake of a rise in the Bank of Canada's rate to 7½ per cent.

The Toronto-Dominion Bank, which led the upward spiral with an announcement last week that it would raise its rate to 7½ per cent — ¼ per cent above the other banks' rates — jumped again to 8½ per cent.

The financial situation was a point of much discussion in the House of Commons where New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas threw his party's support behind the Conservatives in an non-confidence motion scoring the government for inability to curb inflation, "while increasing the hardship on the unemployed, the poor, pensioners, farmers and other victims of the just society."

The vote is scheduled on the Conservative motion at the end of tonight's sitting.

Douglas berated Finance Minister Edgar Benson for using unemployment as a weapon to cool off the economy in the fight against inflation.

Government policies had produced both rising prices and unemployment, a contradiction in terms of modern economics.

"Only a government of geniuses could get both," said Douglas.

Benson, on the other hand, defended the actions of the chartered banks and praised one of them for increasing the interest it pays to depositors. He said he is pleased that the Bank of Montreal was increasing interest paid, retroactive to June 1. It will pay 6½ per cent on term deposits, and 3½ per cent on chequable deposits.

Other banks have followed suit. The Toronto-Dominion said it would pay 6½ per cent instead of 5½ per cent on non-

Chicken Best Bet In July Shopping

OTTAWA (CP) — Housewives can expect no reduction in the present high beef prices during July, the agriculture department reported Wednesday in its monthly food outlook.

Pork prices, too, may increase and turkey prices will probably go up slightly. Broiler chickens will be plentiful at relatively low prices.

Poor Reward

Cheques Keep Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Put a little fun in your life. Try being poor.

That could be a slogan for a 36-year-old welfare recipient who says if the government ever starts a war on poverty, he will fight "on the other side."

Norman Browne, a high school graduate who lives on a maximum of $25 a week and says poverty is a ball, outlined his philosophy in a story he wrote in The Star Wednesday.

"Only the very rich and the very poor have complete freedom," he says.

"The very rich collect dividend cheques from stocks and bonds. The very poor collect cheques from welfare or unemployment insurance. It's easier to be poor and I think a lot more fun."

"I live on a maximum of 25 a week regardless of my income. This insures that I stay poor and thus safeguard my freedom and independence."

He says he pays $15 a week for a room and kitchen, $2 for tobacco and extras and $8 for food.

Browne takes occasional jobs. Browne says his earned income for 1967 was about $500, and last year it rose $1,400. But he describes the idea of a guaranteed annual income as unrealistic and unworkable.

No Major Leaders Invited

Investiture of Charles Essentially Domestic

LONDON (CP) — Canada will be officially represented at the investiture of Prince Charles on July 1 by her high commissioner in London, Charles Ritchie, and no invitations have gone out to Commonwealth countries on a higher level.

College of Arms officials explain that this is because the investiture of the Prince of Wales is regarded as essentially a domestic, Welsh affair — not an international, imperial event like a coronation, which would be attended by heads of state.

Even in 1911, when the investiture of Prince Edward — now the Duke of Windsor — was a more lavish event befitting an era of imperial self-confidence, the assembly of guests was largely Welsh.

Sir Anthony Wagner, Garter King of Arms and chief aide to the Earl Marshal, said recently no invitations have gone out to heads of state generally. President Tubman of Liberia has been invited, he said, because he will be in Britain at the time of the investiture.

Gas Can Kill 'in Minute'

Aerosol Containers Carry Quick Death

TORONTO (CP) — Persons who sniff aerosol spray could be dead in 60 seconds, a California toxicologist warned Wednesday at the closing session of the fifth international meeting of forensic sciences.

J. Wallace Graham of Los Angeles County said the spray contains freon gas that can kill in a minute. Freon is an easily liquefiable gas used extensively as a refrigerant.

He said a 50-per-cent content of the gas in the air can kill.

Graham said 12 youths in Los Angeles County have died in the last two years from sniffing freon.

Robbed Abroad

CARACUS (UPI) — Four self-styled Robin Hoods pulled off a robbery Wednesday and got away with $550,000 from a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada at Puerto La Cruz. It was the biggest bank robbery in Venezuelan history.

BERRY TIME: The item on berry pickers that filled this space Tuesday has produced some interesting results.

Most of my beef was directed at the poor payrates but one caller added the fact that the workers are not covered by an form of insurance. The caller had injured herself in a fall but she was told by the field boss that he was not in the least bit interested in her problem. He added that he didn't carry insurance and the job is not covered by Workmen's Compensation.

A grower called to explain a few points from the farmer's standpoint but went on to agree that the wages were poor and the conditions were pathetic with no adequate washroom facilities or toilets.

The final result is the same. All concerned seem to agree that conditions are rotten but nobody is prepared to do anything.

Readers who think that poor working conditions are confined to the farms will be interested to hear about a survey of job rules in some local food outlets where teenagers are employed.

This report should be concluded soon!

CHANGES: Hotelman Ken Hole is out of the Malaspina Motor Inn at Nanaimo. His contract to manage that hotel terminated this week.

Mr. Hole is rejoining a consulting interest in the Royal Lion Motor Inn and has recently completed a facelift for the Royal Olympic Hotel. The new dining room will be called the Bull's Eye and will feature a different form of ordering.

The diner will select the steak of his choice from the whole chunk of beef. It will be weighed and he will pay by the ounce.

The price charged will include the whole dinner. In this way the big eaters won't subsidize the dieters. After the event Mr. Hole is off to Vancouver to supervise the opening of his latest venture, K.G.'s. This is a super de luxe diner in the Pacific Palisades Building.

GRAND OPENING: The city's newest nightspot opens Friday. The Imperial Inn is launching a singalong pub titled the Guided Cage.

Manager Bob McCauley has engaged pianist Dorothy McDowell who once pounded out tunes in Dublin's Abbey Tavern and also Tosh Kelleher, best known for his Cockney patter while working his fruit barrow in Bastion Square.

Food for the new hostelry includes steak pies and hot sausage rolls from the kitchen of Chef Hubert Wilhelm. An effort is being made to stock all the traditional English ales and the Scottish ones as well.

The Yard O' Ale Club should appeal to tourists. The glass yards have been bought and those who can handle the old-time glasses will have their names painted on a board announcing their prowess.

Comedian and designer Fran Dewie is responsible for the decor and for providing the song sheets.

NO CHANGE: To clear up a bit of confusion in Duncan, the owners of Riverside Farm say they are definitely staying in the business of raising Aberdeen Angus cattle.

There are no plans for a sellout and the owners are in no way connected with the rumors that the farm has been sold to pulp mill interests.

The black cattle and the big maple trees will be around for a while longer.

GETTING AROUND: The Daily Colonist gets around. An item on the activities of the local organization Outdoors Unlimited was seen by a reader at Chur in Switzerland.

The reader liked the idea of cleaning up the outdoors and so decided to forward a donation to aid the cause.

With the money came a letter saying the donor had visited British Columbia and found the campsites clean and the fishing excellent.

FAST ACTION: Minimal fire protection is not a problem in Victoria if the response to a car engine fire Monday afternoon was any indication of the service.

As the car sat on Douglas Street in front of the Bay, smoke pouring from under its hood, a man from a nearby store ran up with a hand fire extinguisher and began to raise the hood.

A few moments later, the driver of a passing Locomotive armored car stopped and also ran up with his hand extinguisher.

Almost at the same time a fire engine arrived.

Not to be outdone by another section, two engines and the emergency unit from another fire hall sped up from the opposite direction.

As the firemen readied themselves, the first volunteer on the scene extinguished the blaze.

'Too Much Acid' Denied
—There's No Such Thing

By G. T. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: What foods have too much acid? My system has too much acid and I don't know what foods to leave out of my diet.—J.N.

This phrase, "too much acid," ought to be abolished. Used in a generally like "my system has too much acid," it means absolutely nothing. Even when used somewhat more specifically, it usually doesn't mean much.

This column has commented on this before, and for quite a time I was gratified because the "too much acid" phrase largely disappeared from questions. But as the days pass, I suppose we lose old readers and gain new ones — and of late the "acid" notion has been popping up again.

Women have some sort of trouble with their hair or cosmetics, and beauticians or friends may reply glibly that "there's too much acid in your system."

Or people have various kinds of stomach distress and jump to the conclusion that it's "too much acid." Sometimes it may be that. A duodenal ulcer may benefit from the use of antacid pills to reduce the acidity of the stomach. Not prevent it entirely but reduce it. The stomach has to contain some acid to digest food.

Again, some other stomach distress can result from too little acid, and the answer is to treat the patient to restore proper acidity.

If, in cases in which the blood genuinely becomes too acid, that's a very serious condition. Just omitting some food or other cannot possibly help. The patient needs detailed examination and tests, not some sort of diet gimmicks.

Another much misunderstood notion is that acidulous or sour fruits or foods are going to "make the system acid." By and large, they don't. Citrus fruits, for a principal example, leave an alkaline — not an acid — residue after they are digested. That is true of many others.

J.N. doesn't tell me how he (or she) came to decide the trouble was "acid in the system," but it's quite likely that it wasn't a medical diagnosis.

What J.N. needs is to pin down exactly what the complaint is and then find the cure.

Czech Leader Tells Red Summit

Invasion Critics Off Base

MOSCOW (UPI) — The head of the Czechoslovak Communist party objected Wednesday to any discussion of the Soviet-led invasion of his country at the 75-nation Communist meeting, saying critics were misinformed.

Gustav Husak, describing the Czechoslovak crisis last year as an internal matter, said he was shocked that Communist delegations referred to the invasion of last August in speeches here. He said they "drew premature conclusions on the basis of superficial data."

Husak, who replaced reformist leader Alexander Dubcek in a party shakeup last April, said the basic problem in Czechoslovakia was caused by the Dubcek government's weakness and ineffective policies.

Earlier, the Italian Communist party, largest in the West, denounced the invasion of Czechoslovakia by the Soviet Union and four other Warsaw Pact armies. The Italians also criticized the Kremlin's attitude toward Peking and ridiculed the idea of a single world Communist movement.

The Soviets replied that "individual voices of dissent are drowned by the voices welcoming and approving" their basic course.

The Italian party joined those of Australia, Norway and Switzerland in withholding support of the basic summit document that calls for total unity in the world Communist movement.

"The conference," said the influential newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta (Literary Gazette), "displays unanimity in the assessment of the present world situation and the definitions of militant tasks of Communists (and) individual voices of dissent are drowned among the voices welcoming and approving the basic document."

Notes Trade Blame Over Border Clash

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union and Communist China accused each other Wednesday of provoking a new central Asian border incident involving a small clash between their troops.

The Soviet foreign ministry in a protest note accused the Chinese of invading Soviet territory Tuesday in the Kazakhstan area across from China's far-western Sinkiang province. It said Moscow holds Peking "responsible for the serious consequences of these provocations."

Peking in its protest contended the Russians were trying to "provoke still larger armed conflicts" and said the incident is "developing." It accused Russian troops of firing first.

The Russians suggested the Chinese were trying to disrupt the world Communist conference-meeting in Moscow without China—and efforts to settle disputed border lines.

The Soviet note did not mention any casualties or say how many troops were involved. The new border flareup was the first to be confirmed by Moscow since the bloody March battles on the Ussuri River.

Peking claimed Soviet troops backed by tanks crossed into Sinkiang province and killed one Chinese woman shepherd and kidnapped another herdsman. The area of the small clash lies amid vast semi-desert, sparsely populated lands. Sinkiang, where China's nuclear base is located, spreads over 700,000 square miles and is the largest Chinese province in the Tasta River area of the Semipalatinsk square miles is the second largest region.

Takeover from NLF in Paris

New Cong Wine in an Old Bottle

PARIS (AP) — The new, Viet Cong-backed provisional revolutionary government of South Vietnam announced Wednesday that it will take over the seat of the National Liberation Front at the Paris peace talks.

The announcement came on the eve of the 21st full-scale session of the talks.

No complications were expected, since U.S. and South Vietnamese official sources made it clear in advance they regarded the switch as nothing more than a change of name.

In Washington, Robert J. McCloskey, state department press officer, said the takeover by the new regime is simply "a case of old wine in a new bottle."

The shift of authority was announced by Tran Buu Kiem, who is leaving his post as chief NLF negotiator to become minister for the presidency in the new regime.

Kiem confirmed earlier reports that Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, his 41-year-old deputy, had been named foreign minister of the provisional government and would head the delegation to the Paris talks.

At a news conference, Kiem made clear that the new government would take over the NLF program and press the same demands at the peace talks.

He said that in the view of his "government" the new development will eventually lead to the formation of a provisional coalition government as urged by the NLF. South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu has firmly rejected a coalition government.

Thai Troops Leaving When South Ready

BANGKOK (Reuters) — Thai combat troops in South Vietnam will be withdrawn as soon as South Vietnamese forces can replace them, Communications Minister Dawee Chullasappa said Wednesday.

He said the 6,000 troops now in South Vietnam are needed in many parts of Thailand.

Dawee, chief of staff of the Thai armed forces supreme command, said Thailand has asked the United States to make preparations for South Vietnamese troops to take over the fighting in the Ben Cat area near Saigon, where the Thai troops are based.

Flamethrower Used

Sharp Attacks Hit U.S. Bases

SAIGON (UPI) — Charging North Vietnamese hurled explosives and blazed away with a flamethrower early Wednesday to break through the outer defence of a U.S. army camp. They killed 14 Americans and wounded 32 before GI defenders hurled back the attack.

In another action, North Vietnamese soldiers assaulted a U.S. marine camp behind a barrage of mortar fire and grenades but did not break through the Leatherneck lines.

Military spokesmen said the two battles cost the Americans 16 dead and 60 wounded.

The heaviest casualties were suffered when about 100 Communist troops broke through the barbed wire perimeter of a 196th light infantry brigade artillery base near Tam Ky, 340 miles north-northeast of Saigon.

U.S. spokesmen said at least 27 of the attackers were killed, most of them inside the camp. The artillerymen cranked their guns down to ground level and fired point blank at the advancing North Vietnamese. They also defended with automatic weapons and called in helicopters and AC 47 gunships before driving out the Communists.

Teachers Vote For Strike

EDMONTON (CP) — Ninety-five per cent of the 124 teachers in nearby Minburn County voted in favor of strike action to support demands for salary increases of 9.5 per cent and improved allowances.

The vote is the second by the teachers. The county was granted an injunction restraining the teachers from striking, claiming the teachers had not voted on a date specified by the Alberta government.

We've taken our Datsun 1600s over some of the roughest roads and through the toughest rallies to prove a single point: that Datsun 1600s are more dependable than any other cars in their class.

Just for the record, Datsun has always had a fine reputation for reliability and performance. Datsun won the Canadian Rally Championship in 1967. Datsuns won two classes in the Shell 4000 Rally '68. And this year, Datsun 1600 won the South African Gold Fields Rally. It won team class honours in the rugged East Africa Safari Rally, where a field of 87 cars started and only 31 finished. Datsun 1600s came in 3rd, 5th, 7th, 8th, 11th, and 13th.

Datsun 1600s have real muscle. They're the most powerful imported cars in their class. Their advanced design overhead cam engines turn out 96 hp. They can go 0-60 in 13 seconds and up to 100 mph. And they can go up to 35 miles per gallon.

Mercedes-Benz, BMW and Datsun 1600 have a similar all-independent suspension system for precise handling and perfect control. There's a collapsible steering column, disc brakes, headrests, safety harnesses and padding inside. All standard equipment.

You don't have to race or rally a Datsun 1600 to enjoy it. You can take it easy with an all-synchro 4-on-the-floor or 3-speed automatic and stay cool with a "windows-up" fresh air ventilation system.

Test drive Datsun 1600 soon. There are more than 160 Datsun dealers coast-to-coast in Canada and over $1,000,000 in parts to back it wherever you go.

Truth Demanded

THE GOVERNMENT, and in particular Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his Minister of National Defence Leo Cadieux will have been shocked when they read that General Jean Allard, chief of the Canadian general staff, had denounced current plans to put the nation's armed forces, calling them ill-timed and unwise.

This was the essence of an article in the Toronto Telegram, carried on the Canadian Press national wire on Tuesday.

If it was a shock to the government it must be even more disturbing to the public at large.

General Allard yesterday denied the remarks attributed to him, but the writer, Douglas Stuebing, insists that his report is correct and could be confirmed by witnesses, including Brigadier E. D. M. Leslie and Capt. Victor Keating.

Among other things, during an interview on May 29 at Nicosia, Cyprus, Mr. Stuebing quotes General Allard as saying: "If one person complains in Ottawa about the way the government treats them everyone jumps. Yet when someone tries to wreck our system or push us around nobody says a word."

Later, according to Mr. Stuebing, the general added: "They tell me to keep my mouth shut but I can't stand by and see the armed forces used as a pawn."

The Daily Colonist's correspondent in Ottawa yesterday questioned the defence department on reaction to General Allard's reported statement and got the reply that he had retracted.

The office of the minister of defence said the Telegram's story is "a piece of nonsense." And it quoted General Allard as saying that as the builder, the architect of plans to reorganize the armed forces he would hardly speak against what he himself recommended.

When General Allard says Mr. Stuebing's story is "absolute nonsense" he is, in effect, accusing a reputable newspaperman of deliberately manufacturing material injurious to the government and, of course, to the general himself. He is saying in no uncertain terms that Mr. Stuebing is a liar.

Mr. Stuebing has responded with a statement: "I understand why General Allard's conversation with me would be viewed seriously in Ottawa. I wrote my report of that interview with full knowledge of its importance and I stand by what I wrote."

To say that Mr. Stuebing's report would be "viewed seriously" in Ottawa must be the understatement of our times. It has had a shattering impact. It is reminiscent of the courageous criticisms of the admirals when the former defence minister, Paul Hellyer, was pursuing his ill-advised unification program; criticisms which resulted in the dismissal of such distinguished servicemen as Admiral William Landymore and Admiral Jeffrey V. Brock and the "early retirement" of others.

Even with General Allard's strenuous denials and what the defence department told Mr. Jackson was his retraction, the whole unhappy episode will shake very seriously the credibility of the government's military establishment.

In the circumstances the leaders of the parties in opposition must immediately demand a full inquiry, with every available witness, to determine whether a splendid soldier has been slandered by inference and with intent or whether someone has blundered.

Surely Mr. Trudeau will need no urging. Surely Mr. Cadieux will insist upon it. Certainly the people of this country will be justified, if, in outrage, they compel it.

Closed Conference

THE SECRECY in which the federal-provincial constitutional conference is proceeding may be puzzling and annoying to many Canadians. It is the future of the system of government of their country that is being discussed. But they are not to hear the proposals and counter-proposals, let alone the arguments. And once more it may be noted that the advocate of this secrecy is the prime minister who made so much in the last election campaign of participatory democracy and communication between government and people.

But, however reluctantly, it must be admitted that there is some practical advantage and therefore, probable public benefit, in a closed conference. The government leaders will neither be playing to an audience, conscious of the opportunities of political one-upmanship, nor bound by previously-taken positions. Their non-elected, advising officials will be free to speak their minds.

The Montreal Gazette has reached more than a century back for an expression of the reason for secrecy which still applies—although insisting that in the end the people of all parts of Canada must have the greatest possible freedom to study and discuss and decide what is proposed.

The words quoted by The Gazette are those of John Hamilton Gray, a New Brunswick delegate to the Quebec meeting of the Fathers of Confederation in 1864:

"After much consideration it was determined . . . that the convention should hold its deliberations with closed doors . . . that the views of individual members, after a first expression, might be changed, by the discussion of new points, differing essentially from the ordinary current of subjects that came under their consideration in the more limited range of provincial legislatures, and it was held that no man ought to be prejudiced, or be liable to the charge in public that he had on some other occasion advocated this or that doctrine, or this or that principle, inconsistent with the one that might then be deemed best, in view of the future union to be adopted . . ."

"Liberals and Conservatives had met there to determine what was best for the future guidance of half a continent, not to fight old party battles, or stand by old party cries, and candor was sought more than mere personal triumph. The conclusion arrived at, it is thought, was judicious. It ensured the utmost freedom of debate . . ."

Excedrin Headache Number Three

Growing Confidence

A Switch in Soviet Policy in Asia

By DEV MURARKA from Moscow

SOVIET policy towards South and Southeast Asia is growing in confidence. Gone is the hesitation and tentativeness with which the Russians once approached the countries of the region, gingerly selecting their friends and sticking to them. Instead they have switched their policy to win wider influence as a whole, even at some cost to their relations with old-established friends.

An outstanding example of this new phase is the recent visit of Premier Alexei Kosygin to Pakistan and Afghanistan. With Afghanistan the Russians have enjoyed good relations for a long time, but with the exit of Field Marshal Ayub Khan they have almost adopted Yahya Khan as the man of the hour in Pakistan. They have done everything to assist him in acquiring greater prestige and authority within his own country. Moscow alone of the big powers showing this degree of interest in Pakistan, has backed Yahya Khan heavily in the belief that for the foreseeable future the army will remain the key to influence and power in Pakistan, and Yahya Khan will command its support.

Public opinion in these countries, though friendly towards the Soviet Union, is also extremely sensitive about any external control. The big test of Soviet intentions is the use to which it might put this newly-acquired and growing influence. The difference between the Soviet and traditional big-power policy in the area already evident, is that the Russians, instead of playing up antagonisms between states there, are now trying to dampen them. If they succeed in this they will gain prestige, and in the process reduce the misery which such conflicts as those between India and Pakistan and Pakistan and Afghanistan cause.

During his brief visit to Rawalpindi, Mr. Kosygin urged greater economic co-operation between India, Pakistan, Afghanistan and Iran. Mr. Kosygin not only said it but did so in the face of public complaints by General Yahya Khan that India was responsible for Indo-Pakistani tensions. The general's attitude is the traditional policy of any Pakistani politician trying to ingratiate himself with his people. Mr. Kosygin's gesture can be construed as evidence of the stronger hand which Moscow can play in Pakistan now.

So can be the announcement that the Communist Party of East Pakistan was taking part in the world conference in Moscow, which must have caused surprise and disquiet in Islamabad since open Communist parties have not been known to exist in either wing of Pakistan for a long time.

On the face of it economic co-operation between India and Pakistan or Afghanistan may sound like a dream. Economic relations between India and Pakistan are virtually non-existent except when unavoidable. Afghanistan continues to suffer because of Pakistani denial of transit rights for Afghan goods to India, and the off-way round.

For long India and Iran have remained cold towards each other because of the closer ties which exist between Iran and Pakistan. Lately, however, there has been some relaxation. India and Iran are making slow progress in establishing economic links. Even Pakistan may relent under Soviet prodding and allow development of trade relations with India which will make better economic sense all round, and may even soften the political bitterness. The Russians have the means to persuade all four countries that such co-operation will benefit all of them so far as Soviet aid and trade are concerned.

Moreover, the Russians have taken practical steps with an eye to the future if such co-operation develops. They have been opening up new trade routes with Afghanistan and Iran, countries which have common borders with the Soviet Union. Moscow aims to use the road link with Afghanistan for mutual trade and as a transit route for goods from Pakistan, and eventually goods from India across Pakistan and Afghanistan.

With Iran it has been agreed to open up frontier trade between Iran and the adjacent Soviet republics of Azerbaijan, Armenia, Georgia and Turkmenistan. For this purpose a special branch of one of the Soviet organizations dealing with foreign trade has been set up at local level, but the republics will deal directly with the Iranians.

Meanwhile Iran has derived benefit by the opening of rail and river routes through the Soviet Union for her goods to Europe. The Russians look forward to the time when some of the Asian goods will come via Iran, shortening the long haul either via Suez or the Cape, and therefore reducing costs.

The Russians are playing their cards with caution, not hustling these countries into hasty or forced "kitt-togethers." They are not planning any organizational set-up for them in which they can dominate or be suspected of dominating. But they are aligning themselves with an economic trend which will gather momentum as modernization of Asian economies proceeds. By helping the process Moscow hopes to gain credit as well as profit.

Of course, the Russians are equally alive to the idea that if this kind of regional economic co-operation can be promoted under their aegis, or even without them, in the long run it will deepen contradictions between the developing countries and the Western countries. This will be a political reward welcome to Moscow.

(OFFICE-CORRESPONDENT)

Dateline: Europe

Campaign Against Refugees

By OTTO VON HABSBURG

DURING the Whitsun holidays the refugees in Germany celebrate their traditional get-togethers. By far the most important is the Sudeten-Germans day, on which more than 400,000 persons meet, the largest mass demonstration in Western Europe. This gives the Communist press and a number of other newspapers the opportunity to describe the refugees as inveterate Nazi revanchists — without providing a single proof for this assertion.

Those who have been at the great meeting, bring back a far different impression from the one conveyed by the news-media. It is hard to call persons of less than 30 years old Nazis, and at the Sudeten German meeting there was a high percentage of young people. As in years before, the speeches dwelt on reconciliation, understanding, the will to collaborate with the other nations of Central Europe. But this was not mentioned in the dispatches.

It is fairly easy to see the reason for this attitude. The refugees, with their personal experience of left-wing totalitarianism, are a serious obstacle in the path of the Communists. Stalin had them expelled in 1945, hoping that the millions of impoverished people, dumped into a starving Germany, would be the agents of a revolution of despair. He was aided by the "Morgenhaubt boys," blinded by hatred. But the exact opposite happened. The expelled resisted the temptation of violence, went to work and created the German economic miracle, which ended Russia's dreams of further expansion.

These refugees are no dreamers, as some authors pretend. They know that one can not restore the past. They understand that many among them will not return home, since they have established solid positions in their new environment. But they do not want to abdicate their natural rights. They realize that a humane order, acceptable for everybody, can only be obtained in a united Europe, in which there will be a stable judicial system, free movement and where the borders will lose their significance.

The campaign against the refugees, especially in the Western press, may be dangerous. Even the mildest people will finally be exasperated if their words are deliberately falsified, they are consistently accused of misdeeds for which they are not responsible and their goodwill is ignored. Already today demagogues try to exploit the discontent. If they succeed, this would be disastrous. Luckily this is not yet the case. A constructive policy should hence recognize the achievements of the refugees in the course of the last two decades and promote their avowed aim: a genuine reconciliation of the people of Central Europe.

I Beg to Differ . . .

The Summer Bachelor Is a Myth

By FRANK LOWE

AS the traditional holiday time approaches, it is probably quite proper that we should examine that summer-flowering species known as the Summer Bachelor — is it a myth or a reality?

After extensive field work on this subject over the years, it is with regret that I must report that the Summer Bachelor is a myth. He is a myth because if a man behaved the way a husband is supposed to behave when the wife and kids are in the country, he would have to be 25, handsome and wealthy.

And most men I know whose wives and kids regularly go to the lake or beach for the summer simply do not qualify. Most of them admit ruefully that they are no longer 25.

But the summer bachelor myth, like the old belief that barking dogs don't bite, dies hard. Especially among summer widows. These ladies, left on the edge of a lake to commune with the kids and the stir-crazy — or so it would seem — and whip up the most fantastic visions of what their husbands are doing back in the city.

And what is the husband doing? Well, he is doing his best to keep his wife's visions intact. But believe me, it is grueling, unrelenting work.

It is heart-breaking to see a man who usually is so neat that an off-centre dollie will send him into a rage, grimly mopping up the kitchen of his house. His explanation: "A summer bachelor is supposed to be a dillard who can't wash a dish or water a plant. My wife expects me to live up to this image. If she came home and found everything tidy and trim, she would immediately bug for the summer, go a little assume I had been up to something awful and make my life unbearable."

Summer bachelors are also supposed to be playboys. And this is the most difficult part of the job. Most summer bachelors I know are so weary from that weekend commuting that Monday through Friday all they want to do is go home early and sleep.

But tradition won't allow this. When the fellow at the next desk asks you what you are planning to do that evening, you must suppress a yawn, wink roguishly and reply:

"No telling what I'll do — I'm a summer bachelor, you know." This small and well-meant act of deception can also be almost lethal. It may bring into the open a little explored area of the well-known Generation Gap. If the fellow at the next desk, for instance, is 25 and a real bachelor he may feel sorry for you and insist that he join you for those forbidden revels. Out of the goodness of his heart, and the emptiness of his head, he may insist on fixing up a fourroom so "we can do the town properly."

"Well, poets may sing about the glories of the rising sun, but obviously these poets were never summer bachelors. For such people the rising sun merely means that they will be dead on their feet for a week.

Adding to the strain of lack of sleep, is the worry about lack of finances. After a man has paid for the cottage and allocated funds for feeding his vacationing brood, he generally doesn't have an awful lot left to throw around in the bistros.

One of my friends, in fact, is still in a state of shock after learning that one small evening on the town in the good old tradition cost him close to $50. "To heck with the tradition — after this I go home at night!"

This man, of course, is an ironist. But most summer bachelors are just plain weary. They hate to sit around in an empty house in the evenings — and they know they can't afford to sit around in a crowded dive,

Pipeline Connection For Gorge Cleansing

IT seems that for untold years everyone has complained about the pollution in the Gorge waterway, but despite the many years battle of verbiage versus garbage there is no doubt that garbage is winning on all fronts, all beaches and right down the middle.

The one glimmer of light has been the firm belief that a canal cut through from Esquimalt Harbor would provide the needed flushing action because of the difference in water levels. Consequently one group of people or another calls for construction of such a canal every few years or as the members in these groups change; and again and again they approach the various avenues of government for co-operation and financial aid. This has given rise to the finest display of political footwork we have seen in many a decade with humbug and double talk passing from government to government and even from department to department with never a sign of action.

Although I am not an engineer I feel that this apparently simple 1,550 feet of canal could be a difficult and expensive undertaking on account of the water level difference because without adequate and expensive control gates the resulting deluge in a moment of inattention could cause a rush of water that could do far more damage than you may imagine.

Now, may I suggest what could be a relatively inexpensive construction that would be virtually free of operating costs.

from waterway to waterway with a maximum elevation above low water level of 16 feet.

2. Lay a welded pipe of at least six feet diameter, and certainly more desirably eight or 10 feet diameter. Extend pipe at both ends until submerged (anchored in concrete) and let circulation of water create constantly.

This will not give a modern "Instant" cure but the resulting flushing and circulation should provide the necessary cleansing in a fraction of the time that it has been building up. I would sincerely hazard a guess that within a year those polluted signs could be removed for good.

Come on, let's make it a Gorge Beauty Way, and by the way, isn't there an election in the air?

Countdown for Trees

I trust that if Victoria city council decides to ban backyard incineration, it will be good enough to provide a countdown for the trees so that they may all drop their leaves simultaneously.

Perhaps if we can train our trees well enough, we could even make another tourist attraction out of the affair.

Design of Stamps

I was shocked at my first view of the new issue of six-cent stamps. Is this the best that can be produced?

Canada abounds in fine and imaginative artists. It has also some of the most magnificent and beautiful scenery in the world. Out of this combination surely a Canadian stamp of great eye appeal could be created, such as a background in miniature of mountain and lake.

with perhaps a glimpse of one of the wild animals native to these parts.

Or, alternatively, a scene of the prairie wheat fields in all their golden ripeness.

One's first impression of the current six-cent stamp is its resemblance to a bundle of wire, into which spikes and nails have been thrown willy-nilly.

SUBSCRIBER

Passport Service

I have read with interest the various letters and reports (mostly critical) which have appeared in your paper lately regarding the effects of the new passport regulations.

On May 5 I mailed a routine application for a new passport. On June 2, I received my new passport — exactly four weeks later.

I think this is worthy of comment and indicates (a) that the passport office is doing a good job despite the (reported) unprecedented number of applications, and (b) that the post office service is not as deficient as many recent complaints suggest.

Cattle Exports

May I, through your columns, offer my congratulations to the women who have been organizing and participating in the recent attempted boycotts of food markets and chains in Vancouver? I am appalled, however, at the number of women who do not apparently consider this important enough, even to respect the boycott, and would hope that more support would be forthcoming, if a similar situation arose here.

Let's get to the root of the problem and not merely attack get the price of meat, in particular, and food in general.

back to a reasonable level, or at least keep it from going higher?

Nevertheless, while wholeheartedly endorsing the action being taken, I would suggest that the organizers consider an appeal to, or attack on — which ever seems most likely to succeed — the government bodies responsible for allowing Canadian beef cattle to be sent south, thus ensuring a shortage and consequent high prices in Canada — possibly for the next 10 years, if the present contracts are allowed to stand.

Let's get to the root of the problem and not merely attack get the price of meat, in particular, and food in general.

When North Is Down

I was very interested in a news item which came over a Victoria radio station June 5, from the CBC reporter at Hay River, in the Northwest Territories, in which he refers to the difficulty encountered in navigation on the Mackenzie River, supposedly due to low water, which I do not doubt, but I must say I seriously doubt if this river has changed its course within the past few years and is now flowing south instead of north.

as in the old days, which it must have done, if it is correct and freight is going up the river to the more northerly communities in the far north.

I noted the same error in the papers or over the air within the past weeks.

Perhaps the error in directions, is caused by lack of water to mix with one's drinks.

Interest Rate Hike May Produce Recession

By HAROLD MORRISON
From London

Increasing the prime interest rate — as has occurred in Canada and the United States this week — can have a dramatic impact on inflation.

It dries up the money supply and makes credit so expensive that industries and buyers are forced to postpone activities.

But it can also bring on a recession.

The Bank of England has given clear warning of the possibility of recession through restraints on the money supply. To expand, industries require credit at a cost that can ensure eventual profit on the expansion.

Growth in industry makes for jobs and rising production. A temporary curtailment of that growth can cause increasing unemployment when the population is expanding and more youngsters are looking for jobs.

Expansion is one reason why a number of countries have called for greater supplies of international credit to finance trade.

Britain is one country urging fast introduction of so-called "paper gold," the Special Drawing Rights or extra borrowing powers which will be administered by the International Monetary Fund.

But whether this extra borrowing power will generate new prosperity is yet to be seen.

In what is involved in the current stage of international monetary turmoil is an attempt by some countries to export their economic troubles and block the problems of other countries from entering their own.

What may develop as a problem in Canada, U.S., Britain and other countries is growth in unemployment as an alternative to inflation.

Unemployment imposes hardships and governments tend to find creeping inflation more acceptable. But what is developing now is the threat of uncontrolled inflation, sometimes requiring drastic restraint which in effect brings recession as the result.

BACKGROUND

Expert's View:

Rocky's Trips Insensitive, Unnecessary

Ralph A. Dungan, chairman of the department of higher education of the State of New Jersey, served as a special assistant to both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, and as U.S. ambassador to Chile from 1964-67.

By RALPH A. DUNGAN

Nelson Rockefeller's trips to Latin America on behalf of the U.S. Administration have, predictably, been dismal failures.

President Nixon's gesture of sending a special envoy trotting around the hemisphere was insensitive and unnecessary and was viewed cynically by most Latin politicians.

The decision to send Rockefeller, it was widely believed, was motivated more by the President's desire to involve his erstwhile political rival in an apparently significant role in the new administration than by a desire for information or the performance of any significant diplomatic mission, especially since Nixon himself made an extensive tour of Latin America in 1967.

The Nixon government took office with a vague and undefined policy toward Latin America. The administration's performance in its early months, especially with respect to key appointments in the Latin American area, was halting and half-hearted. Latin Americans understandably inferred that the hemisphere was receiving little attention and less understanding in Washington.

Rockefeller is not the most beloved or appealing figure in Latin America on either the right or left. His identification with big business, big banking, large land-holdings and policies of yesterday is not calculated to stir the hearts and minds of the restless masses or their leaders in Latin America.

The reality which it is important for North Americans to grasp is the extent of the deterioration in U.S.-Latin American relations and the reasons for it.

The occupation of the Dominican Republic marks the decisive watershed in recent relations with America's southern neighbors. Unnecessary, crude and violative of solemn treaty commitments, this reckless and impulsive adventure confirmed in many Latin minds that U.S. imperialism was indeed rampaging and that Latin America was not immune from its effects.

The Dominican occupation, coming as it did at a point when the United States was experiencing the first stages of a "quiet crisis" in its Latin political relations as a result of the war in Vietnam, shook its friends in Latin America badly.

The U.S. military, always a potent force in the formation and execution of U.S. policy in Latin America, has continued in its exaggerated role in recent years, thus alienating civilian democratic politicians in Latin America who had begun to believe that perhaps America really did mean to give reality to the popular democratic principles it has espoused for so long.

In the last five years, government after government in Latin America has succumbed to military dictatorship. Despite the claims of some, cyclical dictatorship is the not inevitable in Latin America.

While the U.S. role can and should never be decisive in internal Latin political matters, America can and should contribute with other nations to the development of a political climate which is supportive of democratic and constitutional processes. Latins have not been certain of America's attitudes in this regard since 1963.

U.S. policies and actions can reflect the imperialist tendencies of Teddy Roosevelt or the humane and respectful dignity of John F. Kennedy.

The failure of communicate to Latin America in unambiguous terms just what conception the Nixon administration adheres to is the basic reason for the failure of the Rockefeller mission.

British Murder Figures Open to Interpretation

By ROBERT G. TOTH, from London

Murders in England and Wales have increased slightly since 1963 when capital punishment was suspended for a five-year trial period, according to statistics presented to parliament this week.

The figures were open to various interpretations. There were immediate cries for restoration of hanging but there were also indications that the government would cite the same statistics, with different emphasis, to seek a permanent abolition of capital punishment this year.

The number of murders here seems almost insignificant compared, say, to the United States — 174 last year compared to 12,000 in America in 1967. On a population basis, an American has a 20 times greater chance of being murdered than a Briton.

The rate here has been increasing, however. The annual average was 158 over the four years since capital punishment was suspended, compared to 140 a year over the four years preceding suspension and 138 over 1957 to 1960.

The average has thus risen at just over 3 per cent a year, while all crimes of violence have been rising about 6 per cent annually.

Scotland Yard has announced that indictable crimes involving guns have risen 17 per cent in London in the past year and robberies and assaults with intent to rob have jumped 31 per cent.

The national statistics are interpreted variously when so-called "capital murders" are considered. These were murders for which men could be hung prior to 1965. Included were murder while stealing or resisting arrest or escaping custody, any murder of a policeman on duty and any murder using a gun or explosive.

Duncan Sandys, a Tory member of parliament who wants capital punishment restored, at least for murderers of policemen, noted that there were 71 "capital murders" in the four years before 1965 and 161 in the four years since.

From 1957 to 1960, however, there were 35 capital murders. Murder statistics fluctuate so markedly here (because there are so few murders) that conclusions should be drawn from them very cautiously.

Moreover, "capital murder" is no longer a legal category so the figures are hypothetical. Even so, there was a drop in the category from 48 capital murders in 1967 to 45 last year.

Malaysia's Strongman Silences All Opposition

By FREDERICK NOSSAL
From Kuala Lumpur

Politics is a dirty word in Malaysia today. Politicians are being told to set aside their various party allegiances and to work only for national harmony between Malays and Chinese.

The net result has been the total neutralization of the recent election result — at least for the time being.

Nobody is criticizing the government in Kuala Lumpur for imposing curfews after the riots in order to prevent the racial clashes from spreading. There are many who even contend that the Malaysian leaders acted prudently in imposing a nation-wide state of emergency.

But today, with the tension gradually easing, people want to know what plans strongman Tun Abdul Razak has for Malaysia's political future.

All questions along these lines, however, are immediately dismissed by government spokesmen as being not very helpful.

If parliament were recalled, that would revive political debate, officials say.

If the suspended elections in the east Malaysian states of Sarawak and Sabah were held soon, politicking would begin all over again.

Some of the opposition leaders who suggested they could be of help to the government were to be asked for their assistance, this would become a political issue.

If parties were permitted to publish their political organs — now banned in Malaysia — there would doubtless be more rows.

Some chief ministers have told Tun Razak they would like to call their state assemblies into session. The answer from Kuala Lumpur is a very loud "no." "That would mean politics, and we can not have politics at this time," according to the Malaysian leaders.

The consequence of the daily appeals from Kuala Lumpur for further vigilance against troublemakers, for renewed efforts at building racial harmony, and for an end to political discord has effectively silenced most opposition parties.

As Tun Razak has absolutely sweeping powers, many politicians doubtless consider it unwise to raise their voices in protest at this particular time.

Under emergency laws, Tun Razak as director of operations, can rule Malaysia virtually as he sees fit.

Even the powerful national operations council is only instructed to assist him. The cabinet can make recommendations, but is subject to and subordinate to the decisions of Tun Razak.

But for the fact that the prime minister, Tunku Abdul Rahman, can force his advice upon the director of operations under the new emergency proclamation, Tun Razak would be an absolute dictator. If Tun Razak so decided, the present state of emergency in Malaysia could continue indefinitely. Only the return to parliament democracy.

Russians Also Use Diamonds as Bait

Lecturer Spy Move Pawn

By DENNIS EISENBERG
From London

With diamonds in one hand and imprisoned London lecturer Gerald Brooke in the other, the Russians are, in polite language, trying to arrange an "exchange" for two of their own spies now languishing in a British jail.

But whatever the diplomatic terminology used on official levels, the communist threat to try Brooke on fresh charges of "espionage" after already serving four years of a five-year labor camp sentence, is none other than plain and simple blackmail.

Brooke's crime was to smuggle in anti-Soviet literature to Moscow during a visit there. The Russians pounced on the luckless 30-year-old Londoner and although they imposed a stiff sentence they are now dropping broad hints that Brooke may face further and far more serious charges. Moscow is using Brooke as a pawn to obtain the release of Peter and Helen Krogers, who were sentenced to 20 years in jail at the Portland underworld research spy trial eight years ago.

This was one of the most damaging espionage penetrations of British defenses ever, and the Foreign Office has repeatedly pointed out that the cases of Brooke — a British citizen — and the Krogers, who are Americans, were entirely different.

The Russians, it is believed, are under strong pressure from their own security services, the KGB, to recover the Krogers — two highly skilled professional agents. Brooke is the only British lever they have, although by any standards he is a very minor one and in no sense can be called a spy.

In Moscow a senior British cabinet minister, Anthony Crosland, President of the Board of Trade, officially warned the Russians of the very strong feelings in the United Kingdom over the Brooke question.

Said Mr. Crosland: "I came here to discuss an expansion of Anglo-Soviet trade. But I believe that a senior British minister could not have come here without making it clear to the appropriate Soviet authorities what very strong feelings the British government has over the Brooke question."

There have been suggestions that Britain should discontinue trade with Russia until Brooke was released. In theory this would harm the Russians for officially the trade balance is about $125,000,000 in Moscow's favor.

However, this does not take into account the lucrative diamond dealing which goes on between London and Moscow. The Russians send rough diamonds to Britain where they are processed and then re-exported to the United States at a substantial profit.

In the first four months of this year the Russians have stepped up this trade and $760,000,000 worth of gems have been sent to Britain. If trade sanctions were enforced, this flow of valuable foreign currency would cease, for the diamonds could easily be switched to Amsterdam.

There is a growing public outcry in Britain over the threatened new trial for Brooke. There is no doubt that the Russians are exploiting this in the hope of getting back the Krogers. The diamonds are another pawn in the no-holds-barred world of espionage.

Savings Rate Only Gloom-Reliever

In a day of almost unrelieved gloom, Canadian financial circles buckled down quickly to adjust themselves to the Bank of Canada's order increasing the national bank rate from 7 per cent to 7½ per cent.

Most of the chartered banks quickly announced they would raise their prime rate by ½ of per cent from 7½ to 8 per cent, thus bringing themselves into line with the central bank.

An exception was the Toronto-Dominion Bank, which last week jumped the gun by raising its prime rate from 7½ to 7¾ per cent. The T-D Bank said it would add another half point making its new prime rate 8¼ per cent, — a quarter point more than its rivals.

AT 8 PER CENT

Those whose new rate is 8 per cent are the Royal Bank, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, the Bank of Montreal, the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Bank of British Columbia.

If there was a touch of sunshine to relieve the gloom so far as bank customers are concerned, it was that the interest rates which the banks will pay on savings deposits are also being increased in most cases.

The Bank of British Columbia said the rate the bank would pay on its non-chequing savings accounts would be raised to 6 from 5½ per cent.

CHEQUING ACCOUNT

The Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank and Scotia Bank are making similar advances and the Bank of Montreal is also increasing the rate on savings accounts with chequing privileges to 3½ from 3 per cent.

The new prime rates are effective June 16, and the higher savings interest rate from June 1.

One local banker said it was his understanding that all loans by the banks would be subject to the half-point hike in line with the increase on the prime rate.

WARNING TO SWITCHERS

The upward move in interest rates in Canada is regarded as a direct consequence of the upward trend in U.S. rates.

Most of the leading U.S. banks now are charging 8½ per cent on their prime loans — which is higher than the adjusted Canadian banks.

In order to prevent U.S. accounts, or accounts of Canadian companies in U.S. ownership, from switching their call loans from U.S. to Canada, the Canadian banks have been warned to look out for such moves and to refuse loans in such circumstances.

BORROWING COSTS

One local banker said that he was skeptical of the premise that higher borrowing costs would, of themselves, hold back the forces of inflation.

He said that in a period when the dollar value is declining, corporations don't mind having to pay more for their money, and the demand for loans appeared to be as strong as ever.

A corporation paying taxes of about 52 per cent could still borrow at 10 per cent, and after claiming tax relief had a loan costing only 5 per cent in terms of profit-and-loss account.

STRONGER HAND

Another prominent banker who asked to be nameless suggested that government was only playing with the problem, and that stronger guidelines in the provision of consumer loans were needed.

He suggested that a former-though unpopular—Canadian restriction of some 15 years ago could be brought back profitably.

He was referring to the government order that the cash down minimum in all purchases would be 20 or 30 per cent, instead of the free-wheeling merchandizing of today in which no down payment is required on many types of consumer goods.

DRUG SALES GROW

A gain of 15 per cent in net earnings, and 12½ per cent in sales is recorded by Cunningham Drug Stores for the year ended March 31.

The Vancouver company with a chain of 76 stores as well as a wholesaling operation made a net profit of $729,805 (89 cents a share) against $637,140 (81 cents) when there was a smaller number of shares outstanding.

Fifteen new stores were opened during the year for a net gain to the chain of 11 outlets.

Ralph Cunningham, chairman, said disruption in the building industry had set back the opening of new stores, but four are due for completion — two of them replacements — during the current year.

Cunningham is also increasing its interests in Alberta where it now has two stores. Five more are in the planning stage for 1970 and new outlets are under way for further outlets.

Consumer Protection Almost Here

Small Print Made Clearer

Consumer protection laws in B.C. will be strengthened July 1 with new contract provisions for buying on time and a ban on all referral sales.

After that date every contract for the purchase of goods must contain the following clauses:

- The name and address of the seller and the buyer.
- A description of the goods sufficiently to identify them with certainty.
- The price of the goods and a detailed statement of the terms of payment.

- Where credit is extended there must be a statement of any security for payment.

In addition it will be necessary for the seller to show either in the contract or separately credit charges both in dollars and cents and as a percentage and clearly display in writing any warranties or guarantees which apply to the goods.

The practice of referral selling, in which a portion of monthly time payments is "supposedly reduced" in return for names of other prospective purchasers, is prohibited.

Mr. Peterson said: "This technique is largely illusory and the buyer subsequently finds he has been induced to enter a contract believing he will not make any monthly payments."

"He or she learns that very few, if any, of the names which are furnished buy comparable goods and therefore the buyer is stuck with large payments which he often cannot afford."

Kiernan More Hopeful In Anti-Litter Drive

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Wednesday industry is finding new ways to reduce non-returnable bottles but still hasn't attacked the core of the litter problem.

Following a meeting with Elliot Dalton, executive director of the Glass Container Council of Canada, the minister said he was more hopeful now than he was a year ago at progress achieved in the anti-litter campaign.

Ocean with a tea cup" in the war on litter.

He also repeated earlier warnings that if industry fails to adopt the "proper anti-litter approach, which is putting across an effective message of individual responsibility," governments, including B.C., would have to act.

This could take the form of legislation requiring firms that sell and distribute a wide variety of containers, including non-returnable bottles, to include a significant anti-litter message with their massive sales promotions.

No effort would be made to force the industry to refund bottles, Mr. Kiernan said. He added: "We must remember that bottles don't litter; people litter. In relation to the volume of junk that is found along our highways, bottles aren't even a major source of litter when you compare them to such things as oil cans."

The Canadian industry, Mr. Kiernan said, was closely following recent developments in the United States where used non-returnable bottles were being turned into bricks and insulating material. The Glass Container Council is encouraging firms in this country to do the same.

MESSAGE PROBLEM

However, the minister added, he wasn't satisfied that manufacturers and distributors of non-returnable bottles in Canada were living up to their responsibility to get the anti-litter message across to the public.

Mr. Kiernan said the industry is represented on the Keep Canada Beautiful committee of the Canadian Tourist Association but added this activity amounts to "trying to bail out the Pacific

Cambodia Demands $8,600,000 In War Damages

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Cambodia has demanded $8,600,000 in war damages from the United States along with its agreement to renew diplomatic relations, the official Khmer news agency said Wednesday.

The report said the damages were caused by defoliants used by American aircraft searching out Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troop concentrations along Cambodia's frontier with South Vietnam, an area of numerous rubber plantations.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, announced Tuesday that his nation was renewing diplomatic relations with the United States, starting with an exchange of charge d'affaires.

He also announced Cambodia has severed diplomatic and economic relations with West Germany.

Sihanouk broke economic and military ties with the United States in November, 1963, charging U.S. intervention in Cambodia. He followed up that move by breaking diplomatic relations in May 1965, after an attack by South Vietnamese planes over Cambodia.

Relations between the two countries have improved recently as the result of both a U.S. agreement to respect Cambodia's borders and increasing communist activity in Cambodia.

Cambodia's problems with West Germany arose when Sihanouk established diplomatic relations with East Germany in early May. West Germany responded by freezing its relations with Cambodia, a softer Bonn approach than its usual policy of having no relations with any government that recognizes the East German regime. The news agency report on the damages claim against the U.S. said

Cambodia also had demanded the immediate halt of the use of defoliants over Cambodian territory. The money claimed by Cambodia was specifically for damage to rubber plantations in Kompong Cham province, the report said.

North Vietnamese troops have long used Cambodia as an infiltration route into South Vietnam.

Rookie Watchkeeper Didn't Call Captain

SUBIC BAY (Reuters) — A junior officer who only qualified to stand watch 10 days before was in command of the destroyer, Frank E. Evans, the night it was sliced in two by the Australian carrier Melbourne, court of inquiry was told Wednesday.

Cmdr. Albert McLemore of Vallejo, Calif., captain of the Evans, told a board investigating the June 3 collision that he went to bed before the disaster occurred.

The officer of the watch, in charge of the ship at the time, was Lieut. Ronald Ramsey. McLemore told the board.

Ramsey had served aboard the Evans for 20 months and stood watch for four months in preparation for taking the watch alone.

Junior officer of the watch when the collision occurred was Lieut. James Hopson, who was not qualified as an officer of the deck, but "was well on the way to becoming one," McLemore said.

On the night of June 2, the Evans was acting as a screen for the Melbourne during a SEATO naval exercise in the South China Sea.

The disaster occurred early June 3 after the Evans received orders to change its position from in front of the aircraft carrier to behind.

McLemore told the board that after a surface attack exercise was completed he went below deck to his cabin and wrote a couple of letters.

"I then came back to the bridge and I retired about midnight or a little later," he said.

It was a standing order for all ships, not just his own, that the captain should be called when ever there was a change of course or speed, McLemore said.

But in the type of screening the destroyer was doing, the course and speed were continuously changing, McLemore said, and therefore he had left supplementary orders that he did not have to be called for all course and speed changes.

Earlier, the flag officer commanding the Australian Fleet, Rear-Admiral John (Buster)

Crabb, told the inquiry he called to the bridge of the Melbourne in his pajamas at 3:12 a.m.—three minutes before the collision occurred.

He said the U.S. destroyer was approaching the Melbourne at a 90-degree angle.

Four minutes later — one minute after the collision — he sent out the first signal about the incident and then one minute after that he returned to his cabin to put on his uniform "because I thought it was not right for an admiral to be seen in the

Three Parties Battle All Out for Vote

WINNIPEG (CP) — The three major parties have fielded candidates in all 57 constituencies for the June 25 Manitoba general election.

In addition to the Progressive Conservatives, Liberals and New Democrats, six Social Crediters, five independents and two Communists had officially filed papers when nominations closed Wednesday.

The total of 184 is down one from the 185 in the 1966 election when voting in one riding was deferred and 56 seats were at stake.

NEW LEADER

In 1966 only the Conservatives and Liberals had full slates. The New Democrats filed 51 and Social Credit 18.

The New Democrats, with former MP Ed Schreyer elected leader last weekend, have entered their strongest contingent in recent times in an effort to overtake the Liberals as the official opposition and challenge Premier Walter Weir's Conservative government.

The Conservatives are looking for their fifth consecutive term, their first under Weir, since taking over as a minority government under Duff Roblin in 1958.

Weir was highways minister when he contested the last election. He was chosen to replace Roblin 18 months ago. The Liberals are led by recently-elected leader R. W. (Bobby) Bend.

Party standings at dissolution May 22 were Conservative 31, Liberal 13, NDP 12, Social Credit one.

Total seats in the house is unchanged, but this election is being fought on drastically changed constituency boundaries which have given urban areas nine new seats at the expense of rural representation.

Seven of the new seats are in greater Winnipeg, giving the city a total of 27. Brandon was split into east and west ridings and the northern town of Thompson was sliced from Churchill.

The campaign attracted 12 women candidates compared with five in 1966. In the Winnipeg constituency Fort Rouge it's an all-woman battle with Inez Trueman for the Conservatives, Jane Heffelfinger for the Liberals and Una Docter for the New Democrats.

Weir is being challenged for the second time in Minnesota by Liberal Donald McNabb, 35, who trailed in 1966 by 521 votes.

Bend is running in the Lakeside seat held by former Liberal premier Douglas Campbell for 47 years.

Schreyer is running in the new Winnipeg seat of Rossmore. He has represented parts of the area provincially and federally.

Blast Said Deliberate

FRASER LAKE (CP) — An explosion, which police said was deliberately set for "no apparent motive," blew open a drug store Wednesday and damaged two adjacent business buildings.

No injuries were reported in the 2 a.m. blast. Owner Fraser Keating said damage to stock and the rented drug store premises totals about $150,000.

Mr. Keating, former mayor of the community 100 miles west of Prince George, said he had no idea of motive. He had been in the store at 9 p.m. Tuesday and had seen nothing amiss.

Police and bank officials ruled out an attempt on the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch which abuts the drug store. The bank vault is against the wall away from the drug store.

The bank was closed all day pending inspection of structural damage. Walls of the drug store were buckled and blown out, throwing debris into the bank and a clothing store on the other side.

Home, Outbuildings Levelled by Blaze

A fire in Central Saanich Tuesday afternoon destroyed a house, a large storage shed and the ends of two greenhouses, causing an estimated $25,000 damage, according to fire department officials.

The house, owned by Dr. David Lott, 6309 Old East Road, was already engulfed in flames when the Central Saanich volunteer fire department arrived.

Dr. Lott, a retired veterinarian from Duncan, and his wife were at home when the fire started at about 1 p.m. They turned in the alarm.

Copter Wreck Under Probe

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Department of Transport investigators Wednesday inspected the wreckage of a helicopter that crashed in mining country Tuesday, killing one man and injuring two others.

Killed was Douglas William Borden Savage, 56, a prospector from Vancouver, who was on a flight over the Moose Valley area for Texada Mines and New Wellington Mines.

In fair condition in hospital here were Dr. A. C. Skerl of Vancouver, Texada's consulting geologist, and Ian Wright, 29, of Prince George, pilot for Northern Mountain Airlines.

The helicopter was over the Moose Valley area, 280 miles northwest of here, Tuesday afternoon when the pilot advised by radio that he had trouble.

The $58,000 Alpine J2A helicopter came down in a fiery crash near mining crews who were working in the valley.

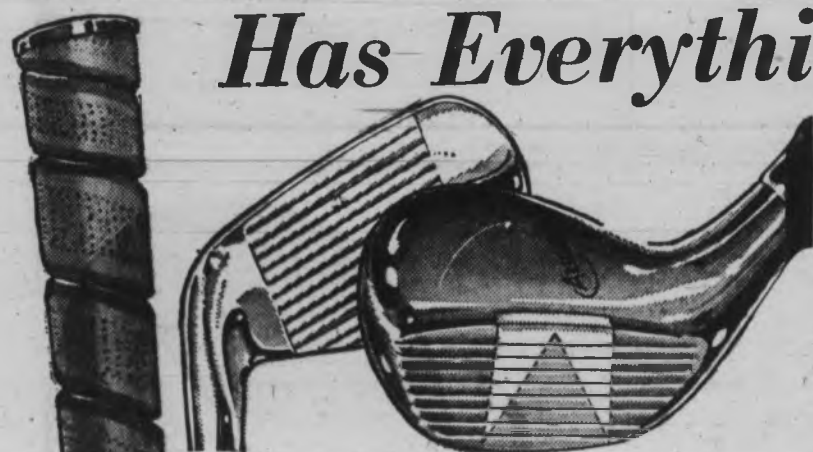

Dr. Skerl and Mr. Wright, who had been flying for Northern Mountain for a year, suffered face, chest and arm burns in the crash in mountain territory, not far from a small landing strip.

Latins Request Trade Reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Diplomats from 21 Latin American countries asked President Nixon Wednesday for wide-ranging reforms in U.S. trade policy to heal what they termed a "deep crisis" between the Americas.

Their proposals centred on elimination of tariffs on many Latin American exports, removal of restrictions on importation of U.S. foreign aid, and modification of policies that encourage American production of basic products that compete with important Latin American commodities.

Foreign Minister Gabriel Valdes of Chile handed the 6,000-word text of the recommendations to Nixon at the White House as chairman of the special commission on Latin American co-ordination, an independent organization which met last month at Vina Del Mar, Chile.

He and Washington-based ambassadors of the 21 nations met with Nixon, secretary of State William Rogers and Henry Kissinger, the president's national security affairs adviser.

The White House said Nixon told the diplomats he did not believe the rioting that marred New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's recent fact-finding mission to Latin America represented the feelings of most of its people.

East-West Link Sharp Goal

HELSINKI (CP-AP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp says that, because of her position between the two super-powers, Canada is anxious to work for an improvement in East-West relations.

For that reason, Sharp said on arrival in Finland Tuesday night, he hopes to hear as much as possible about a Finnish proposal for a preliminary conference on European security.

Sharp, on a five-country Scandinavian tour, arrived here from Norway where he told reporters that he would be willing to meet Communist Chinese diplomats. If they desired, to discuss Canadian recognition of the Peking government.

Finland has proposed that a preliminary conference be held here to discuss what would be negotiable at a European security conference such as proposed by Russia.

Sharp said the positions of Finland and Canada on the question of a security conference are similar. There was need for careful preparation.

Canada's position between the United States and the Soviet Union was part of the reason to further the relations between she was anxious to work for an improvement in East-West relations. A security conference and Foreign Minister Ahti Karjalainen during the day.

Conference

Wednesday that Trudeau and his federal delegation went into the meetings with a series of proposals for limiting federal spending powers, particularly in areas involving provincial jurisdiction.

Federal-provincial shared-cost programs would be one of the first areas affected under some of the federal proposals. Both federal and provincial officials have frequently expressed concern at the rising costs of these schemes.

A source said one particular federal proposal — which was tied in with other constitutional changes — would prevent federal spending in provincial areas without the unanimous consent of the provinces. There was also discussion on majority consent.

The prime minister said the results of the discussions will be made public eventually, but he would not predict when.

Even the agenda of this meeting was kept secret until the leaders met Wednesday and decided to release it to the press.

It read:

- Distribution of powers in the constitution: (a) the taxing powers (b) the spending powers.
- Constitutional aspects of regional disparities.
- Progress reports from committees of ministers.
- Programs of work for the constitutional review.
- Other business.

Bennett Returns Favor

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday night played host to visiting premiers by taking them to hear the Montreal Symphony play at the National Arts Centre.

Not to be outdone, Premier Bennett of B.C. invited Trudeau and the other nine premiers to attend a performance of The Ecstasy of Rita Joe at the centre tonight.

Rita Joe is the work of Sumner and playwright George Ryga and is being performed by the Vancouver Theatre Company.

General Didn't Say It

Ottawa bureau, Allard has informed the defence department that "I don't know what he (Mr. Stuebing) is talking about."

Jackson said Allard had added that he is "the builder, the architect of current plans to rebuild the armed forces, therefore I would not be talking against what I myself recommended to the government."

General Allard told the Canadian Press, according to Mr. Jackson, that Mr. Stuebing's statements attributed to him are nothing but "poppycock."

At the same General Allard disclosed that although he is due to retire in October, Defence Minister Cadieux has asked him "to stay on to work out new plans for the armed forces in an orderly way."

From Toronto, Stuebing insists that his report of Allard's remarks was accurate and that there were witnesses to the occasion in the persons of Brig. E. D. M. Leslie and Capt. Victor Keating.

In a dispatch from Nicosia, Cyprus, the newspaper quoted Allard as saying that the armed forces represent the equivalent of a Canadian city of 500,000 persons "when you add our dependents..."

"If one person complains in Ottawa about the way the government treats them every one jumps," the newspaper quotes the general as saying.

"Yet when someone tries to wreck our system or push us around nobody says a word."

The 55-year-old general, who is eligible to take his retirement leave in October, was interviewed while on the Mediterranean island to visit the Canadian contingent of the United Nations peacekeeping force there.

MOUTH SHUT

"They tell me to keep my mouth shut but I can't stand by and see the armed forces used as a pawn," the Telegram quotes Allard as saying.

Allard said Canada has the best army in the world "and it is made up entirely of volunteers," the newspaper says.

"If Canada throws away these professional skills, it will be her loss, not that of the men in the forces."

In a story Wednesday, Stuebing says:

"I understand why Gen. Allard's conversation with me would be viewed seriously in Ottawa... and I commented on its likely impact back home to some of those present."

"I wrote my report of that interview with full knowledge of its importance and I stand by what I wrote."

accounts, instead of the previous 5 1/2 per cent.

The Bank of Montreal also raised its chequing account rate to 3 1/2 per cent from 3 per cent and the Bank of Nova Scotia increased its interest on deposit certificates for two years or less to 7 from 6 per cent.

The Toronto-Dominion said it will pay 7 per cent for deposit receipts of up to one year.

The Royal and Montreal

savings interest increases are retroactive to June 1. The Toronto-Dominion's takes effect July 1.

Other rate increases take effect June 16.

Bankers said they were trying, like the Bank of Canada, to stem inflation and ease the tremendous pressure on borrowing by bringing their rates in line with those prevailing in the United States.

Several major U.S. banks raised their lending rates a full point Monday — to 8 1/2 per cent from 7 1/2 per cent, in a move to ease pressure on hard-pressed funds and brake inflation in the U.S.

Wednesday's rate increase in Canada sent the TSE's industrial index plunging by slightly more than four points, and wiped about $2,814,000,000 off the value of its 1,200 listed stocks.

It was the eighth consecutive day of decline for the TSE. Prices also dropped sharply on the Montreal and New York exchanges, with the industrial index off 2.72 at Montreal and the Dow Jones average down 7.31 at New York.

However Steiner said it is inevitable that capital would flow out of Canada unless interest rates here were made comparable with those in the U.S.

The prime rate is that charged to a bank's best customers.

"Businessmen who go to the bank next week for a loan will probably find they can't get it for less than 9 per cent," Steiner said. He said Toronto brokers will raise their interest rates by 1 per cent to 9 per cent on margin accounts, effective today.

However neither he nor other financial experts questions believed the drop would be drastic or long-term.

Steiner said that for the moment mortgages and bonds are more attractive than common stock.

Bond prices, which fell early Wednesday, moved upward at noon and the market was unchanged over the day.

Benson, who said Tuesday that higher interest rates in Canada were inevitable, was peppered with opposition questions in the Commons.

Treasury Man Contradicted

Wage-Price 'Fix' Denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House, contradicting treasury secretary David Kennedy, said Wednesday President Nixon had no intention of considering wage-price controls. Kennedy said Tuesday such controls would be considered among other alternatives as a means of controlling the economy if Congress rejects Nixon's request to extend the surtax beyond its June 30 expiration date.

But White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Wednesday that the administration has said before and he would reiterate that there were no plans to call for wage-price controls if a surtax extension is turned down.

Rep. Charles Vanik (D-Ohio), called Kennedy's statements "scare tactics." Other Capitol Hill observers interpreted them as an effort to underline the administration's insistence that an extension is necessary — an effort that failed to draw a favorable reaction, forcing the White House to disavow Kennedy's remarks.

Kennedy had told newsmen that wage-price controls were against the administration's policy and he personally opposed them, but nevertheless they would have to be considered if the surtax was not extended.

After Ziegler's disavowal Wednesday, a treasury spokesman said the secretary would have no reply, and added, "I don't see how they conflict with the administration's views."

Ziegler described Kennedy's remarks as "referring to some of the problems we will face if the surtax is not passed."

He again warned that an end to the surtax would "have serious national and international implications" and said Nixon "feels today the same way when he sent his (tax) message to Congress — that the surtax is vital in holding down inflation."

Speaker John McCormack said if the committee approves an extension, he would help get it through the House. "The continued threat of inflation and the international monetary situation in my opinion makes the extension necessary," he said.

Pre-Holiday Collection Likely Garbage Policy

Not making up for lost days, catch up for almost day, the committee decided to recommend that garbage collection be shunted ahead one day in those weeks in which holidays fall. The system is already in use in Victoria.

The works committee Tuesday night decided to recommend that garbage collection be shunted ahead one day in those weeks in which holidays fall. The system is already in use in Victoria.

The system would mean an extra day's garbage would pile up for the first collection after a holiday that the new collection plan went into effect. The extra volume could be more easily handled than trying to

Fishing Vote Due Today On Walkout

VANCOUVER (CP) — Results of a strike vote were expected today in a dispute between 1,000 shore workers in the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and the British Columbia fishing industry.

They rejected a mediation of fier's proposal a month ago and are seeking a raise of $1 an hour for tradesmen and 75 cents for general labor classifications.

In a second fishing dispute, UFAWU official said he didn't know when results of voting by 5,000 fishermen on prices offered by the industry for various types of salmon would be known.

The union has recommended rejection of the prices. A union official said he didn't know when a possible strike vote would be held if the fishermen reject the offer.

"Committees haven't gotten together yet to set the strike deadline, but it will probably be when we can hurt them (the companies) the most," the spokesman said.

Elsewhere in B.C. labor developments, promise of a bed-time snack or "mug-up" brought 400 loggers at the Franklin River division of MacMillan Ltd. on Vancouver Island back to work Wednesday after a one-day walkout.

During recent hot weather, loggers started work at dawn, finishing their shifts before the hottest part of the day and greatest fire hazard. They asked for a fourth meal a day to compensate.

Willing to Bargain

In the three-week oil workers' strike, local representatives of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union Wednesday sent a telegram to offices of the six struck companies saying the union is willing to bargain at any time with a committee of the six companies or just one.

The meeting would be under the chairmanship of "a competent, independent and impartial mediator," Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz of the B.C. Supreme Court was suggested.

A strike vote among 6,000 clerical, plant and traffic employees at B.C. Telephone Co. continued with the union saying it will conduct a rotating strike if the strike is approved.

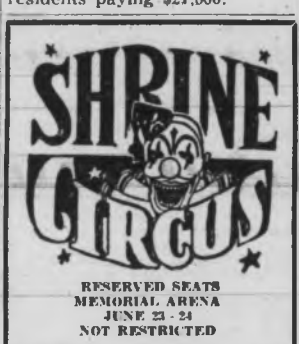

In the meatcutters and grocery clerks' lockout at 103 Lower Mainland supermarkets, Ray Haynes, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, accused the B.C. Mediation Commission of being unfair and called for its resignation.

He said the appointment of a mediation officer in separate dispute with the W. H. Malkin food wholesale firm, which prevents a strike or lockout, was "blatantly prejudiced in favor of the company."

He said the Retail Clerks Union on May 29 had asked for a mediation officer in its dispute with the 103 supermarkets but was refused. "Any claim to impartiality by the commission has been completely discredited."

Hydro Spreads

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority said electrical service will be extended by fall to Port Simpson and Mellakata, north of Prince Rupert. Cost will be about $565,000, with the 150 residents paying $27,000.

An experimental U.S. Navy submarine only 50 feet long is due to arrive at the Esquimalt graving dock this morning for a joint two-month research program with Defence Research Establishment Pacific.

The junior-size submarine is coming from Nanaimo on a railway flatcar after a week-long journey from Baltimore Md. It is based at Annapolis. The submarine, named USS

X-1, weighs in at 30 tons and is only eight feet in the beam. Painted a brilliant orange, it won't be missed by early-rising Victorians who happen to be about as it is hauled to its berth in Esquimalt.

Chief scientist of the joint program is Dr. H. L. Grant, who heads one of two marine physics departments at DREP in HMC Dockyard. Dr. Grant said Wednesday the program is concerned with "certain problems in the tracking of submerged submarines."

Manoeuvres will be carried out in Butte Inlet and Georgia Strait in company with the Canadian Naval Auxiliary Vessel Endeavour, which can be classed as a floating laboratory, and the submarine HMCS Rainbow, recently purchased from the U.S. Navy. Scientists from the U.S.

Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C., will be here for the research program, Dr. Grant said.

Location of the experimental sites was determined by their depth and sheltered nature.

"We will be able to simulate the operation of a full-size submarine under deep-sea conditions," he explained, "but we can be more accurate in our navigation because we will know at all times exactly where we are."

Travelling with the submarine is its skipper, Lieut. Paul Dix and two crew members, CPO Thomas Warren and Richard Peterson, electrician's mate, first class.

The executive officer, Lieut. Richard Daly, and four other crew members flew in from the east.

Lieut. Daly said three men were required to navigate the submarine and two passengers could be carried. The X-1 is the only vessel of its kind in the U.S. Navy, he said.

Lockup Death

Alcohol, Pills Blamed

Respiratory failure brought on by the combined effect of alcohol and barbiturates caused the death of Anthony Ranger in a cell in the Victoria jail May 30, a coroner's inquest was told Wednesday night.

St. Joseph's Hospital pathologist Dr. Garth Walther, who testified as to cause of death, said a spinal fracture disclosed in his autopsy was not, in his opinion, a factor in Ranger's death.

Ranger, 51, of Duncan, had been put in jail the night of May 29 charged with causing a disturbance while being drunk.

During close to three hours of testimony the jury was told:

● Ranger had been in a fight in the Churchill Hotel beer parlor the night before his death and was knocked out for a while.

● Because he was wearing a spinal collar, the police who arrested him took him to Royal Jubilee Hospital for a checkup to see if he was fit to be lodged in city cells.

● He was admitted to the lockup and checked every hour starting at midnight until 5 a.m., when another prisoner was brought in. At that time it was noticed Ranger had stopped breathing.

● He had been in veterans' hospitals a number of times since 1965 for treatment of overdoses of alcohol and barbiturates.

● When his body was taken to hospital for an autopsy, two vials, one containing 168 phenobarbital tablets and the second containing 15 tuinal tablets, were found in his clothes.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre adjourned the case until June 19.

They'll Skip Honeymoon Trip

Widow Mrs. Annie Graves, 83, and widower Dave Thompson, 84, are "going to go right home and set up housekeeping" at 1067 Banks after their wedding June 21 in Metropolitan United Church. After bridal shower festivities Wednesday, Mr. Thompson happily complained like most bridegrooms, "I wish it was over." Shower was given by Mrs. Sayde Ritchie, who will be matron of honor. Guests included Mr. Thompson's daughter, Mrs. Ray Passmore; daughter-in-law, Mrs. Dave Thompson Jr., and best man, Charles Laferty. "We've known each other 50 years," Mr. Thompson said.—(William A. Boucher)

Berry Pickers' Plight Has Labor Buffaloed

By DON COLLINS

Behind the scenes these days, some of Victoria's labor leaders are searching for a way to offer concrete assistance to the berry pickers of Saanich Peninsula.

They were said Wednesday to be giving serious thought to a specific course of action. But there has been no confirmation.

Meanwhile, they have said again this year — as they did last year — that they consider the working conditions and payrate for the berry pickers to be "deplorable."

Because of circumstances, however, labor has not been able to take a more militant stand, Victoria Labor Council president Jack Groves said Wednesday.

Some critics have accused labor of doing more for the striking grape pickers of California by going all out to support a boycott of the grapes.

Mr. Groves said a boycott of Saanich Peninsula berries is out of the question because such action would hurt some of the small farmers with whom labor has no argument.

Also out of the question, for the time being at least, is any thought of bringing the berry pickers into a union.

"It is practically impossible to organize these people because they are an ever-changing group," Mr. Groves said.

Many are classed as children and as such are too young. And for many others berry-picking is only a short-term job.

In the past, labor in B.C. has tried to tackle the situation through a barrage of briefs to the provincial government.

"But we have got nowhere," Mr. Groves said.

Legislation, though, isn't the answer alone, he said.

"You've also got to improve the position of the smaller farmer."

Most of labor's complaints

have been aimed at the bigger growers, he said.

Mr. Groves said labor is concerned with payment rates that provide four and five cents per pound of berries picked, lack of washroom facilities and the use of child labor.

Steel Cargo for Pipeline

By PAT MURPHY

The possibility of a water crisis this summer was foreseen Wednesday at a special meeting of the board of the Greater Victoria Water District.

The likelihood of an emergency hinges on the arrival of 275 tons of steel plate from Australia and the ability of Victoria Machinery Depot to turn the metal into 3,400 feet of 48-inch pipe.

Chief Commissioner Ronald

Upward told members of the board Wednesday that the early onslaught of hot weather and the possibility that a hot, dry summer was in the offing made him reluctant to gamble that the steel would arrive, the pipe be made or the weather change.

Accordingly, he urged that the board consider the purchase and installation of a wood stove pipe from the main water supply, Sooke Lake, to the five-mile tunnel which is designed to triple Victoria's water delivery.

The tunnel, which is still in the process of being cement-lined, would be flushed out and put into use if the weather remained hot and dry.

Manager of Victoria Machinery Depot H. W. Nelson was present at the meeting.

LABOR TROUBLES

He said that his company would have been able to fulfill its contract with the water district and deliver the pipe by July 8 if delivery of the steel was made as arranged.

However, Mr. Nelson said, labor troubles intervened in Australia and the ship carrying the steel didn't get away on time.

The vessel left Australia on April 20, Mr. Nelson said, and was scheduled to dock in Vancouver no later than July 27.

AIM AT SPEED

Arrangements had been made to offload the steel to a barge and bring it directly to Victoria. Every effort would be made, the manager said, to facilitate the job once the steel arrived.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen were in agreement on the question of VMD responsibility in the matter and felt that any extra cost to the water district should be borne by VMD or its bonding company.

"I just can't see us taking any other attitude with our responsibility to the people of the district," Mayor Stephen said.

NAME OF GAME

Mayor Curtis agreed. "I agree that the name of the game is get the pipe in operation and avert an emergency but, on the other hand, when we're dealing with a firm and delivery is promised—that's it," Mayor Curtis said.

Mr. Upward pointed out several times during the meeting that a period of rainfall would solve the whole problem and make extraordinary measures unnecessary.

On that basis the board rejected the stove pipe and plan and placed the onus on VMD to make good any loss which would be suffered by the water district because of failure to deliver the 48-inch pipe on time.

UNACCEPTABLE

Chairman of the board Mayor Stephen said that there was a storage supply of about two billion gallons in the Goldstream watershed.

"However, I am informed that up to this point we have used about 400 million gallons of that and if the present usage rate continues we shall be down to practically zero in August."

"We can justify pressure difficulties to the people," the mayor added, "but it would be quite unacceptable to tell them that we cannot deliver water."

Request Came After Budget Set

Saanich Refuses Library Blame

Saanich council's representative on the Greater Victoria Library board said Wednesday his municipality could not be blamed for drastic cuts made in the library's book budget.

Ald. Alan Newberry was discussing the board's reduction of the book budget for this year by four fifths.

"The use of 1966 census figures is written into the library agreement," he said, "which has been signed by all the participating municipalities. Therefore, it's not as if Saanich were inflicting this policy upon the library board. It's an integral part of the agreement."

The board had asked that 1968 census figures be used and four municipalities agreed but Saanich did not.

"We must remember," Ald. Newberry continued, "that Saanich has grown so much in relation to the other municipalities that basically this was asking Saanich to pick up a greater share than the others, an extra $16,000."

"This request came after Saanich had set its budget and its mill rate."

BUDGET INCREASE

Acting Mayor Leslie Passmore pointed out that Saanich, although not giving as much to the library as the board had sought, increased its library budget by about $35,000 this year.

"As far as I can see, the library is in the position that many of our departments are in," he said. "They'd like more money but, with the increased taxation which is going to come about, we feel that the library has to curtail the amount it will get. In the same way as some of our departments. It's just as simple as that."

OTHER CUTS

"It's just a case of trying to keep the mill rate down to as low a level as possible without unduly restricting services."

Ald. William Noel said Saanich had to turn down a fire department request for additional men, cut the road program, drainage "and many other public works programs. There was no alternative," he added.

There was no alternative," he added.

Rocks Delay Trip to Sooke

Fishing trawler Odin ran onto rocks off Oak Bay golf links Wednesday evening, staying about two hours until rising tide and another trawler helped her off. Scene was visited by several curious

Writers Honor Hampson

MONTREAL (CP) — Ted Hampson, 32, centre and captain of Oakland Seals, Wednesday was named the 1969 winner of the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy by the National Hockey League Writers' Association.

Instituted in 1968, the award goes to the NHL player who best exemplifies the qualities of perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey.

Jim Roberts of St. Louis, Jean Ratell of New York, Ed Westfall of Boston and Rod Gilbert of New York followed Hampson in the voting in which 23 players were mentioned.

Expansion Decision Set for June 25

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League will decide at a New York meeting June 25 whether or not it will expand by two teams for the 1970-71 season.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said Wednesday night that the league board of governors already had "quite extensive plans to cover as many factors as possible that are predictable before expansion."

He said the formal decision will be made in New York and "we will hopefully have all the ground rules worked out by that time."

Campbell said the league currently has active applications for franchises from Vancouver and Baltimore and have had inquiries from Cleveland and Buffalo.

Stocking of the new teams, if admitted, will be difficult, Campbell said.

"But they (the owners) can't have expansion and hope it will be a good sale and not give anything up for the money they get," he added.

"Last time the expansion teams had to get 120 players from six teams, now they would have to get 40 from 12," Campbell said.

The NHL president admits re-alignment of the two divisions will become necessary if the expansion moves go through.

Possible re-alignment could see Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks move into a West Division setup with Vancouver, if the west coast city is admitted, while Philadelphia Flyers and Pittsburgh Penguins could possible move into the East Division as replacements, along with a new Eastern applicant.

A unanimous vote on the re-alignment phase is required by the league governors.

Owner-Player Meeting Set

Earlier Wednesday the issue of the reserve clause was shunted along with other disputed points to a Toronto meeting July 15-16 by the owner-player representatives.

Charles Mulcahy of Boston Bruins, representing the owners, and Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association, announced the future meeting in a joint statement.

The players have been seeking abolition of the reserve clause, which binds them to one club until sold or traded in favor of the option clause used in football contracts.

Under the option clause, a player plays out the final year of his contract, after previously notifying the team, at a reduced salary and then is free to make a deal for his services with another club.

One thing the two sides did agree on was a formula by which any salary dispute concerning a protected player will be submitted for arbitration by an Aug. 21 deadline and a decision reached by Sept. 5 so all protected players would be signed before the training camp open.

The statement said the owners recognized the shortcomings of the current method of arbitration, whereby league president Clarence Campbell is sole referee.

The owners were prepared to negotiate a suitable alternative with a tripartite panel having been suggested and studied as an alternative.

World Hockey Discussed

Another step to future accord was made in the field of international hockey games.

Before any positive action is taken in international competition by the professionals, a meeting will have to be arranged between the two groups — the players association and the owners council — to decide what format will be followed.

International competition is a hot subject with both sides because of talk that the pros will help stock Canada's national entry in the next world tournament here next year.

The joint statement said the door is open for such an arrangement, but both owners and players must fully agree on whether a Canadian team would be helped by one NHL club or an all-star aggregation representing the league.

Canadiens, Hawks Each Lose Three But Save Top Unprotected Players

MONTREAL (CP) — The top and bottom teams in the National Hockey League's East Division—Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks—each lost three players in the annual intra-league draft Wednesday.

However, both clubs managed to recover players they had been unable to protect on their pre-draft lists of two goalkeepers and 14 skaters.

Canadiens gave up forward Richard Sentes, who played with Cleveland Barons of the American League last season, to Minnesota North Stars.

LOSE ESPOSITO

They lost goalie Tony Esposito, who played part-time with Montreal last year, to Chicago and defenceman Larry Hillman to Philadelphia Flyers.

All the moves affecting Canadiens came in the first round.

But Montreal managed to fill with Dick Duff, the veteran left winger who performed so well for them in the recent Stanley Cup playoffs, and young Peter Mahovich, a utility forward recently acquired from Detroit Red Wings.

Both players had been left unprotected.

In addition the Canadiens acquired forward Larry Mickey from Toronto Maple Leafs, forward Jean-Guy Gendron from Philadelphia and goalie Jack Norris from Chicago.

Chicago, in addition to drafting Esposito from Montreal, also saved forward Eric Nesterenko who had been left unprotected and picked up forwards Lou Angotti from St. Louis Blues and Howie Menard from Los Angeles Kings.

Chicago lost defenceman Matt Ravlich to Detroit and centre Andre Boudrias to St. Louis in the first round and forward Wayne Maki to the Blues in the third round.

LEAFS KEEP SMITH

The Leafs hadn't bothered to protect veteran right winger Floyd Smith, but retained him as a fill on their protected list after losing Mickey to Montreal.

Toronto also drafted goaltender Marv Edwards from Pittsburgh and lost Al Smith to the Penguins, who took the netminder instead of the $30,000.

Four teams—the West Division Kings and Oakland Seals and the East Division New York Rangers and Boston Bruins—passed through all four draft rounds.

However, the Bruins, runner-up to Canadiens last season, lost young left wingers Glen Sather and Grant Erickson. Sather went to Pittsburgh in the first round and Erickson to Minnesota in the second round.

Detroit made one selection — Ravlich — and passed on the following rounds.

The Wings did manage to fill with Poul Popiel but lost veteran left winger Dean Prentice to Pittsburgh in the second round.

DRAFTED THREE

Minnesota drafted three players. In addition to Sentes and Erickson they took Charlie Burns, a veteran forward, from Pittsburgh.

The draft in detail:

Detroit drafted defenceman Matt Ravlich from Chicago and dropped Kent Douglas; Chicago filled with Eric Nesterenko and passed on Douglas.

No more claims could be made against Montreal after its three losses.

Oakland passed.

Toronto claimed goalie Marv Edwards from Pittsburgh and dropped netminder Al Smith; Pittsburgh filled with Nick Harbaruk; Pittsburgh purchased Smith; New York passed.

Nancy to U.S. Hall of Fame

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — Five Canadians and five Americans have been named to join 20 other skiers in the National Ski Hall of Fame in Ishpeming, Mich.

Leading the list are Nancy Greene Kaine of Rossland, B.C., 26, Canada's Olympic gold medalist in the 1968

Winter Games, and John Bower, 28, America's cross-country and Nordic champion. Berry said both Bower and Mrs. Kaine had the age limit of 40 years waived because of "pre-eminence and skill."

Other Canadians on the team are Ernie McCulloch of Mont Tremblant and Trois-Rivières, Que., named skier of the half-century; the skiing Wurtels twins, Rhonda and Rhoda of Montreal; and Herman Smith-Johansen, a cross-country skier and engineer who laid out the ski trails at Stowe, Vt.

Staff Smythe Blames Imlach For Loss of Three Players

TORONTO (CP) — The Star and Telegram say that president Stafford Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs has blamed former manager-coach Punch Imlach for the loss of three minor league players in Tuesday's National Hockey League Inter-league draft at Montreal.

The newspapers both quote Smythe as saying:

"We might not have lost those three players if it had not been for Imlach's conflict of interest."

He was referring to reports that Imlach, fired as coach and general manager of the Leafs earlier this spring, owns a portion of the Vancouver team.

The newspapers quote Imlach as saying that Sly was on the roster of Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League when the club was sold for $400,000 in 1966.

The Rochester club had been sold by the Maple Leafs and 19 players were included in the transaction.

"If Smythe had taken the trouble to read the contract of the sale before he signed it, he would have realized why those players belong to Vancouver, which had purchased the Rochester team," Imlach is quoted.

General manager Joe Crozier of the Canucks said:

"I put Barlow and Sly on Leafs' reserve list last Nov. 30 as a favor to the Toronto team so they could be used in case of an emergency created by injury. If I hadn't done so, Leafs would have had only their development club of Tulsa for protection."

"The fact that they had been shifted from our list to Leafs' reserve list made them eligible for that draft and that's why we lost them."

"Smythe just doesn't know what he's talking about."

Alcindor Sued for $1,000,000

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Lew Alcindor, the University of California at Los Angeles' three-time basketball All-American, was sued for $1,000,000 in damages Wednesday in Santa Monica superior court by Dennis Grey of the Los Angeles Stars.

The suit also named the National Basketball Association and the Milwaukee Bucks as defendants.

The suit stems from an incident last Saturday in which Grey, a six-foot-eight centre for the American Basketball Association Stars, suffered a broken jaw when he was punched by the seven-foot-one Alcindor during a pickup basketball game at Hamilton High School.

Grey's jaw was broken in two places. He underwent surgery Sunday to repair the injury.

Two Weeks Built Into Six Months

A 21-year-old man was sentenced Wednesday to six months in prison after pleading guilty in Central Magistrate's Court to a charge of escaping lawful custody.

Allan S. Johnson of Duncan was arrested Monday — almost five months after he had escaped from Wilkinson Road Jail.

Seattle Fire Chief Nabs Wanted Man

SEATTLE (AP) — A man sought by the FBI in many parts of the U.S. was under arrest here Wednesday — tripped up by the alertness of the fire chief to whom he had posed as a London reporter with a phony news service.

Oscar Charles Palmer, 30, originally from Phoenix, Ariz., was taken into custody by the FBI as he stepped from the Seattle fire boat Alki after it gave a water salute to a coast guard cutter returning from Vietnam.

Fire Chief Gordon Vickery said Palmer called him Monday, purportedly from Florida, to arrange a visit to the department. Palmer said he had been assigned by the Contimental News Service to develop a photo-story comparing fire protection in the U.S. with that of Great Britain.

The National Fire Protection Association, Palmer said, referred him to Seattle.

Vickery said "something didn't ring right" so he called London and found there was no Continental News Service, then called Boston and was told the national fire protection service had referred no one here.

The fire chief brought in the FBI, which provided identifying pictures and made the arrest.

The FBI said Palmer was wanted on a federal warrant from Greensboro, N.C., on a charge of taking a stolen car across state lines.

Deaths on Roads Show Hefty Drop

B.C. drivers are becoming more safety conscious. Attorney General Leslie Peterson said Wednesday, citing as proof of his statement figures which showed a 28-per-cent decrease in highway deaths in the province.

During the first five months of the year there were 146 highway deaths compared with 219 deaths on highways and streets in the province during the same period last year. For the month of May there was a 37.5-per-cent drop in highway deaths, from 56 in 1968 to 35.

Mr. Peterson said the statistics were most encouraging and indicated the government's new driver licence control programs were helping reduce the severity of motor vehicle accidents.

The programs are a mandatory one-month suspension for drivers convicted of impaired or drunken driving, 24-hour suspension without charge for borderline drinking drivers, and the demerit system on Vancouver Island, which appears to be "having a ruboff effect in other parts of the province."

Extradition Must Come First

Crux Partner Remanded

VANCOUVER (CP) — Margaret Harling, law partner of A. G. Duncan Crux, former president of Commonwealth Trust Co., was remanded Wednesday for three weeks on nine charges of fraud and theft.

Mrs. Harling, 55, is free on $15,000 bail. She faces several charges jointly with Crux, who is free on $75,000 bail in Nassau facing 24 charges involving about $1,000,000 in cash and securities.

The crown has said it will not proceed with the charges against Mrs. Harling, laid after seven months investigation into affairs of Commonwealth Group companies, until Crux is returned to Canada.

An ex parte hearing, first step in B.C. government moves to have Crux extradited, continued here Wednesday. The transcript will be sent to Bahamian officials for a ruling on extradition.

Donald Taylor, a bank accountant, told the hearing Tuesday that almost $1,000,000 was transferred to foreign banks at about the time Crux directed purchase of $715,000 in securities.

Mr. Taylor said the money was drawn from the account of Commonwealth Investors Syndicate last October. Some $310,000 went to a bank in Nassau and $590,000 (U.S.) to a Crux bank account in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The hearing before Magistrate Harvey Sedgewick started with evidence related to charges that Crux and Mrs. Harling defrauded three companies of securities worth about $715,000.

A warrant still is out for the arrest of Cornelius Povillet, also named in several of the 24 charges. Police in Vancouver said he was last heard of in Paris.

Police Cleared In Attack Case

CHICAGO (AP) — Three Chicago policemen were acquitted Wednesday of charges that they beat a newspaper reporter during street violence that accompanied the Democratic national convention last August.

The trial was conducted on an indictment that charged that the beating described by the reporter was a violation of his constitutional rights.

The police sergeant and two patrolmen were the first of 17 persons indicted as a result of convention disorders to be tried. The others are five policemen, eight demonstrators and a broadcasting company employee.

Acquitted were Sgt. George Jurich, 36, and patrolmen Vincent D'Amico, 23, and Edward Becht, 28. They were accused of clubbing John O. Linstead, 28, a reporter for the Chicago Daily News.

Subject of Teasing Shoots Six, Himself

RISEING CITY, Neb. (UPI) — a former employee, apparently disgruntled because of teasing by fellow workers, entered the Farmers Grain Co-op elevator Wednesday and shot and wounded six persons. He then wounded himself.

The gunman, who used a .22-calibre automatic rifle, was identified as Irvin "Shorty" Ostrander, about 60, who had quit his job at the elevator last Saturday.

Ostrander brushed aside town policeman Veri Winchester when the officer tried to stop him after he had wounded four persons.

"I'm going to finish the job first," Winchester quoted Ostrander. After he had wounded himself and two more victims, Ostrander said: "I'm ready to go now. I got the job done."

The policemen quoted Ostrander as saying, "They've been giving me a bad time there."

Former Manager Faces Theft Trial

CALGARY (CP) — A former Canada Safeway Ltd. store manager Tuesday was committed for trial on a charge of theft.

Gerald Charles Dunsmaur, 27, of Calgary, was charged last March after a routine in-store audit showed $12,034.09 missing from a southeast Calgary Safeway store's cheque-cashing account.

George Samson, a controller for Canada Safeway, told Dunsmaur's preliminary hearing that cheques totalling the amount missing were found in a deposit bag for an account used by the store to cash customer cheques. Samson said officials became suspicious when they noticed the signatures on 73 of the cheques in the account. He said the majority of the cheques were signed by Dunsmaur.

Norman Knebel, area manager for Canada Safeway, told magistrate's court that Dunsmaur was "one of our best managers. We used him as an example several times."

Hover Bug Bites Hard

By JUDY JENKINS

He got bit by the "hover bug" and 4½ years. $5,000 and 16,000 rivets later, Robert Howard of 730 Pemberton has a hovercraft.

The craft has been on display at the Mayfair Mall since Mr. Howard completed it about a week ago.

"I haven't really had a chance to try it out," he said. "I'm not in any hurry."

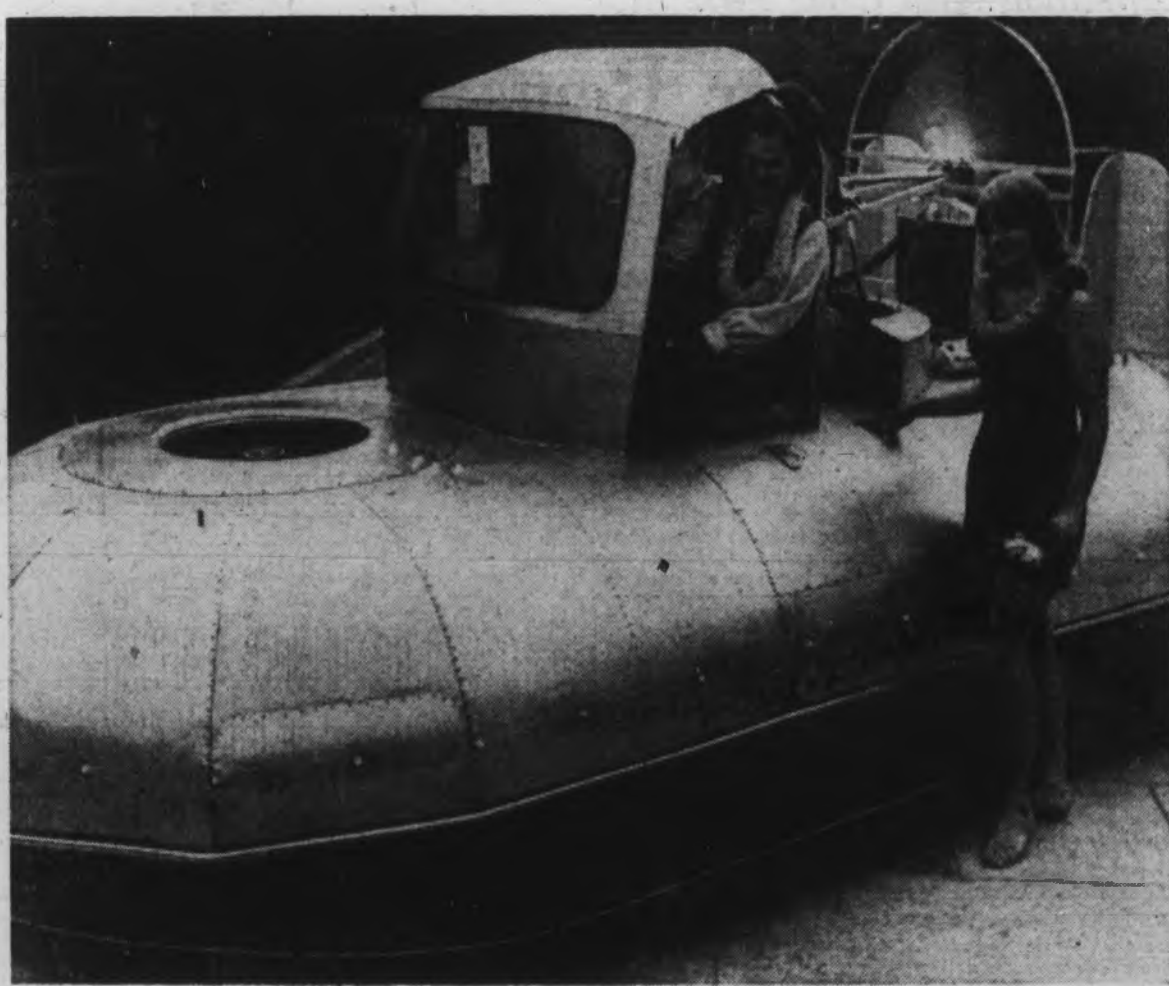

He hasn't tried the craft on water yet, although it floats, but feels it may need bigger propeller blades to get any speed on the water.

The machine is powered by a four-cylinder, 60 h.p. Volvo motor using two 36-inch, 12-blade fans for lift and a 36-inch, four-blade, variable-pitch propeller for drive.

The biggest problem in designing and building a hovercraft is that you have to have a "try-out attitude," Mr. Howard said.

Critical factors are the weight distribution and the design of the "skirt" that surrounds the air cushion, he explained. He has one such skirt at home that can't be used because it just didn't work.

The one now used on his craft is an "inflated bag much like a life raft upside down." It has 106 air chutes sewed around the outside of the skirt that force the air around the sides and under the skirt.

Checking craft are Astrid Boojars, 472 Burnside, and Dianna Hornfeldt, 3232 Cook

The body of the craft is made of sheet aluminum and has a thin plexiglass windshield. The design is his own — "You can get ideas, but you have to adapt them to the size and weight of the particular craft," he said.

He compared getting the passenger weight in exactly the right place to "setting a sheet of plywood on 1,000 marbles."

"This is a hobby, not a commercial thing. I have proven the point to myself that I can design it and that it works," Mr. Howard said. He plans to use the craft for fishing and water sports.

For the person who might like to build a hovercraft, Mr. Howard suggests the weight should be kept "as light as possible. And makes drawings or sketches so you don't have to duplicate your work."

The idea was a "very, very fascinating thing to contemplate," he said. And he is sure that hovercraft have a "great future."

FM Radio's Use Urged To Fill Education Gap

MONTREAL (CP) — Peter Kosick of Burnaby, B.C., told the Canadian Radio-Television Commission Wednesday that the present education gap can be bridged by an increased use of FM radio for educational purposes.

Kosick, who identified himself as a researcher in educational radio and a commercial AM broadcaster, said that students today are six to eight years ahead of their parents in education and radio isn't keeping up.

Using AM radio as a "springboard," FM radio could become an outlet for the large body of "voiceless, responsible students," Kosick said.

His remarks were made during the second day of the CRTC hearings taken up until early Wednesday afternoon with submissions by various groups on the role of FM radio in Canada.

He added that there was a great area of possible expansion in present broadcasting outlets. The question was how to teach people how to communicate via the broadcasting medium.

His opinion was that people are actively looking for involvement and will take advantage of the facilities offered by educational FM radio.

Liquor Day Well Stocked

The royal commission on liquor legislation will come up against a wide range of opinion when it holds sittings in Victoria Monday and Tuesday.

By Wednesday, seven briefs had been scheduled for the partially-completed agenda.

The commission is holding a five-day session in Vancouver this week. A sitting of at least one day is planned for Nanaimo with a possibility of other sittings in the Interior.

ON ALCOHOLISM

Briefs to be dealt with by the commission Monday are from the Greater Victoria Association on Alcoholism, Mrs. Janet Rogers, Robert Reeds, Mrs. George Wheaton and Ray Haynes, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

An employee of the commission said Mrs. Rogers is a member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, but that her brief is listed as an independent effort. Mr. Reeds is described as a food consultant entering a brief on behalf of himself and The Barn, a Vancouver nightspot.

LABOR'S BEHALF

Mrs. Wheaton's brief also falls into the independent category, while Mr. Haynes is acting on behalf of the labor federation.

Scheduled for Tuesday are briefs from Percy Criddle of the Glen Meadows Golf and Country Club near Sidney and the Vancouver Jaycees. The few Vancouver briefs scheduled were not prepared in time to come before this week's sittings, the commission employee said.

Banking Boosts Harmful

Much of the blame for the inflationary trend in Canada lies with the country's banks, Victoria Labor Council president Jack Groves said Wednesday.

Of the latest increase in prime lending interest rates, he said: "It can be compared to putting the brakes from a Model T Ford on a souped-up Cadillac—either they lock and cause an accident, or they don't work and it runs away on you."

BANK PICKETED

On Monday, Mr. Groves and other labor council officers picketed the Toronto-Dominion Bank at Fort and Douglas to protest an increase in rates from 7½ to 7¾ per cent.

The same day U.S. banks announced a full 1-per-cent increase to 8½ per cent and Wednesday other Canadian banks hiked their rates to 8 per cent. Toronto-Dominion remained ahead by setting its figure at 8¼ per cent.

LARGE PROFITS

Mr. Groves said the banks are showing extremely large profits which have continued to climb with the interest rates.

"If they (the federal government) say higher interest rates help to fight inflation and the profits continue to climb, then just how do they think this is going to help?" he asked.

At Library

Southern Flavor Digested

At first glance, it seems as if the Victoria Public Library's reference department isn't sure what country Victoria belongs to.

A librarian explained the difference between Canadian and American editions of the same magazine is that each is slanted to the interests of its own particular audience.

She then admitted the library subscribes to only the American edition of The Reader's Digest.

Reference department supervisor, Mrs. Janet Pearson, had the answer however.

INDEX EDITION

"The American edition is the one that's indexed in the Reader's Guide," she explained.

"We used to get the Canadian edition and were always having problems with people finding articles listed in the Guide that weren't in the magazines."

"There's another problem with the Canadian editions of magazines like Time because their articles are on different pages and it makes it hard for us to locate them."

Mrs. Pearson said she usually brings her own copy of the Canadian edition of Reader's Digest from home so it will be available to those who need it.

"I haven't brought them for a few months though," she said. "I'll start again this month."

Drug Case Hearing Adjourned

A preliminary hearing in Central Magistrate's Court Wednesday, involving a charge of possession of narcotics for trafficking against Brock D. Flett, 21, of 322 Beckley, was adjourned until Tuesday.

The hearing was told that four packages containing a plant-like substance were found when a car was searched at about 11:15 p.m. May 4 in front of 4260 Glenford.

The packages were hidden behind the panel of the front passenger door.

Wee Pipers At Least 9

The Esquimalt Legion's boys' pipe band is offering free bagpipe lessons and uniforms to any boy between nine and 11 years of age interested in joining the band.

A special meeting of boys interested, who must be accompanied by at least one parent will be held at 6:30 p.m. Monday in Jubilee Hall. Age is the only membership restriction.

Draw Winners

Mr. and Mrs. W. McHugh, 426 Powell, Tuesday won a trip for two to Harrison Hot Springs in a drawing held by Victoria Optimist Club. Other prizes were won by Mrs. M. McDermott, 240 Cook and Mrs. S. MacLean, 4049 Saanich Road. Proceeds from the drawing went toward operation of club's school bus for deaf children.

Saanich Trustees Oppose Building Delays

Board Seeks 'Some' Self-Rule

The Saanich school board wants the education department to return at least some autonomy to local school boards.

In a resolution passed Monday which is to be presented to the B.C. School Trustees Association convention next fall, the board asked that procedures for building applications be changed.

"Right now we have to apply so often; first it's for approval in principle, then sketches, and on and on," said trustee Jack Armstrong.

"This just holds up our building programs."

The board also wants the Public Schools Act amended to permit districts with 25 or more teaching units to hire their own superintendent of schools, subject to departmental approval.

"Right now, the superintendent is hired by the department and remains, essentially, its employee," said Mr. Armstrong.

The final section of the resolution urged that the department give local school boards and the public a chance to plan the elementary and secondary school courses of study.

"Right now, most boards feel the trustees have been shut off from the planning of curricula," he said. "But we're the ones who are in touch with the public, so we feel we should be the ones to help set the courses."

In other business the board rejected a proposal from the Vancouver Island branch of the B.C. Trustee Association calling for hiring of a permanent secretary-treasurer for the branch.

The post would have been the first appointment of its kind in the province.

"We didn't see the need for a position of this sort at this time," said Mr. Armstrong.

"We thought it would be a needless expense of little value to this district in particular because tax structures and educational needs and philosophies vary so greatly throughout the Island."

One board member suggested the need for such an appointment came under the heading of empire-building.

The board decided it would continue to negotiate salaries directly with its teachers.

"Our board has been under some pressure recently from the branch association to adopt zonal bargaining instead," said Mr. Armstrong.

"Under this procedure, one or more professional negotiators would carry on bargaining for several districts."

He said the Saanich board was the only one in the southern Vancouver Island area to negotiate directly with its own teachers last year.

The board endorsed a resolution from School District 61 urging the education minister to allow each district to consider a second year of probation for teachers without having to apply to the superintendent of education and to be able to review and renew all teaching appointments every five years.

The objectives for education in the district proposed by the liaison group between the board and teachers were adopted in principle and will be available to the public within two weeks.

It was noted School District 63 (Saanich) will celebrate its centennial on June 25. The day will be observed, but no definite plans have been announced.

It Could Come to Pass

Alfalfa and Worms—Rare

OTTAWA (CP) — Even for the truly ravenous the thought of sinking teeth into a thick, juicy, blue-ribbon soybean isn't too tantalizing.

But 10 years from now gourmets might have much more respect for the bean and its fellow vegetable proteins, an American food expert told the Canadian Institute of Food Technology Wednesday.

Dr. A. D. Odell, director of special programs for General Mills Inc. in Minneapolis, outlined the corporation's success within the last few years in the meat substitute market.

By "wet spinning" vegetable proteins such as the soybean to produce digestible monofilaments, the corporation has been able to produce the texture base for "analogues" of such products as beef, poultry and seafoods.

The monofilaments are blended with fats, flavors and other components, he said, to produce a substitute which looks and tastes like meat and which provides suitable nutritional value.

Dr. Odell said the meat analogues are already accounting for $10,000,000 in annual sales in the United States — a figure he estimated would reach $2,000,000,000 within 10 years, which would be five per cent of the traditional meat market. Dr. Odell said new methods make it probable that a nutritious product could be marketed consisting of a blend of "alfalfa, earthworms, orchids and zebra tails." But he felt this might be "pre-mature" for today's market.

Consumers Seek Improvement

Labels, Packaging Rapped

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada Wednesday voted to ask the consumer affairs department for improved and consistent packaging and labelling standards.

More than 100 delegates to the association's 22nd annual meeting here strongly favored such action. They say there are various deficiencies in packaging and labelling standards in Canada as well as deficiencies in the information content of labels.

Representatives of food processors and grocery distributors attending the meeting as observers expressed support for the association's pledge to urge their provincial members to press for complementary, uniform provincial legislation in the field.

Elmer Banting of Ottawa, representing the Canadian Food Processors' Association, said the provincial problem is greater than people realize because marketing comes under provincial jurisdiction.

Bernard Turcot of Montreal, representing the Canadian Grocery Distributors' Institute, said his organization has been pressing the Quebec government to "get their labelling laws in line with Ottawa."

Gordon Osbaldeston, assistant deputy minister of the consumer affairs department, said discussions are going on about a possible over-all packaging and labelling act which would apply to all goods.

The consumers' association also want non-returnable glass beverage bottles prohibited from retail sale. The delegates voted to ask the consumer affairs department to consider legislation to ban the bottles at the next meeting of federal and provincial officials.

The association says the bottles cause litter and drinks in non-returnable bottles are more expensive than in returnable containers but, in many food chains, the consumer has no choice but to buy them.

The consumers' association also passed resolutions asking for federal legislation on grading side bacon and establishment of grade standards based on flavor, color, texture and oil content for all canned salmon.

Despite some discussion on the terms and practicality of the proposal, association delegates voted in favor of a resolution to urge food processors to adopt the use of an indicator which would tip off consumers if frozen foods had undergone some abuse.

Wholesale Prices Rocket in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big jump in food prices pushed the United States government's wholesale price index up eight-tenths of 1 per cent in May, the bureau of labor statistics reported Tuesday.

Farm product prices rose 4.6 per cent and processed foods and feeds were up 1.8 per cent in May.

"This is an unusually sharp increase," a spokesman reported. The other major sector of the wholesale index — industrial raw materials — rose one-tenth of 1 per cent.

The over-all rise brought the wholesale index to 112.8. This means it cost $112.80 last month to buy what would have been $100 worth of wholesale goods during the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

Major price increases included 18.5 per cent for fruits and vegetables, 8.1 per cent for livestock and 6.1 per cent for processed meats, poultry and fish.

Royal Lake Off Limits

LONDON (CP) — An audacious anglers' club wrote to Prince Philip asking if it could fish the lake in the grounds of Buckingham Palace, but its request was turned down. "We know that the duke is a good sport, so we thought this would be a good idea," said a member. But a palace spokesman said he didn't think there are any fish in the ornamental lake.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm engaged to marry a great gal, age 22, sweet, peppy, smart, and she has plenty going for her. Rosemary is beautiful and built. Take my word for it, Ann, she doesn't have to go to extremes to get people to notice her. And this is what I'm writing about.

Rosemary bought one of those up-to-the-minute dresses with the material cut out here and there about eight inches. (I don't know how to describe it.) She wears a flesh-colored body stocking underneath her dress so of course it looks like you are seeing her bare skin.

Whenever Rosemary wears that dress everyone does a double take. I feel like I'm with a naked dame. It's very embarrassing.

'You Do and Should'

Do I have the right to tell my fiancée I will not take her out in that dress again? Doubtful, Thomas.

Dear Tom: You do and you should and I hope you will.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son inherited a valuable library from his grandfather who was a United States senator. The library was not large — approximately 250 books, but it contained many fine volumes with personal inscriptions to the senator from distinguished authors.

Over the last six years we have lost nearly half of these irreplaceable books because acquaintances borrowed them and "forgot" to bring them back.

Last week a friend who attended a funeral in another town saw one of my son's books in the home of the deceased. It was lying on the table, face down, with the book broken. We did not know the person in whose home the book had been seen. I assume a mutual friend had passed it on. This, in my opinion, is thoughtless and inconsiderate. Do you know of a solution to the problem? — Greensboro, N.C.

Never Let Book Out

Dear Green: There is no solution once it becomes a problem. I suggest prevention rather than a cure. Make it a rule never — and mean never — to allow a book out of your home unless you are prepared to part with it forever. I know from experience that some trustworthy and cultured people can also be bookkeepers.

Lovelier You

Tanning Affects Color Tones

By MARY SUE MILLER

The blonde who so strikingly wears unrelieved black all winter may need to modify her color theme when she acquires a suntan.

Tanning changes your color type, you know. Even that of an olive-skinned brunet. The color tables, if not completely turned, are more than a bit topsy-turvy.

A tanned blonde can wear deeper pastels than is her wintertime custom.

Strong aqua and ripe peach, for instance. Creamy white, black relieved with white, dark brown, and golden reds also form a beautiful background for fair hair and a tan.

To set off a tanned brunet, colors have to be either brilliant or low-keyed. Her name is on high intensity yellow, flag, red, emerald green, stark white. As her skin darkens, pale greys and blues, water greens and blues become more and more flattering.

What about the redhead? If she's a natural redhead, she may never be faced with a color problem. For the chances are she cannot get a good tan and will not try to.

However, when a girl with red hair does develop a tan, she must be extra fussy about the shades she wears. She's a target for light, greyed-off greens, yellow and mauves, for wheat and dove grey.

Dark colors, not even dark green, will do much for her now. Very carefully chosen, off-shades of coral and reddish brown seem custom made for her.

Whatever shades you wear, heaven forbid they should detract from a hard-won tan.

Kuwait Limits Car Licences

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwaiti motorists and school children will no longer be given driving licences because of congestion and the high accident rate, Kuwait's chief traffic officer has announced. There are 120,000 cars in the country, which has a population of 500,000 and an area of 3,375 square miles. Last year 166 people died in road accidents — the highest figure in Kuwait's history and the highest in the Arab world.

ERMA BOMBECK Fills Survey

It's Truly Personal

Okay, troops, prepare for another invasion of privacy. This time it's the 1970 census, which is reputed to be 20 pages long and will feed into the computer such breathless questions as "How many bathrooms do you have?" and "How old were you when you started to fill out this questionnaire?"

Personal surveys are becoming a way of life to Americans. It is not enough anymore to know how long you stayed at your last job and whether or not you were inoculated against small pox before you entered the first grade.

A six-page questionnaire distributed recently by Vassar to its 25th reunion class wanted to know if you were starting a baby, owned a snowmobile, tried pot, fed birds; whether your moral standards had "gone to hell" and if you could define a liberal.

I can't resist the impulse to lie on surveys. I don't know why. Maybe because when I tell the truth I sound so average... so dull... so cliché. There is something infinitely unimaginative about going to school, getting married, having children and working in the same town where you were born. It's as if you couldn't make the bus fare.

This week I received a communique from my high school graduating class. In the third to the last paragraph it asked, "If you are unable to attend the reunion activities, how about sending us a report on the highlights of your life during the past 25 years?" Somehow I can visualize a committee sitting around a table and saying, "Here's a real cliff-hanger..."

1945: Made the final payment on graduation pictures.

1949: Mother made a recording of "You Aren't Getting Any Younger."

1950: Made the final payment on wedding pictures.

1953-58: Babies.

1959: Saw my feet for the first time in six years.

1962: Read a book.

1964: An infected corn turned out to be an infected wart which was removed by treatment. (X-rays attached. Please return.)

1965: Had a Tupperware party.

1966: The warranty ran out on my steam iron.

1968: Got a hot water heater for Christmas.

1969: Started cutting out breakfasts in preparation for class reunion. (I eat two lunches now.)

Wanta make a bet? Someone at the reunion will say, "I know all about you. Read your four-page questionnaire. By the way what did you say your name was?"

Food Leads Way Up

Prices Higher in Big Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer prices rose in all 12 principal cities between April and May, led by higher retail prices in Ottawa, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

The bureau's city price indexes, based on 1961 prices equaling 100, measure only the change in consumer living costs between one city and another.

The Ottawa index rose to 122.7 from 121.9 in April, mainly because of higher food prices.

The smallest increase was in Toronto where the index went up to 123.3 from 123.2. Most group indexes remained unchanged, and sale prices applying to clothing offset other small gains.

Other city indexes for May, followed by the April indexes, are:

St. John's, Nfld., 119.0, 118.7; Halifax, 119.3, 119.0; Saint John, N.B., 119.5, 119.3; Montreal, 121.4, 121.0; Winnipeg, 122.2, 121.9; Saskatoon and Regina, 118.9, 118.3; Edmonton and Calgary, 120.8, 120.3; Vancouver, 118.5, 118.2.

OTTAWA (CP) — The average wage paid in Canadian manufacturing industry was $110.98 a week during March, more than 10 per cent higher than a year earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

The March payment was up from $109.65 in February and $100.63 in March last year.

The average wage paid in durable goods manufacturing rose to $120.6 in March from $119.60 in February and was nearly 11.3 per cent higher than a year earlier, $108.45.

Non-durables manufacturing wages in March averaged $100.93, compared with $99.41 in February and $92.92 in March last year.

The bureau said advance information on wages paid in April showed some slight drop for non-durables, due to shorter work weeks.

This caused the manufacturing average as a whole to ease off to $110.84 a week in April from $110.98 in March. Durable-goods pay rose to $120.82 a week from $120.69, while non-durables dropped 40 cents to $100.53 from $100.93 a week.

Taking all non-agricultural industry into account, the average of weekly wages and salaries paid in April was $116.00, compared with $116.04 in March and $108.96 in April last year.

An unexpected B-26 water bomber arrived in B.C. Wednesday, beating to the punch the two U.S. aircraft finally approved by federal authorities for fire-fighting duty in Canada.

W. C. (Cy) Phillips, chief of the provincial forest protection service, said Wednesday evening that a low-pressure area in northern Alberta made it possible to import the water bomber, and it was already helping to douse some of B.C.'s 130-odd fires.

The two B-26 aircraft coming in from the U.S. had not been used by 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, though the federal air transport commission had waived its rule earlier in the day that no U.S. planes could be called in without a national emergency.

One of the U.S. planes was expected to be in operation before darkness set in Wednesday. The two planes were stationed in Phoenix, Ariz., and Oregon.

Meanwhile, Vancouver Island's forests were still a "powder keg," according to fire protection officer Len Ashton. Although no new blazes had been reported since Tuesday, the conditions were unchanged — high to extreme — "and our fingers are still crossed."

The province-wide situation had worsened, however, with 40 new fires in the last reported 24-hour period.

Fire lines had broadened to include 789 men and 67 units of equipment. Most of the fires were caused by people, but lightning is a growing hazard, authorities say.

There are eight fires burning in the Vancouver district, which includes Vancouver Island. Kamloops and Prince George are the most severely affected areas.

Accused at Family Rites

PARKERSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — Susan and Rodger Bailey wept Wednesday at the funeral of their parents and 10 brothers and sisters—killed in a fire that police say the youngsters admitted setting.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey and children ranging from six months to 17 years old, all burned beyond recognition, rested in six cloth-covered wooden coffins grouped in the funeral home parlor.

Bechtold and a deputy escorted the slim brunette and her 13-year-old brother into the funeral home.

Susan, who wore a yellow miniskirt, and Rodger neither talked to each other nor to any of the some 250 relatives and family friends attending the funeral.

Both await continuation June 24 of a preliminary hearing. State law calls for all persons charged with a capital crime to be tried as adults.

Fishing Guilt Denied

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Two Japanese fishing boat captains pleaded innocent Wednesday to charges of fishing within the United States 12-mile limit.

Capt. Katsuju Kawamata and Kinji Okawa were arraigned here before U.S. commissioner Dennis Lazarus. After entering their pleas through an interpreter, the two were released to the custody of their attorneys.

The captains were flown here Tuesday from Nome, where their boats had been taken after the coast guard cutter Storrs caught them Saturday. The coast guard said both ships were well inside the 12-mile limit when they were spotted in the Bering Sea off the coast of Alaska.

A coast guard spokesman said the Storrs had to chase one of the boats, and fire shots across its bow, before it hove to.

U.S. attorney Marvin Frankel said civil suits for forfeiture of the vessel have been entered. He said trial of the skippers may be held in September.

Conviction on the charges carried maximum fines of up to $10,000, seizure of cargo and prison terms.

Food Train Northbound

Lucien Fournier, vice-president of the United Steelworkers of America which is on strike against mining companies in this area, said in an interview the train would stop at Wabush and Labrador City, Nfld., en route to Schefferville, Que.

Last week, businessmen in the three mining towns appealed for donating pocket-knives set up by striking mine workers who have bought 65 per cent of Canada's iron ore production to a standstill.

They have been operating food-supply trains to the northern communities, but only at the request of the communities, a union spokesman said last week.

Community Worker Dies Here at 58

She is survived by her husband, daughter Mrs. Nora Osborne of London, England, and her mother, Mrs. F. B. Sharp of Victoria. Funeral services were held in McCalls' chapel with Rev. R. J. D. Morris of First United Church officiating.

Greek Canadians Claim Threats Made

TORONTO (UPI)—A number of Greek Canadians living in Toronto and Montreal who are opposed to the military junta ruling their homeland, have been the objects of at least 70 incidents of intimidation, the Toronto Star reported Wednesday.

The Star said Nicholas Skoulas, Canadian head of an organization coordinating resistance to the junta, has written External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, complaining of the activities of some members of the Royal Greek Embassy in Ottawa.

The intimidation has mostly been in the form of late-night threatening telephone calls but physical violence has also been used in at least a couple of cases, the report said.

Philip Tearnas, past president of PAK, the panhellenic liberation movement, said a pickup truck narrowly missed hitting his daughter, Anna, 17, two months ago. He said the driver of the truck told Anna in Greek: "Tell your father that the next time I won't miss."

theodorou were assaulted by a knife-wielding man last April as they prepared to go to an anti-junta demonstration.

Fifty of the incidents have been reported in Montreal which has a larger Greek community than Toronto, but Greek leaders here fear that the focus of the intimidation might shift to Toronto next fall when Andreas Papandreu comes to take up his post at York University as an economics lecturer.

U.S. Police Underpaid, Undertrained

Violence Probers Attack Hoover for Seeing Red

WASHINGTON — A staff report to Dr. Milton Eisenhower's violence commission singles out FBI director J. Edgar Hoover for inciting in America's policemen a viewpoint about dissent that has "serious consequences."

According to the report, Hoover and certain unnamed authorities are encouraging police to believe — even though the fact may not be borne out — that all protests by blacks and students are Communist-led.

Thus, abetted by their already deeply ingrained hostility to blacks and their lack of sympathy for students, the report continues, many policemen oppose even lawful dissent.

"Such an attitude," it adds, "leads to more rather than less violence, and a cycle of greater and greater hostility continues."

The report paints a disturbing picture of the policeman in America as "overworked, undertrained, underpaid and undereducated" — and "at times despised."

"His difficulties," it says, "are compounded by a view of protest that gives little consideration to the effects of such social factors as poverty and discrimination and virtually ignores the possibility of legitimate social discontent."

"Typically, it attributes mass protest instead to a conspiracy promulgated by agitators, often Communists, who mislead otherwise contented people. This view leaves the police ill-equipped to understand or deal with dissident groups."

Police literature, according to the report, virtually ignores the imperfections of social institutions that might cause discontent. Furthermore, such literature tends to regard organized protest as "the conspiratorial product of authoritarian agitators — usually 'Communists.'" The report says:

TESTIMONY CITED

"From a systematic sampling of police literature and statements by law enforcement authorities — ranging from the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to the patrolman on the beat — a common theme emerges in police analyses of mass protest: the search for such 'leaders.'"

"Again this is a view — and a search — that is widespread in our society. Such an approach has serious consequences."

The report cited Hoover's testimony before the Eisenhower commission last Sept. 18, in which he said, among other things:

"Communists are in the forefront of civil rights, anti-war and student demonstrations, many of which ultimately become disorderly and erupt into violence."

AS AN EXAMPLE

"As an example, Bettina Aptheker Kurzweil, 24-year-old member of the Communist national committee, was a leading organizer of the 'free speech' demonstrations on the campus of the University of California at Berkeley in the fall of 1964."

(A committee appointed by the regents of the University of California found, upon investigation, no evidence that the free speech movement had been organized by the Communist party or any other outside group.)

Principal Players Feel Heavy Stratford Tempo

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Stratford Festival opened Shakespeare's Measure for Measure Wednesday, completing three difficult openings in as many nights.

For some of the principal players in the company the pace has been strenuous.

William Hutt, for instance, who was superb as Sir Epicure Mammon in The Alchemist Tuesday, had to come right back in the difficult role of Vincentio in Measure for Measure. Powys Thomas had two difficult nights displaying his consummate ability as a comedian, first as Polonius in Hamlet then as the alchemist, Subtle.

Another comic, Bernard Behrens, excelled as Face in The Alchemist after a brilliant showing as a gravedigger in Hamlet. He had another comic cameo in Measure for Measure as Pompey, the tapster to Mistress Overdone.

Leo Ciceri had a night off Tuesday between two difficult roles, both of which cast him as the heavy. He played the part of Claudius in Hamlet, came back in Measure for Measure as Angelo, the corrupt deputy who condemns a man to death for getting a girl pregnant, then offers to spare the man in return for the favors of that same man's sister.

It is the tangled love story and the emotions it arouses that lends Measure for Measure a bitter-sweet flavor.

It is precisely because of the love story and the players' reaction to it that an early critic, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, found it "a hateful work," adding that it was "the only painful play" that Shakespeare wrote. Coleridge was disgusted by the comedy, and to him the tragedy of the play was horrible rather than tragic.

Director David Giles says that in approaching the play he "tried to avoid all of the simplistic extremes in the hope of finding and capturing the humanity with which Shakespeare illuminates every situation."

"In doing so, we have found that the apparent discrepancies and violent sweetness of mood, so objectionable to most critical opinion, are in fact organic to a drama very much of the mood of our own times."

Giles says the tone of the play "makes it difficult to fit into any slot but black comedy."

After Wednesday's performance the festival swings back into Hamlet tonight, The Alchemist Friday, Measure for Measure for a Saturday matinee and Hamlet Saturday night.

The reviews so far have been mixed. Almost without exception, critics panned Hamlet and almost without exception praised The Alchemist.

The festival will open a revival of Moliere's Tartuffe with Hutt in the title role July 3. The Satyricon opens July 4 and Hadrian VII on Aug. 5.

Performance in Ottawa

Sleighbells, Tin Tuned In

OTTAWA (CP) — Sizzle cymbals, sleighbells and a large suspended sheet of tin joined the conventional instruments of l'Orchestre Symphonique de Montreal Wednesday night at the opera house of the National Arts Centre.

R. Murray Schafer, resident in music at Simon Fraser University in Vancouver, enlisted a 51-piece percussion section, a tape recorder and 71 strings, brasses and woodwinds, give or take the odd viola, for the score of Son of Heidenleben.

Modelled on Ein Heldenleben, one of the best-known tone poems of Richard Strauss, Schafer's composition and Gustav Mahler's Second Symphony made up the second of three programs presented by the Montreal orchestra this week under the baton of its chief conductor, Franz-Paul Decker.

Soloists in the Mahler work were contralto Maureen Forrester of Montreal and soprano Sylvia Saurette of St. Boniface, Man. All four of the centre's auditoriums were busy for the second consecutive day as the Vancouver Playhouse Theatre company presented matinee and evening performances of The Ecstasy of Rita Joe by George Ryga of Summerland, B.C., and the chamber opera Orpheus by Montreal composer Gabriel Charpentier was repeated at the experimental studio.

In the salon, the centre's popular series of chamber music recitals continued with a second appearance by the Duo Pach of Fredericton.

New Artist, New Quarters

By IAN D. D. UTHOFF
Though quite far from the centre of town the newly-opened Gallery 69 will no doubt become a meeting place for artists and collectors from not only the city of Victoria but also from the adjacent municipalities.

There is good fare to be found in the drawings and paintings of Will Juliusen on view there now.

Recently come to Victoria, he lived through the German occupation of Holland, having been born there.

Highly trained in his art he has the command of techniques that is not always found in the work of young graphic artists, combined with a designer's feeling for line and pattern.

There is something completely different in his handling of space, in the interchange of light and dark, in the rhythms of shapes and lines with solid black intersecting intervals of emphasis on focal points.

The placing of the drawing within the available space creates an arresting proportioning of positive and negative space and it is this awareness of balance that satisfies the eye and leads it into the arrangement of lozenge shaped lights that are the foundation of the pattern.

There is a macabre feeling in this young artist's work that lifts it out of the stereotyped approaches to design.

Using an almost parchment like type of tracing paper he draws his composition in ordinary lead pencil.

His paintings do not impress me as much as his drawings. Large and powerful, they have an almost savage brutality in their crudeness of color.

But I would have to go back and be with them for a longer time to do justice to Will Juliusen's message in them.

Saturday was the preview of this important exhibition and so far no definite date has been given for its duration but no doubt that will be announced later.

Gallery 69 is located at 3280 Douglas Street, one block north of Woodward's Mayfair.

Spring-Flood Threat Virtually Eliminated

VANCOUVER (CP) — The annual threat of late-spring floods has been virtually eliminated along most B.C. rivers, a statement from the provincial lands and forests department said Wednesday.

Department officials said the threat has been dissipated by a below-average snowpack remaining in the mountains after a slow but steady melt. Many snow courses are free of snow and all report no problems.

Bonn Unveils Sex Book To End Young Confusion

Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

BONN — The West German government Tuesday presented to the public a revolutionary "sexual atlas" to instruct teenagers about sexual relations and their consequences and eradicate sexual superstitions.

In Color

The book, unveiled by Health Minister Kaete Strobel, will be used as basic material for school children in the 14-15 age bracket. It is a frank, no-nonsense exposition of human development from birth to maturity, illustrated with brutally realistic color pictures of the birth process and some of the tragic results of wanton sexuality such as syphilis.

Strobel said the book was without precedent in sex instruction for school children.

Sex education will be optional in German schools. But Strobel pointed out that the book is the result of public demand for better sex education.

In addition to a clinically detailed explanation of reproduction, the 48-page book attempts to destroy old taboos about sex and present a realistic picture of consequences of sexual relations. For example, it tells school children that "self-enjoyment" by both sexes is not a sin but a "normal development process."

VD Facts

On venereal disease, it says it is a "widely circulated but false impression" that one can be infected with gonorrhea in baths, from toilet seats or by using other people's eating utensils or glasses.

The book comes out strongly for circumcision, which is less widely practiced in Europe than in America. It says recent research has indicated that elements are secreted under the male foreskin which can play a role in cancer of the womb.

The book deals frankly and briefly with sexual foreplay and arousal. It instructs young men that an enduring relationship depends on bringing sexual satisfaction to their partners and that women are more slowly stimulated than men.

Safest Ways

The longest section deals with birth control. It discusses various methods and comes to the conclusion that only two are relatively safe: the pill and a highly complicated system of measuring fertility in women by means of basal temperatures.

The so-called rhythm method, it reported, led to 14 accidental pregnancies in 100 cases over a one-year period. The rate for the pill was less than one pregnancy per 100 cases.

Most other methods fell somewhere in between.

Shouts Like Days of Nazis

Jewish Envoy Railed At by German University Students

Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

BONN — A public scandal erupted in West Germany Wednesday over an incident at Frankfurt University where Israeli Ambassador Asher Ben Natan was shouted down by left-wing and Arab students.

The incident, which took place Monday, was denounced as a throwback to the persecution of Jews in Nazi times. Embarrassed apologies flowed into the Israeli embassy here from political and student representatives.

"It is a grave situation when anti-Semitic remarks are made by supposedly progressive groups at a German university," said minister of scientific research Gerhard Stoltenberg.

The incident occurred when Ben Natan, who fought anti-Semitic gangs as a youth in Vienna, arrived at the university to speak on Israel and Zionism.

Several hundred left-wing students, abetted by an estimated 100-150 Arabs, shouted him down with cries such as "Nazi Klesinger and Ben Natan in a clique with Dayan." They carried signs reading, "down with the occupation (of Arab lands)," "Zionists get out of Palestine," and "Jews and Arabs against Zionism."

The demonstration led to fighting and the microphone wires were cut. When Ben Natan attempted to speak, he was drowned out with cries of, "Fascists get out!"

The demonstration was led by Karl Dietrich Wolff, a former chairman of the Socialist German Students, a group so radical that the Socialist Party long ago cut ties with it. The Arab students identified themselves with the Al-Fatah commando organization.

Also involved was a small faction of Israeli socialist students belonging to the Matzpen movement, described by Ben Natan as "psychopaths" who had no base in Israel.

The incident clearly shocked much of the German establishment. The Israeli embassy reported a flood of apologetic telegrams, including messages from author Gunter Grass and Christian Democratic parliamentary leader Rainer Barzel.

The right-wing Springer press seized on the occasion to launch a bitter attack on the left-wing students who a year ago launched the student rebellion in Germany by attempting to stop distribution of Springer papers.

As the wave of reaction swelled, the West German parliament passed a bill to abolish the statute of limitations on prosecuting Nazi mass murderers. "It would be intolerable if only one Nazi mass murderer were to go unpunished because we let the statute of limitations expire at the end of this year," said justice minister Horst Ehmke.

In fact, a number of participants in race murders are almost certain to escape justice, thanks to a revision of the German penal code last year. A Berlin high court ruled recently that this revision meant that the statute of limitations had already expired on the so-called "desk murderers" who administered the death camps, as well as on persons charged with assisting in killing for whom criminal motivation could not be proved.

Ben Natan was in Hamburg Wednesday, where he was scheduled to address another student meeting.

DWARF MISTLETOE, attacking lodgepole pine and bringing trunk deformation, is causing considerable worry to tree-protectors on Pacific Coast this year.

Forest Bandits Pursued by B.C.'s Heroes

By DIANE JANOWSKI

The spruce bark beetle and the balsam woolly aphid are on the march again, munching their way into Vancouver Island's prime stands of timber.

The forest industry is still the largest and most important business on Vancouver Island.

It's the biggest business in the rest of the province too, with 1.3 billion cubic feet of wood logged last year.

But B.C. forests are not endless and another 670,000,000 cubic feet of wood were destroyed by insects, disease and fire.

The people in the Federal Forest Research Laboratory here want to stop that waste if they can, or at least cut it to the bare minimum.

"By gathering as much information as we can and then comparing our results with other years, we can anticipate problems and work out ways of handling them," said Dr. Alex Molnar, director of the lab's insect and disease division.

"Also, at least part of a damaged forest stand can be salvaged if it is logged within two or three years, so we have to know what is happening to be able to advise forest managers."

There are 16 forest rangers permanently in the field throughout the province and every summer nine appraisal officers head out to help them assess the situation.

The nine left Victoria early last month and will be in the field until early October. There are two rangers on Vancouver Island: Stan Allen covers the southern Island working out of the Burrisdale

Rangers, Others Match Wits with Aphid, Beetle

Road lab, while Peter Koot works out of Kye Bay to cover the northern Island.

"They'll check permanent observation points and take random samplings of different areas," said Dr. Molnar. "Each region will be covered three times in the course of the summer and reports and samples will be sent into the lab as they occur."

"We'll use their findings as a basis for assessing past and forecasting future damage."

Only a few samples have been received so far this year, but Dr. Molnar said he expects the workers will find widespread frost damage following the unusually severe winter.

"We won't know the extent of the damage in the forest stands for a few years though," he said, "because the trees might seem dead this summer but come back later."

While the rangers will be doing general reconnaissance work, they will have some specific points to watch for.

"The hemlock looper, which inflicted very heavy losses on Vancouver Island a few years ago, seems to be on the rise in the U.S. again," said Dr. Molnar.

"It rises in long cycles and usually spreads from south to north, so we're watching for any indication it's coming back here."

He said they will also be watching to see to what extent the five species of dwarf mistletoe infest B.C. woods, especially in the coastal area.

"The parasitic mistletoe attacks commercial softwoods, deforming them and causing reduced growth and eventual death," he said.

Federal records indicate the plant causes an annual mortality of 25,000,000 cubic feet of standing timber to jack and lodgepole pine alone.

Dr. Molnar said the lab decides its priorities after consulting the forest companies.

"They're very concerned about mistletoe this year."

He said specific surveys are also being done this summer on the spruce bark beetle and the balsam woolly aphid. Being a ranger or an appraisal officer is an interesting job, but the men must cover large areas of woods within a short period of time and work extremely hard.

"A lot of these men are up with the loggers every morning, work all day, and then must write their reports in the evening," said Tegid Jones, the lab's information officer.

All rangers are supplied with a panel truck with the general equipment they need for the field work, but it can't take them very far in most of B.C.

"Sometimes they're dropped into the woods by helicopter and sometimes, they must walk in from the road," said Mr. Jones.

"In the north Vancouver area where there are no roads, the ranger gets about in a 23-foot launch."

The workers note the extent of plant disease and check for insects and their eggs on foliage.

"At each of the regular observation points and random stops, the men assess conditions there and take beatings of nearby trees."

"They cover the ground under the trees and then hit the branches with a long pole, noting the numbers and taking samples of the insects that fall out," said Dr. Molnar.

Insect samples are returned in plastic bags and disease samples in regular brown paper bags.

Dr. Molnar and his workers will never be able to completely eliminate wood loss from insects and diseases, but it won't be for lack of trying.

Outlook Mixed Up

House Starts
Near Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Housebuilding activity reached near-record figures last month, but the government's housing advisers are beginning to worry about the effect of higher interest rates in the next few weeks.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., the government's housing agency, reported Wednesday that 16,785 new houses and apartments were started during May in urban centres of 10,000 population and more.

May figures always show the effects of booming spring construction activity after the winter doldrums. Last month's housing starts were near the May record—16,790 started last year, and topped the 16,096 starts recorded in May, 1967. On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the figures are comfortably above the 200,000-a-year rate now needed to meet current housing demand.

* * *

Housing activity has been over the 200,000-a-year rate for eight months. Whether the tight money supply situation and higher interest rates will dampen activity in the next few weeks and months remains to be seen.

One of the purposes of Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget last week was to divert funds from non-essential commercial building, such as theatres and shopping centres, into housing and industrial plants.

This is to be achieved by deferring depreciation for two years for tax purposes on commercial building in major cities of Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

* * *

Some government sources, however, were doubtful that this would have much immediate effect. Businessmen who have decided to go ahead with a commercial building project may be prepared to meet some extra tax cost, rather than drop plans already made.

The housing experts therefore think there will be little in the way of extra funds going into housing this summer as a result of Benson's budget. Unless there is a great deal of extra money available for housing, there would be little downward pressure on interest rates in normal circumstances.

But added to the budget proposals last week are this week's announcements of higher interest rates on bank loans, supported by the Bank of Canada and by the government as an anti-inflationary move.

These high bank loan rates are certain to be reflected in higher mortgage interest rates. The ceiling on interest that may be charged on mortgages guaranteed under the National Housing Act now is 9% per cent.

There is a bill before Parliament to remove the ceiling, and the government hopes to have the bill passed before the end of this month. If the bill does not pass, CMHC will have to set a new ceiling for the months of July, August and September.

* * *

Present indications are that such a ceiling would be about 9% per cent. Conventional mortgages, without the NHA guarantees, draw even higher rates. These might go to 10 per cent or more.

One source said the uncertainty that will prevail for the next fortnight may cause difficulty in the housing industry.

Lenders may be unwilling to invest more funds in NHA mortgages now, expecting higher returns if they wait until July 1. Borrowers, on the other hand, may be so anxious to buy now that they will bid up the conventional interest rate in anticipation of higher cost later in the year.

Commercial Buildings

Benson Outlines
Tax Exemptions

OTTAWA (CP) — Farm buildings constructed in cities of 50,000 population or more will be exempt from new tax regulations affecting commercial construction in urban centres of Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

So will grain elevators, apartment hotels if units are rented for a month or longer and the part of a newspaper building used directly to produce the paper, but not its business department.

OUTLINE GUIDE

The exemptions are part of an outline guide issued Wednesday by Finance Minister Edgar Benson about the way the new tax rules will be applied generally.

Benson announced in his budget June 3 that capital cost tax exemptions normally allowed for new buildings would be deferred until the end of 1970 for commercial construction in cities of the fast-growth provinces.

The program, which would mean a higher tax bill for a business deciding on a new building after June 3 in the designated centres, is designed as a selective anti-inflationary measure.

Benson said detailed regulations are being drafted.

The designated urban centres are at Vancouver, Victoria, Edmonton, Calgary and 18 Ontario centres.

In broad terms, commercial buildings exclude housing, industrial plants and structures for public utilities or public institutions.

Capital tax allowance would be deferred on buildings for wholesale or retail trade, service, office buildings, banks and other financial institutions, hotels, motels, theatres, service stations and similar operations.

U.K. Shakeup Advised

Local Councils Cut
In Massive Reform

LONDON (Reuters) — An inquiry commission Wednesday proposed the biggest reform of English local government in nearly a century with a major shift of power from London to the regions.

The historic report called for abolition of 1,200 councils and the creation of eight provinces in a drastic shakeup of grass-roots rule in villages, towns and counties.

The proposals would transform beyond recognition the present local authorities which run much of England's public health, housing, water supplies, roads, bridges, education, police and fire services. Decades of established custom would be swept away.

The report is the work of the royal commission on local government in England, appointed in 1966 with civil servant Lord Redcliffe-Maud as chairman.

The 11-member commission spent more than £300,000 ($988,000) and called evidence from 2,150 witnesses to prepare its blueprint for a modern power structure in local government.

The government now will examine the proposals but they are unlikely to become law soon because Parliament's current agenda is already crowded.

The commission said the existing local government set-up, dating from the 1870-90 era, failed to cope with modern needs.

Too many authorities—elected councils financed by local taxes—were operating similar services in too many adjoining areas, the report said. This proliferation of local governments hindered planning development and transport.

COMPLEX SYSTEM

The commission said its new system would make better use of resources and strengthen democracy among a complex system of local government that ranges from employing rat-catchers and garbage collectors to building museums and art galleries.

It hinted that the proposed new local authorities might take over part of the National Health Service, now run by the central government in London.

Features of the reform:

- Eight provincial councils, plus the Greater London Council, to settle regional strategy and planning. England's new provinces would be called Northeast, Yorkshire, Northwest, West Midlands, East Midlands, Southwest, East Anglia and Southeast.

- Sixty-one huge local government areas, each covering town and country, including three metropolitan authorities around Birmingham, Liverpool and Manchester to provide all services.

- An entirely new range of local councils to act as a two-way channel between the areas and local communities.

The commission said it was convinced that with drastic reforms and the grip of central government relaxed, England could become a more efficient, democratic and humane society.

Grateful Flyers
Say Thanks
To Launchers

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The grateful moon pilots of Apollo 10 returned to a triumphant "homecoming" at their launch site Wednesday and promised a record throng of 10,000 moonport workers, "This is only the beginning."

Thomas Stafford, John Young and Eugene Cernan were greeted by roaring applause inside the immense moon rocket assembly building from what the space agency said was the biggest crowd ever to gather there.

"The difference between mediocrity and greatness is this launch team," Young told the workers jammed on the massive floor of the building and lining the vast open bays above them.

"In my opinion, and in Tom and Gene's opinion, you're the greatest and we thank you."

"You know there are only a few ways in the English language that we can say thank you," said Stafford. "But from

Weary Britons Home from Arctic

LONDON (UPI)—Four weary men and 36 husky dogs Wednesday ended their 3,800 mile walk across the Arctic and were flown by helicopter to the British navy icebreaker ship HMS Endurance.

A Royal Navy spokesman said the men were "extremely fit and happy and in very good heart." The men set out on their expedition from Point Barrow, Alaska, more than a year and three months ago and a spokesman for the expedition said in London Wednesday they had achieved all five objects for the trip.

The four Britons are Wally Herbert, 34-year-old leader of the expedition; Alan Gill, 38, Dr. Roy Koerner, 36, and Dr. Kenneth Hedges, 33. They walked the 3,800 miles across the Arctic, over the North Pole, in a 478-day trek that brought them face to face with a pack of polar bears and nearly left them stranded on thin ice.

The men and their huskies were picked up by two Royal Navy helicopters and flown to a point about four miles from where the Endurance was located, northeast of Spitzbergen. They were taken the last four miles Wednesday night.

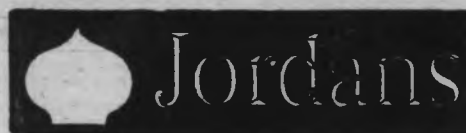

Sir Vivian Fuchs, who made a similar trek across Antarctica in 1959 and was a member of the committee of management of Herbert's expedition, said the expedition "is a major accomplishment in polar travel which has been achieved with very great determination and endurance. It is not generally realized that considerable information about ice conditions in the Arctic Basin will accrue from this journey," Sir Vivian said.

Don't Worry
They're Ours

Sonic booms from jet aircraft likely will be heard over southern Vancouver Island for about an hour this morning. The planes are taking part in a joint Strategic Air Command and NORAD training exercise.

He said the objects of the expedition were: synoptic weather observations, glaciological program, geophysical program, wild life study and a study of survival techniques. Cost of the expedition was placed at about $120,000.

Buyer's Strike Rumored

B.C. Lumber Prices
Take Plunge in U.S.

Prices for British Columbia lumber in the United States have dropped by as much as a third from the record levels reached in March and mill closures have been forecast.

Producers say they don't know just what prices U.S. buyers offer and some say there's a "buyer's strike."

The U.S. market takes about half of the province's lumber output.

After a hard winter which curtailed B.C. logging operations, prices hit record levels in spring.

Now prices have dropped sharply and rapidly. One lumber expert says the situation could last three or four months, then improve. Others say they can't make any predictions.

Green B.C. fir two-by-fours sold at $134 for 1,000 board feet in March and hit $139 in places. Latest statistical reports show buyers offering $90 to $95 and buying smaller quantities.

These prices apply to lumber from the B.C. interior sent to markets from Chicago to Denver, Colo. Prices also have dropped on B.C. coastal lumber moved by ship to the U.S. Atlantic seaboard.

Waterborne green fir brought $127 for 1,000 board feet in spring and $140 at times. Last quoted price is $108 and some experts predict prices will settle around $85.

Rising prices led the International Woodworkers of America to ask the B.C. forest industry to reopen the current contract to give 28,000 coastal workers an immediate interim pay increase.

The industry refused, saying among other things that lumber prices are unstable. The IWA hasn't withdrawn its request, but meetings will be held shortly among union officials.

Gordon L. Draeseke, president of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C., says the current market is so chaotic that some mills will be forced to curtail production.

Shingle mills have been closed for up to three weeks and now are operating at less than capacity. It's considered likely that some lumber mills will close during the summer vacation period.

In Longview, Wash., and Rainier, Ore., lumber company officials said Wednesday tight money and high interest rates have hit the housing industry so lumber dealers are reducing inventories.

This has reduced demand, forcing lumber prices down. Some British Columbia experts say that because of tight money, some lumber wholesalers are not buying lumber at all.

Stan Rose, president of Exeter Lumber Sales Co. in Longview warned of a possible "summer of horror" for lumber men. He said he sees no bottom to the lumber price decline yet.

Union Leader
Dies at 51

CRANBROOK (CP) — Orville Braaten, the man who helped form the 6,000-member Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada Union in 1963, died at the age of 51 Wednesday of an apparent heart attack.

President of the breakaway union since 1967, Mr. Braaten was here on union business, believed to concern a certification bid by the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers at the nearby Skokumchuck Pulp and Paper Mill.

In 1964, Mr. Braaten was voted out of office as business agent of Local 433 of the international union after being accused of trying to lead the local into the PPWC.

The PPWC had been formed a year earlier by five locals of the international union that decided to break away over a dispute about American control.

After he was voted out of office, Mr. Braaten took over as business agent of the Canadian union and was elected president in 1967.

In that year he was involved in a provincial investigation into electronic eavesdropping after bugging equipment was found in his hotel room during the PPWC's convention.

Inquiry commissioner R. A. Sargent found that Pat O'Neal, organizer for the international union, could not be blamed for attempting to listen to the deliberations of the Canadian union.

The PPWC's business agent, Roy Koop, said Wednesday Mr. Braaten "led the fight to throw off the shackles" of international unionism. First vice-president Gordon Wockham of Nanaimo will take over the post of president.

Mr. Braaten is survived by his wife, Gladys, and four children, who live in north Vancouver.

Braaten

Frank Waived,
Symons Signed

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Frank of Toronto Argonauts, all-star offensive tackle for three years, has been waived through the Canadian Football League. No team picked him up for the waiver price of $550.

Coach Leo Cahill said Wednesday the Argos will not stand in his way if he wants to negotiate with teams in the United States.

"The price we quoted him was one of the top being paid any Canadian lineman," Cahill said.

Frank, 31, was a member of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference before going to Dallas Cowboys in the U.S.

"He requested that we place him on waivers when we couldn't get together on contract," Cahill said.

Halfback Bill Symons, Canada's most outstanding player last year, was another Argos problem.

"We're still a long way apart," he said of his contract negotiations.

"I'm probably going to play out my option, but I'll play just as hard as I did last year."

Under Canadian regulations, Symons could become a free agent by informing Argos at the beginning of the season that he was playing out his contract option, thereby taking a 10-per-cent cut for the 1969 season.

Lions Sign
Rookie Pair

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference have announced the signing of two Canadian rookies, offensive tackle Dave Golinsky and line-backer Dave Wray.

Golinsky, 6-4, 250 pounds, was named all-conference at Washington State. The 21-year-old played in the 1969 Hula Bowl, with such players as O. J. Simpson, and was the first Canadian in a Hula Bowl game.

Wray, 5 feet 11 inches and 210 pounds, was three times an all-star with University of Alberta Golden Bears. He's 20.

B.C. Expands
Rathrevor

The provincial government has brought 593 acres of foreshore at Rathrevor Beach south of Parksville within the boundaries of the provincial park. Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Wednesday the move will control swimming, water skiing and clam digging and prevent unauthorized use of the area by log salvagers. Total park area is now 859 acres.

Lewis Legend Forged by Nerves of Steel

Labor Loses One of Mightiest Chiefs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John L. Lewis, one of the mightiest leaders in the history of the American labor movement, died Wednesday night in hospital. He was 89.

Death came from what a physician called "acute illness." The exact nature of the illness was not known pending an autopsy. Lewis had been in the hospital since Sunday.

FEW WEEKS AGO

Until only a few weeks ago Lewis had gone daily from his home in suburban Alexandria, Va., to his United Mine Workers' sixth-floor office, where he was chairman of the trustees of the UMW welfare and retirement fund.

But in recent weeks he had trouble getting around and the effect of several heart attacks began to slow him down more and more.

BIG MONUMENT

Many persons said the retirement fund — into which $150,000,000 is poured each year from a 40-cent royalty on each ton of coal mined — was his biggest monument. He had won it after a long strike and a battle with the administration in 1946.

To many Americans he was an almost legendary figure. To others he was a tyrant, an object of fear and hatred.

FIRST PRESIDENT

The longtime president of the United Mine Workers of America and first president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations retired nine years ago as head of the mine workers. But for years afterward, he put in five full days a week in his non-paying job as head of the UMW pension fund.

The famous bushy eyebrows and unruly hair were white at the time of his death and the organ voice had diminished. There were echoes of the man who defied President Roosevelt.

DURING DISPUTE

During a dispute between the steel industry and the CIO shortly before the president sought his third term, Roosevelt became angry with both sides in the dispute and, borrowing a line from Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, uttered a "plague" of both your houses.

Using his sometimes biblical style of oratory, Lewis belittled back: "It ill behooves one who has supped at labor's table and with has been sheltered in labor's house to curse with equal fervor and fine impartiality both labor and its adversaries when they become locked in deadly embrace."

'STATELY ASSES'

Lewis took his UMW out of the CIO in 1942 in a policy dispute. The miners' union joined the AFL in 1946 but left the next year in a battle over compliance with the new Taft-Hartley law.

"Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn," Lewis said in a Bible-quoting speech. The new law, he thundered, would muzzle labor as it "treadeth out the economic corn of our country."

At the time of the UMW pullout, Lewis pictured the AFL as attempting to advance across the plains of America led by "fat and stately asses."

DROVE MULES

But Lewis, who loved a good fight, was willing to meet old foes on friendlier ground. He and Harry Truman, once bitter adversaries, until a few years ago had lunch together when the former president was in town.

Born into a family of Welsh coalminers Feb. 12, 1880, in Lucas, Iowa, Lewis quit school in the seventh grade to drive mules in the mines. But his ability and ambition quickly carried him out of the pits and under the wing of AFL president Samuel Gompers. He took over the presidency of the mine workers in 1917.

Lewis first began attracting notice at Palmyra, Ill., where he was taken under the wing of Gompers. He became vice president of the United Mine Workers, and in 1917 took over the presidency.

Almost immediately he took his 411,000 workers out on strike for higher wages. But President Woodrow Wilson invoked a wartime statute, and Lewis lost the first of what was to become a long series of battles with the White House.

By 1925, Lewis was strong enough to lead a bloc that elected William Green to the presidency of the AFL. But the friendship was not to last long. He split with the AFL leader, ship at its 1934 and 1935 conventions — at one time knocking William Hutchison, then president of the carpenters' union, to the floor in a fist fight.

In 1936, he joined hands with other industrial unions and left the AFL to create the CIO. In the same year, he fought with Roosevelt, whom he supported earlier.

In 1942, Lewis took on another fellow labor leader in battle. After a quarrel with his CIO presidential successor, Philip Murray, Lewis took his mine workers out of the union. In 1946, he re-affiliated with the AFL, but a little more than a year later, he sent AFL president Green a now-famous resignation.

Scrawled on a piece of paper it said: "Green, We disaffiliate. Lewis."

The break was triggered by Green's insistence the AFL's leaders sign the non-Communist affidavit under the Taft-Hartley Act. Although a foe of communist, Lewis felt the requirement was insulting.

As for the Taft-Hartley Act itself, Lewis termed it the "first savage ugly thrust of fascism in America."

While Lewis scored triumphs at the bargaining table, he met his harshest defeat at the hands of the courts.

When he defied a government back-to-work order in 1946, he was slapped with a personal fine of $10,000 for contempt and his union fined $3,500,000. The Supreme Court later reduced the latter fine to $700,000. In a second contempt case, Lewis was fined $20,000 and his union $1,400,000.

Commenting on his troubles with the government, Lewis said in 1959 that "the public needed sauce with its meat and I was the sauce. I went before them in legal chains. They had a marvellous success in bringing this barbarian king before them."

SAFETY BATTLES

Lewis said the public did not understand miners and never will. He described mining as a "morticians' paradise."

All his life he fought for mine safety and was instrumental in getting federal approval of safety legislation.

He said he dreamed of the day when men will no longer have to go underground to dig coal.

HIS PHILOSOPHY

In a remark that helped sum up his philosophy, Lewis once told his miners that he was pleading their case "not in the quavering tones of a feeble mendicant asking alms, but in the thundering voice of the captain of a mighty host demanding the rights to which free men are entitled."

Arguing for mine safety legislation, he said if he had the power he would have his miners "whose eyes were shot out and who were disemboweled in the mines crawl, in a procession along the cobblestones so that Congress might see them trailing their bowels after them."

Approved in Committee Stage

Languages Bill Returns to House

Turner

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's official languages bill was unanimously approved by a special committee of the House of Commons Wednesday and returned to the Commons for third and final reading.

Some 20 amendments were made to the bill in committee, most of them submitted by the government. But the Conservatives and the New Democratic Party also got one amendment each written into the bill.

PRINCIPLES HOLD

None of the amendments changed the principles of the bill, which would make English and French official languages of the federal administration and set up bilingual districts in which the federal government would have to make all its services available in both languages.

The bill is expected to come up for third reading in the Commons next week, after the budget debate is finished.

EXPLICIT

The committee accepted an amendment by David Lewis (NDP—York South) Wednesday making it explicit that no criminal charges can be laid against an individual for infractions of the bill. The Lewis amendment says that section 107 of the Criminal Code, which allows prison terms of two years for violations of federal statutes, does not apply to the languages bill.

Justice Minister John Turner said there are "no criminal sanctions" in the bill and the Lewis amendment makes certain there is no room for doubt on this score.

The way to remedy violations of the purposes or spirit of the languages legislation will be to make these violations known and that is the duty of the official languages commissioner, Turner said.

Tuesday the committee adopted an amendment by Melvin McQuaid (PC—Cardigan) that would require the languages commissioner to state his reasons to the complainant when he decides to discontinue an investigation of a complaint.

The committee, a special one selected to study the 41-clause bill after it got second reading in the Commons, began its work Tuesday, June 3, and met 10 times.

Chairman of the 12-member committee was John Roberts (L—York-Simcoe).

OPPOSITION

The opposition parties were represented by McQuaid, Theogene Ricard (PC—St. Hyacinthe), Dr. Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca), Lewis and Rene Matte (Creditiste-Champlain).

The committee rejected a Conservative attempt at the final meeting Wednesday to define the investigative powers of the languages commissioner in terms of the Public Inquiries Act.

POWER SPELLED OUT

Turner, principal witness at most of the committee's meetings, said the government concluded that it was better to spell out the language commissioner's powers in the bill rather than define them by means of reference to another statute.

Clause 30 describes the powers of the commissioner in carrying out an investigation. He will be able to summon witnesses and compel them to give evidence on oath and produce any documents that he deems necessary, "in the same manner and to the same extent as a superior court of record."

Turner says the commissioner will need these powers to do his job amid "the complexities of modern government."

He said there is a good deal of misunderstanding of clause 30. The commissioner would be an investigator, not a judge. He would have no right or authority to prosecute anybody or assess blame or guilt.

His job was to ensure that the departments and institutions of the federal government were fulfilling the purposes of the bill and to investigate any complaints that they were not doing this.

"His job is to report, first to the government, ultimately to Parliament. His only power is the power of bringing facts to light."

The effort to substitute a cross-reference to the Public Inquiries Act was led by Conservative House leader Gerald Baldwin, who attended the meeting in the absence of McQuaid. His amendment was beaten 7 to 2.

The committee rejected, also by a vote of 7 to 2, a Conservative amendment that would have required the commissioner to give the subject of any complaint the choice of a public hearing before making any report that could harm him.

Turner said the bill doesn't deal with court proceedings and potential criminal charges.

(PLANT DIVISION)

THE UNION'S ANSWER to B.C. Telephone Company's Statement

1. Do you know that an employee of the British Columbia Telephone Company and Canadian Telephones & Supplies Limited, must work between six and eight years before receiving top rate of pay?
2. Do you know that the reason that you cannot receive the service that you are entitled to is because the Company refuses to hire sufficient staff; instead it has worked its present staff excessive overtime hours, over the last few years.
3. Do you know that an American Corporation, the General Telephone & Electronics Corporation, not only controls the B.C. Telephone Company but owns outright companies supplying material and equipment to the Company? Included in the list of companies controlled by General Telephone & Electronics Corporation are the Canadian Telephones & Supplies Ltd., the Dominion Directory, Automatic Electric, Lenkurt Electric, together with many others.
4. Do you know that the reason the Union demands changes in the Pension Plan is that it is necessary to have twenty years' service before an employee is entitled to a pension? As an example, recently an employee with 19 years and 11 months service was refused a pension. This is not an isolated case. This would not have happened before General Telephone & Electronics Corporation gained control.
5. Do you know that the morale of the employees, since the takeover by G.T. & E.C. and as a result of the introduction of their methods, which treat an employee as a machine rather than a human being, has deteriorated to the point that the employees' respect for his employer no longer exists?
6. Do you know that our contract was written in such a manner that mutual understanding governed its administration? Today this understanding is ignored by the Company, and the "strict letter" of the wording is insisted upon by the Company.
7. Do you know that the Company restricts the employees' activities outside of working hours?

On a number of occasions there have been reports of bombs being placed in Company property. Including the main office on Seymour Street. No employee was evicted.

BECAUSE OF THE COMPANY'S WIDELY CIRCULATED STATEMENTS RESPECTING DAMAGE TO COMPANY PROPERTY, THE UNION WILL PAY ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS TO ANY PERSON GIVING INFORMATION LEADING TO THE ARREST AND CONVICTION OF ANY PERSON WILLFULLY CAUSING DAMAGE TO COMPANY PROPERTY OR MAKING "BOMB THREATS."

THE MAIN REASONS FOR DISAGREEMENT ON THE CONTRACT ARE:

Shorter Work Week

The Company states that it would not cost any more to implement the shorter work week. The claim of the Company is that the public would suffer. They well know this is untrue. Their only argument during negotiations was that they declined to be a leader in the community in any respect.

V.O. Time

The Company insists on eliminating a clause that the Union negotiated into the contract that would create jobs. Excessive overtime has been worked by B.C. Telephone Company employees for a long time. The Union recognizes its responsibility to the young man just out of school looking for employment. This is the prime reason the clause was negotiated into the contract.

Vacation Time

The Company refused to co-operate with the Union in respect to vacations scheduled during the summer months. Employees with fifteen years service are unable to take vacations when their children are out of school.

Pensions

The dispute on pensions would be solved if the Company would agree that there would be no reduction for any reason to the plan during the life of the Agreement.

Hours of Work

The Company, under the Agreement, can schedule employees from 3:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. The Union opposes any further extension in this shift as being undesirable and unnecessary.

Wages

If the eight hour day is maintained the wage rates shown in the Company advertisement would be out of all proportions. The following are comparative wages paid in B.C. Telephone Co. and B.C. Hydro:

Hourly Wage Rates for Linemen of
		B.C. Tel Hydro	B.C. Hydro
June 1, 1950	$1.72	$1.73	April 1, 1960	2.825	2.105
June 1, 1951	1.88	2.11	Aug. 1, 1961	2.97	2.155
June 1, 1952	2.095	2.21	April 1, 1962	3.05	3.25
June 1, 1953	2.18	2.255	April 1, 1963	3.05	3.31
June 1, 1954	2.245	2.30	April 1, 1964	3.25	3.42
June 1, 1955	2.29	2.37	April 1, 1965	3.41	3.66
June 1, 1956	2.36	2.415	April 1, 1966	3.72	3.87
June 1, 1957	2.42	2.76	April 1, 1967	3.89	4.35
April 1, 1958	2.66	2.885	April 1, 1968	4.06	4.65
April 1, 1959	2.74	3.02

There can be no justification for B.C. Telephone Company employees receiving lower wages than those paid to employees in similar productive enterprises involving similar skills, either now or at any future date.

Stanfield Takes Very Dim View

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield objected Wednesday to being left out of the constitutional conference but, he said, "I've been kept out of better places than that."

Stanfield said he did not object to the talks being held in private but felt leaders of the opposition parties should have been allowed in as observers.

Stanfield was not optimistic about the possibilities of progress in the talks because of deterioration of financial relations between the provinces and Ottawa.

Ottawa's Secret Parley Friendly

Canada Safe—Bennett

OTTAWA (CP) — Secrecy was still the watchword, but Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers left the opening session of the federal-provincial constitutional conference Wednesday obviously satisfied with their progress in the delicate field of spending powers and tax sharing.

"There was progress in mutual education," said the smiling prime minister as he

And the premiers who left with him gave a clear indication they were happy with the closed-door meetings although none would offer any details.

"A very friendly conference and Canada is safe," said Premier Bennett of British Columbia.

"I am just delighted," said Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan. "Now we're down to gut issues."

"I am very happy with the discussions to date," said Premier John Robarts of Ontario. But he would go no further. "It is the rules of the game that there should be no comment."

Trudeau and the premiers agreed on the secrecy aspect prior to the conference. It was reported to have been strongly re-emphasized by the prime minister when they gathered around the huge felt-covered table Wednesday.

It was in sharp contrast to the February constitutional conference here when all the discussions were televised live and reporters were allowed to sit in on the meetings.

It was reliably reported

Funds Freeze To Chop 13,000 Men

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's armed forces may be trimmed to a strength of roughly 85,000 during the next three years from the present 98,000, according to informed defence department sources.

'Nonsense'

General Didn't Say It

General Jean Allard, chief of the Canadian general staff, has categorically denied statements attributed to him to the effect that current plans for the reduction of the armed forces are ill-timed and unwise.

The story of the general's criticism, printed in the Toronto Telegram on Tuesday, brought a response from the office of Defence Minister Lep Cadieux Wednesday, that "it is a piece of nonsense."

DOESN'T KNOW

Author of the Telegram's article is Douglas Stuebing, who based it on an interview he had with Allard while the chief of staff was visiting the Canadian United Nations contingent on Cyprus on May 29.

Calgary's June Snow Brings Record Low

CALGARY (CP) — A record low of 31 degrees was set here Wednesday afternoon as snow fell across the city for about three hours.

The light fall combined with rain to give total precipitation of about .20 inches, a weather office spokesman said.

Stocks Skidding

Bank Jump 'Deplorable'

TORONTO (CP) — "Deplorable but obviously necessary" was how R. N. Steiner, Toronto Stock Exchange chairman, Wednesday described the increase in bank lending rates which gave the exchange the largest single-day drop in its history.

All the major Canadian chartered banks increased their prime-lending rates to an unprecedented 8 per cent Wednesday, in the wake of a rise in the Bank of Canada's rate to them — announced Tuesday — of 7½ per cent. The Toronto-Dominion Bank, which led the upward spiral with an announcement last week that it would raise its rate to 7½ per cent — ½ per cent above the other banks' rates — jumped again to 8½ per cent.

- Interest rate hike may produce recession. Page 5.
- Prices higher in major Canadian cities. Page 33.
- House starts near record. Page 43.
- Benson outlines commercial-building tax exemptions. Page 43.

The financial situation was a point of much discussion in the House of Commons where New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas threw his party's support behind the Conservatives in an non-confidence motion scoring the government for inability to curb inflation, "while increasing the hardship on the unemployed, the poor, pensioners, farmers and other victims of the just society."

The vote is scheduled on the Conservative motion at the end of tonight's sitting.

Douglas berated Finance Minister Edgar Benson for using unemployment as a weapon to cool off the economy in the fight against inflation.

Government policies had produced both rising prices and unemployment, a contradiction in terms of modern economics.

"Only a government of geniuses could get both," said Douglas.

Benson, on the other hand, defended the actions of the chartered banks and praised one of them for increasing the interest it pays to depositors. He said he is pleased that the Bank of Montreal was increasing interest paid, retroactive to June 1. It will pay 6 instead of 5½ per cent a year on term deposits, and 3½ instead of 3 on chequable deposits.

Other banks have followed suit.

The Toronto-Dominion said it would pay 6½ per cent instead of 5½ per cent on non-

Chicken Best Bet In July Shopping

OTTAWA (CP) — Housewives can expect no reduction in the present high beef prices during July, the agriculture department reported Wednesday in its monthly food outlook.

Pork prices, too, may increase and turkey prices will probably go up slightly. Broiler chickens will be plentiful at relatively low prices.

Poor Reward

Cheques Keep Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Put a little fun in your life. Try being poor.

That could be a slogan for a 36-year-old Toronto man who says if the government ever starts a war on poverty, he will fight "on the other side."

Norman Browne, a high school graduate who lives on a maximum of $25 a week and says poverty is a ball, outlined his philosophy in a story he wrote in The Star Wednesday.

"Only the very rich and the very poor have complete freedom," he says.

"The very rich collect dividend cheques from stocks and bonds. The very poor collect cheques from welfare or unemployment insurance. It's easier to be poor and I think a lot more fun."

"I live on a maximum of 25 a week regardless of my income. This insures that I stay poor and thus safeguards my freedom and independence."

He says he pays $15 a week for a room and kitchen, $2 for tobacco and extras and $8 for food.

Browne takes occasional jobs.

Browne says his earned income for 1967 was about $500, and last year it rose $1,400. But he describes the idea of a guaranteed annual income as unrealistic and unworkable.

No Major Leaders Invited

Investiture of Charles Essentially Domestic

LONDON (CP) — Canada will be officially represented at the investiture of Prince Charles on July 1 by her high commissioner in London, Charles Ritchie, and no invitations have gone out to Commonwealth countries on a higher level.

College of Arms officials explain that this is because the investiture of the Prince of Wales is regarded as essentially a domestic, Welsh affair — not an international, imperial event like a coronation, which would be attended by heads of state.

Even in 1911, when the investiture of Prince Edward — now the Duke of Windsor — was a more lavish event befitting an era of imperial self-confidence, the assembly of guests was largely Welsh.

Sir Anthony Wagner, Garter King of Arms and chief aide to the Earl Marshal, said recently no invitations have gone out to heads of state generally. President Tubman of Liberia has been invited, he said, because he will be in Britain at the time of the investiture.

Gas Can Kill 'in Minute'

Aerosol Containers Carry Quick Death

TORONTO (CP) — Persons who sniff aerosol spray could be dead in 60 seconds, a California toxicologist warned Wednesday at the closing session of the fifth international meeting of forensic sciences.

J. Wallace Graham of Los Angeles County said the spray contains freon gas that can kill in a minute. Freon is an easily liquefiable gas used extensively as a refrigerant.

He said a 50-per-cent content of the gas in the air can kill.

Graham said 12 youths in Los Angeles County have died in the last two years from sniffing freon.

Invasion Critics Off Base

MOSCOW (UPI) — The head of the Czechoslovak Communist party objected Wednesday to any discussion of the Soviet-led invasion of his country at the 75-nation Communist meeting, saying critics were misinformed.

Gustav Husak, describing the Czechoslovak crisis last year as an internal matter, said he was shocked that Communist delegations referred to the invasion of last August in different forms, were supported by bourgeois circles in the West with whom they maintained contact, Husak told the party congress.

Husak, who replaced reformist leader Alexander Dubcek in a party shakeup last April, said the basic problem in Czechoslovakia was caused by the Dubcek government's weakness and ineffective policies.

"The (Dubcek) leadership of the party retreated in the face of growing aggressive pressure of anti-socialist forces at home which, in different forms, were supported by bourgeois circles in the West with whom they maintained contact," Husak told the party congress.

Earlier, the Italian Communist party, largest in the West, denounced the invasion of Czechoslovakia by the Soviet Union and four other Warsaw Pact armies. The Italians also criticized the Kremlin's attitude toward Peking and ridiculed the idea of a single world Communist movement.

The Soviets replied that "individual voices of dissent are drowned by the voices welcoming and approving" their basic course.

The Italian party joined those of Australia, Norway and Switzerland in withholding support of the basic summit document that calls for total unity in the world Communist movement.

"The conference," said the influential newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta (Literary Gazette), "displays unanimity in the assessment of the present world situation and the definitions of militant tasks of Communists (and) individual voices of dissent are drowned among the voices welcoming and approving the basic document."

Notes Trade Blame Over Border Clash

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union and Communist China accused each other Wednesday of provoking a new central Asian border incident involving a small clash between their troops.

The Soviet foreign ministry in a protest note accused the Chinese of invading Soviet territory Tuesday in the Kazakhstan area across from China's far-western Sinkiang province. It said Moscow holds Peking "responsible for the serious consequences of these provocations."

Peking in its protest contended the Russians were trying to "provoke still larger armed conflicts" and said the incident is "developing." It accused Russian troops of firing first.

BLOW TO PARLEY?

The Russians suggested the Chinese were trying to disrupt the world Communist conference—meeting in Moscow without China—and efforts to settle disputed border lines.

The Soviet note did not mention any casualties or say how many troops were involved. The new border flareup was the first since the bloody March battles on the Ussuri River.

Peking claimed Soviet troops backed by tanks crossed into Sinkiang province and killed one Chinese woman shepherd and kidnapped another herdsman.

The area of the small clash lies amid vast semi-desert, sparsely populated lands. Sinkiang, where China's nuclear base is located, spreads over 700,000 square miles and is the largest Chinese province in area. Kazakhstan, with 1,063,200 square miles is the second largest constituent republic area of the Soviet Union.

The Soviet foreign ministry said the clash was in the Tasta River area of the Semipalatinsk region.

New Cong Wine in an Old Bottle

PARIS (AP) — The new, Viet Cong-backed provisional revolutionary government of South Vietnam announced Wednesday that it will take over the seat of the National Liberation Front at the Paris peace talks.

The announcement came on the eve of the 21st full-scale session of the talks.

No complications were expected, since U.S. and South Vietnamese officials made it clear in advance they regarded the switch as nothing more than a change of name.

In Washington, Robert J. McCloskey, state department press officer, said the takeover by the new regime is simply "a case of old wine in a new bottle."

The shift of authority was announced by Tran Bui Kiem, who is leaving his post as chief NLF negotiator to become minister for the presidency in the new regime.

Kiem confirmed earlier reports that Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, his 41-year-old deputy, had been named foreign minister of the provisional government and would head the delegation to the Paris talks.

At a news conference, Kiem made clear that the new government would take over the NLF program and press the same demands at the peace talks.

He said that in the view of his "government" the new development will eventually lead to the formation of a provisional coalition government as urged by the NLF. South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu has firmly rejected a coalition government.

Kiem spelled out the aims of the revolutionary government. Among other things, the plan promised to co-operate "with other political parties in South Vietnam as well as abroad to set up a provisional coalition government. This government will organize a general election to create a national assembly."

Kiem said the revolutionary government is ready to negotiate on the formation of a coalition government "with all persons or political forces in South Vietnam without distinction of political opinion and without consideration of their past records provided only that they are agreed for peace, independence and neutrality in South Vietnam."

He asserted that the new government would continue the NLF demands for the total and unconditional withdrawal of all U.S. and allied troops and the overthrow of the "camouflaged colonial government established by the United States in South Vietnam."

Thai Troops Leaving When South Ready

BANGKOK (Reuters) — Thai combat troops in South Vietnam will be withdrawn as soon as South Vietnamese forces can replace them, Communications Minister Dawee Chullasapaya said Wednesday.

He said the 6,000 troops now in South Vietnam are needed in many parts of Thailand.

Dawee, chief of staff of the Thai armed forces supreme command, said Thailand has asked the United States to make preparations for South Vietnamese troops to take over the fighting in the Ben Cat area near Saigon, where the Thai troops are based.

Flamethrower Used

Sharp Attacks Hit U.S. Bases

SAIGON (UPI) — Charging North Vietnamese hurled explosives and blazed away with a flamethrower early Wednesday to break through the outer defence of a U.S. army camp. They killed 14 Americans and wounded 32 before GI defenders hurled back the attack.

In another action, North Vietnamese soldiers assaulted a U.S. marine camp behind a barrage of mortar fire and grenades but did not break through the Leatherneck lines.

Military spokesmen said the two battles cost the Americans 16 dead and 60 wounded.

BIGGEST TOLL

The heaviest casualties were suffered when about 100 Communist troops broke through the barbed wire perimeter of a 196th light infantry brigade artillery base near Tam Ky, 340 miles north-northeast of Saigon. U.S. spokesmen said at least 27 of the attackers were killed, most of them inside the camp. The artillerymen cranked their guns down to ground level and fired point blank at the advancing North Vietnamese. They also defended with automatic weapons and called in helicopters and AC 47 gunships before driving out the Communists.

"They were everywhere — all over," said Sgt. John Borelli of Lawrence, Mass. "There must have been at least 50 of them inside."

SMALL FORCE

Fewer than 60 Americans were manning the outpost 11 miles west of Tam Ky, according to reports from the scene.

The Leatherneck action occurred about 13 miles to the north near An Hoa when several hundred North Vietnamese attacked for nearly four hours. The marines, aided by artillery and gunships, killed at least 35 of the enemy but took losses of two dead and 28 wounded, spokesmen said.

The attack on the artillery base near Tam Ky was carried out by North Vietnamese sappers, troops trained for hit-and-run raids and who are prepared to launch suicide attacks, spokesmen said.

Teachers Vote For Strike

EDMONTON (CP) — Ninety-five per cent of the 124 teachers in nearby Minburn County voted in favor of strike action to support demands for salary increases of 9.5 per cent and improved allowances.

The vote is the second by the teachers. The county was granted an injunction restraining the teachers from striking, claiming the teachers had not voted on a date specified by the Alberta government.

We prove our cars the hard way to make them worry-free

We've taken our Datsun 1600s over some of the roughest roads and through the toughest rallies to prove a single point: that Datsun 1600s are more dependable than any other cars in their class.

Just for the record, Datsun has always had a fine reputation for reliability and performance. Datsun won the Canadian Rally Championship in 1967. Datsuns won two classes in the Shell 4000 Rally/68. And this year, Datsun 1600 won the South African Gold Fields Rally. It won team class honours in the rugged East Africa Safari Rally, where a field of 87 cars started and only 31 finished. Datsun 1600s came in 3rd, 5th, 7th, 8th, 11th, and 13th. Datsun 1600s have real muscle. They're the most powerful imported cars in their class. Their advanced design overhead cam engines turn out 96 hp. They can go 0-60 in 13 seconds and up to 100 mph. And they can go up to 35 miles per gallon. Mercedes-Benz, BMW and Datsun 1600 have a similar all-independent suspension system for precise handling and perfect control. There's a collapsible steering column, disc brakes, headrests, safety harnesses and padding inside. All standard equipment. You don't have to race or rally a Datsun 1600 to enjoy it. You can take it easy with an all-synchro 4-on-the-floor or 3-speed automatic and stay cool with a "windows-up" fresh air ventilation system. Test drive Datsun 1600 soon. There are more than 160 Datsun dealers coast-to-coast in Canada and over $1,000,000 in parts to back it wherever you go.

Order of Tub Goes South

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Membership in the Ancient and Honorable Order of the Bathtub was bestowed on San Diego city and its year-long 200th anniversary celebration, after being presented with a bathtub, a gift from Mayor Frank Ney, of Nanaimo, "bathtub race capital of the world."

The regulation size fiberglass bathtub was accepted by Charles Cordell, bicentennial president, on behalf of San Diego and the 200th anniversary from Lt. Cdr. R. G. Bissell during ceremonies in San Diego June 5, on board the Canadian navy ship, HMCS Chaudiere.

Accompanying the tub was a scroll: "Whereas 1969 marks the 200th anniversary of San Diego known for its hospitality to visitors from the far north, the mayor of Nanaimo, bathtub capital of the world, hereby bestows on the San Diego 200th anniversary, membership in the Ancient and Honorable Order of the Bathtub."

Nanaimo is nationally-known for its annual 36-mile bathtub race from that city to Vancouver, with tubs entered from all parts of the globe. The tubs are all regulation size and are allowed a maximum of six horsepower, any number of sails and methods of stabilization.

Plans were immediately announced for the staging of San Diego's first bathtub race to be held in late summer, a major 200th anniversary event.

Buyer's Strike Rumored

B.C. Lumber Prices Take Plunge in U.S.

Prices for British Columbia lumber in the United States have dropped by as much as a third from the record levels reached in March and mill closures have been forecast.

Producers say they don't know just what prices U.S. buyers offer and some say there's a "buyer's strike." The U.S. market takes about half of the province's lumber output.

After a hard winter which curtailed B.C. logging operations, prices hit record levels in spring.

Now prices have dropped sharply and rapidly. One lumber expert says the situation could last three or four months, then improve. Others say they can't make any predictions.

Green B.C. fir two-by-fours sold at $134 for 1,000 board feet in March and hit $139 in places. Latest statistical reports show buyers offering $80 to $85 and buying smaller quantities.

These prices apply to lumber from the B.C. interior sent to markets from Chicago to Denver, Colo. Prices also have dropped on B.C. coastal lumber moved by ship to the U.S. Atlantic seaboard.

Waterborne green fir brought $127 for 1,000 board feet in spring and $140 at times. Last quoted price is $108 and some experts predict prices will settle around $85.

Rising prices led the International Woodworkers of America to ask the B.C. forest industry to reopen the current contract to give 28,000 coastal workers an immediate interim pay increase.

The industry refused, saying among other things that lumber prices are unstable. The IWA hasn't withdrawn its request, but meetings will be held shortly among union officials. Gordon L. Draeseke, president of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C., says the current market is so chaotic that some mills will be forced to curtail production.

Shingle mills have been closed for up to three weeks and now are operating at less than capacity. It's considered likely that some lumber mills will close during the summer vacation period.

In Longview, Wash., and Rainier, Ore., lumber company officials said Wednesday night money and high interest rates have hit the housing industry so lumber dealers are reducing inventories.

This has reduced demand, forcing lumber prices down. Some British Columbia experts say that because of tight money, some lumber wholesalers are not buying lumber at all.

Stan Rose, president of Exeter Lumber Sales Co. in Longview warned of a possible "summer of horror" for lumber men. He said he sees no bottom to the lumber price decline yet.

Teen Town Favored

Rock Festival Bid Given Turn-Down

NORTH COWICHAN — An articulate brief supporting a rock festival application was turned down by North Cowichan council Wednesday.

Council refused the application in favor of a Chemainus

Teen Town plan to present a Chemainus Day celebration on the same date, July 1.

The rock festival was proposed by a Vancouver group, and supported before council by university student Barbara Hanson of Maple Bay.

Miss Hanson was accompanied by a small group of teenagers. Mayor Donald Morton said the turning down of the application to hold a pop festival did not mean that another application at some future time would be rejected and council decided to listen to Miss Hanson's brief.

She stated "I just read a small article in the newspaper which reported on the Crofton ratepayers meeting of the previous night (June 4). Like the Chemainus Ratepayers, they are protesting to prevent the granting of the use of Fullers Lake arena for a rock festival. The headline and the first sentence told me everything and the rest only confirmed my impressions."

"I almost predicted the sentence 'How would you like your daughter to get mixed up with a bunch like that?'"

The comment was made by a North Cowichan alderman at that ratepayers meeting. Miss Hanson went on "maybe you should say, sir, would your daughter like to get mixed up with a bunch like that, and if so, why? Does she find it so difficult at home, because of adult criticism and comparison to express her personality, and to be an individual instead of what mom and dad think she should be?"

"She views the world through different eyes than yours. Her eyes shine with idealism, sparkle with a sense of adventure, curiosity and fun and are saddened with compassion for others and often deep with naivete. I wouldn't worry needlessly, sir, about drugs and your daughter's curiosity. I think any one who is aware that taking LSD can result in bearing deformed children will think twice before becoming a statistic. My question is, though, is she aware of the hazards?"

"Whose responsibility is it to see that she knows these things? It isn't enough, in fact it is useless, to say, don't. Without insulting her intelligence tell her what you know about drugs and ask what she knows and thinks herself. Then, sir, allow your daughter to go. Calmly, set a time for her to be home tell her you love her and trust her. If you have done your part she will surely do hers."

"By permitting the festival you are not condoning drug usage either. What you would be doing, though, is leading the community in realizing that the latest in thing are rock festivals and under responsible controls they need not result in damages to community property. In fact, this might be the beginning of a concerted effort by the community to understand and tolerate the young people of this area."

Ald. John Cannon remarked he had never seen a more attentive audience when council was presented with a brief.

Mayor Morton said "it would create a wrong situation if we would show no interest for the Chemainus Teen Town but would show interest to an outside commercial application."

In approving the Chemainus application for use of the Fuller's Lake Arena, council went along with Ald. Gerry Smith's suggestion to donate $100 to the Teen Town.

Ald. Smith noted the Teen Town is carrying the ball of the Dominion Day celebrations for the adults who were not able to organize anything this year. He said "perhaps that will spur adults next year to realize that they have been lax."

Co-op Housing Foreclosure

Dream Now 'a Nightmare'

PORT ALBERNI — "This B.C. Central Credit Union was a dream but it's turned into a nightmare," John Dutton, chairman of Barclay Co-Operative Housing, said Wednesday. Mr. Dutton said that foreclosure on the development by sell with a down payment of between $800 and $1,000, to which would be added the $1,000 new home-owners grant, plus whatever labor the owner wished to contribute.

Mr. Dutton said Allan Jones of the credit union, told him that the condominium-style homes would become rental units. Fourteen families are at present living in units, the first moved in March 15. Ten more families were awaiting sufficient completion of their units.

Mr. Dutton said tenants were told their down payments have "gone into the site."

Mr. Dutton said he is one of those out his down payment without having lived in the unit. He said, "The people who are not yet living in their unit can walk away and just forget their down payment and the work they've put in."

He estimated that most of the owners had put in nearly $500 to $800 in work hours on the project. The original payments called

River Search Continues For Missing Boy's Body

COURTENAY — Dragging operations continued Wednesday for Ken Smiley, 16 of Courtenay, missing and believed drowned.

The young boy was swimming in the Courtenay River, using an inner tube. According to reports from another boy who was also swimming in the river, the Smiley boy's inner tube capsized.

The accident took place near central builder's supply which is close to downtown Courtenay. Divers swam under a barge in an attempt to locate the body. They had no success however and dragging operations were continued. RCMP called twice for small boats and boat hooks and Staff Sgt. R. S. Rogers directed operations from the civic marina.

Since the accident there has been a high tide with a low tide early Wednesday morning.

Searchers, including aircraft, expanded the search area to Comox Bay and Royston. Small craft warnings were posted and hampered search efforts.

Braaten

CRAWBROOK (CP) — Orville Braaten, the man who helped form the 6,000-member Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada Union in 1963, died at the age of 51 Wednesday of an apparent heart attack.

President of the breakaway union since 1967, Mr. Braaten was here on union business, believed to concern a certification bid by the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers at the nearby Skookumchuck Pulp and Paper Mill.

Three bedroom units presently going for $173 monthly, go to $185 Sept. 1, and $200 upon completion; two bedrooms now $155, go to $167, then to $182 upon completion.

Tenants were also told the appliances installed in the units do not belong to them.

The tenants are meeting today to discuss possible action in the situation.

After he was voted out of office, Mr. Braaten took over as business agent of the Canadian union and was elected president in 1967.

In that year he was involved in a provincial royal commission inquiry to investigate electronic eavesdropping after bugging equipment was found in his hotel room during the PPWC's convention.

Inquiry commissioner R. A. Sargent found that Pat O'Neal, organizer for the International union, could not be blamed for attempting to listen to the deliberations of the Canadian union.

The PPWC's business agent, Roy Koop, said Wednesday Mr. Braaten "led the fight to throw off the shackles" of international unionism. First vice-president Gordon Wockham of Nanaimo will take over the post of president.

Mr. Braaten is survived by his wife, Gladys, and four children, who live in north Vancouver.

Maury Wills tries uniform for size after rejoining Los Angeles Dodgers

Wills' Return to Dodgers Spoiled by Phillies' Rookie

Rookie Billy Champion, making only his second major-league start, pitched a five-hit, 3-0 shutout for Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday to spoil Maury Wills' return to Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Dodgers got Wills back earlier in the day in a three-cornered trade involving Los Angeles, Montreal and Chicago Cubs.

Expos sent Wills and outfielder Manny Mota to the Dodgers in exchange for Ron Fairly and Paul Popovich and then swapped Popovich to the Cubs for centre-fielder Adolfo Phillips and relief pitcher Jack La Mabe. La Mabe was sent immediately to Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League.

FORMER CAPTAIN

The 36-year-old Wills is a former Dodger captain and was dealt to Pittsburgh Pirates after a fallout with Los Angeles owner Walter O'Malley in 1966. He was picked up by Montreal in the expansion draft last winter.

Fairly, an 11-year veteran and long-ball hitter, and the slick-fielding Popovich have seen little action for Dodgers this season.

HIT, STOLEN BASE

Wills collected one of the five hits off Champion, an infield single in the first inning, and stole his 16th base of the year but Champion was tough in the clutches in helping the Phillies snap a nine-game losing streak.

He allowed only two runners to reach third base, each with two out, and struck out Bill Russell in the seventh and Willie Crawford in the ninth to end the threats.

Montreal also failed to benefit immediately from the trade as they bowed, 6-5, to San Diego Padres in 10 innings.

Tommy Dean's bases-loaded sacrifice fly drove in Jose Arcia with the winning run.

TENTH FOR NIEKRO

In other National League games, Atlanta Braves' knuckleballer Phil Niekro won his 10th game of the season with a two-hit, 5-1 win over Chicago Cubs; San Francisco Giants ended an 11-game winning streak of New York Mets with a 7-2 win on Gaylord Perry's four-hitter; Pittsburgh Pirates laced Houston, 13-8; and St. Louis Cardinals mauled Cincinnati Reds, 10-5.

Niekro, who has lost four games, retired the first 15 Cubs he faced before Randy Hummel broke up the no-hit bid with a leadoff home run in the sixth inning. He did not walk a batter and struck out eight.

Perry worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the first inning by striking out Ed Kranepool, then went on to his ninth victory against five defeats.

Kranepool spoiled Perry's shutout bid in the seventh inning with a home run.

Roberta Clemente's grand-slam homer climaxed a six-run sixth-inning explosion as the Pirates came from a 6-3 deficit and went on to win.

Vada Pinson homered and singled for three runs and Lou Brock lashed a double and single for three more to give Jim "Mudcat" Grant the St. Louis win on a fine six-inning relief chore.

EXTRA INNINGS

In the American League, four of six games went to extra innings with California Angels clipping Baltimore Orioles, the Eastern Division leaders, 7-5, in 14 innings in the 10th.

Three straight hits, a single by Jay Johnstone, ground rule double by Jim Fregosi and single by pinch-hitter Tom Satiano produced the winning runs just minutes before Baltimore's city curfew would have wiped out the game.

Reggie Jackson's second home run of the game, a lead-off blast in the 13th inning, sparked Oakland Athletics to a 6-4 win over Washington Senators. His 19th homer, off reliever Frank Bertina, was followed by an insurance run driven in by Danny Cater's double.

Pinch-hitter Bobby Cox lashed a two-out double in the 11th inning to give New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over Kansas City Royals. Dave Morehead, who pitched out of a jam in the 10th inning, struck out the first two Yankees in the 11th but then walked Jake Gibbs before Cox doubled off centre-fielder Lou Pinella's glove.

TWO-OUT DOUBLE

At Detroit, Jim Price capped a two-run rally with a two-out double in the 10th inning to vault the Tigers to a 4-3 win over Seattle.

Denny McLain started for the Tigers but was lifted in the ninth and Pat Dobson took the loss.

The heavy-hitting Boston Red Sox uncovered a secret weapon at Minneapolis to clobber the Twins, 13-5.

Rookie Joe Lahoud, batting .083 before the game with only four singles and one run batted in, unloaded three home runs into the right-field bleachers to account for four runs. He belted a two-run homer in the second and solo shots in the fifth and eighth — each one off a different pitcher.

Dick Schofield ripped three doubles and George Scott and Reggie Smith each punched three singles as Boston collected 13 hits off seven Minnesota hurlers.

VICTIM OF ERRORS

Luis Tiant, trying for his fourth straight win after suffering eight straight losses, was the victim of two consecutive errors which helped Chicago White Sox to three unearned runs in the seventh inning and a 4-3 win.

The win was the fourth in a row for the White Sox in as many transplanted home games at Milwaukee.

Rocks' Youth Impresses But Salmonbellies Win

After going ahead, 15-14, they fell two goals before Tom Sommer, on a give-and-go play with brother Denis at 17:33 and Nirmal Dillon, with a pass from brother Ranjit at 18:55 tied the game.

By KEVAN HULL

In terms of contributions by the young, Victoria Shamrocks had a big edge over New Westminster Salmonbellies in Wednesday's Western Lacrosse Association game at Memorial Arena.

But unfortunately, they had nothing in the way of a Paul Parnell, who held the visitors together for a 19-18 overtime victory before 1108 fans at Memorial Arena, leaving Rock coach Tom Druce, wondering just what his club has to do to win a game.

PARNELL SCORES SIX

Parnell, who had scored three goals in the four games he played before missing the last game with the flu, scored six times and drew an assist.

And six of these points, including the league high of five goals in one period, came in the second period when Salmonbellies fought back to an 11-9 lead after it looked like the recently-bolstered Shamrocks were about to romp to their first victory in seven games this season.

YOUNG LEGS HUM

With Vern and Tom Black and Lonnie Restall, who have all had at least one season of senior competition, in the line-up, the Shamrocks harnessed in the first period on the young legs of the Sommers, Dillons, Alexanders and Chuck Hardy.

They continually beat the Salmonbellies, who had four juniors taking the place of veterans unable to make the trip, to the ball and emerged with a 5-3 lead at the end of the first period which richly brought rounds of applause from the crowd.

PARNELL UNMARKED

Shamrocks led, 9-6 as late as the 12:21 mark of the second period but then forgot to mark Parnell on the New Westminster power play, which contributed six goals in all to the Salmonbellies' total.

They started a five-goal spurt at 12:35 with a soft shot to the near corner past Doug Thompson, who had been shaken up a few minutes earlier by a hard shot to the stomach from Jim Grey.

He then added three goals on the power play with the 10th goal coming from Dave Torg.

HIT CROSSBAR

And Parnell was unlucky not to make it six goals in one period with a wicked shot off the crossbar a few seconds before the buzzer ended the period.

But with young Denis Sommer leading the way, Shamrocks battled back in a thrilling third period to tie the score at 14-14 midway through the frame penalty to Tom Black.

That forced the overtime, but also marked the end of Shamrocks' luck.

Ed Goss and Jim Mason scored for New Westminster on defensive slip-ups before Denis Sommer collected his third goal and eighth point at 3:48.

And New Westminster goal-keeper Don Wallis, who had been weak through the legs throughout the game, got lucky on several ticketed drives to hold Shamrocks out until Victoria's hopes were crushed with Vern Black's wrap-around penalty at 7:43 of the 10-minute period.

"I thought everybody played well," said Druce. "It was just the breaks that they beat us."

"Anybody who missed the last two home games has certainly missed a night's good entertainment. These guys are bound to start winning some now."

TV Relay Job Starts Soon

GOLD RIVER — Gold River council was told recently that a transmitter for the area's CBC relay station was in Vancouver and site work at Gold River was expected to start in July.

The "turn-up" date, given by B.C. Tel. for availability of the signal to Gold River was Aug. 1, it was stated. The CBC expected to be on the air within a few weeks of that date.

Works Superintendent Larry Benoch advised council that a walkway along the Heber River canyon had been inspected and approximately 50 holes found in the fence lines. In some places the walkway was non-existent. There was also about 1,200 feet left to be developed and he estimated that the total cost of developing the walkway and necessary easements would amount to $10,300. To fill the holes properly, it was estimated that this would cost $3,500 to $4,500, he said.

"In the past the Works department has attempted to fill these holes with large rocks and logs. This method has proven to be inadequate as after a period of time this material tends to work its way through the holes."

Council decided to erect signs at each end of the walkway advising that it was dangerous and advising parents to keep children away because of the danger.

Finance committee chairman Les Cartwright said improvements could not be made because the budget "leaves no money to play with."

Mayor Bruce Christensen said that Council had several meetings in committee where the majority of the time had been spent discussing preparation of a brief to describe problems of instant towns.

"The province believes in instant towns. I believe in them, too, and we believe in them," he said. "There must be some dialogue between the three of us so that they understand the problems we have found."

When the brief is prepared, council representatives will meet with provincial government and Talsis Co. officials in an effort to obtain financial assistance for Gold River.

Council directed the administration to plan a move of the municipal staff from its present location in trailer units to the public safety building and to report back to council how and when the move can be made.

Mayor Christensen said the proposed move was mainly a measure to try to save money and although the quarters are not custom-made they would be better heated in winter and better ventilated in summer.

Council studied a report submitted by Municipal Clerk

Norman Paulson on the proposed acquisition of parks properties. The matter was referred to the recreation commission to make recommendations on which areas to take over first and how much development would be required.

Following the meeting Ald. Cartwright explained they would like to have a fringe of park area completely surrounding the town, from the gas stations at the entrance to town, around Heber River, along Gold River to Peppercorn Park.

He said "We will try to acquire them (the parks properties) gradually as we get enough money to develop them."

Free School

Cleanup Orders Issued

The Saturna Island Free School will be given a long list of items to be remedied by Aug. 1 if it is to hope to stay open.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, said a visit to the school showed "the same rather deplorable" conditions as before.

The health board decided to require the school to put its premises in proper condition by Aug. 1. Under a section of the provincial sanitary regulations, it can require any offending building to be cleaned up, or the occupants told to leave, or the premises closed until they are in proper condition.

Health board chairman, Esquimalt Ald. Roy Elphick, said the board's letter is "the first initial step."

The letter requires that the premises be put in a proper condition by Aug. 1 and mentions specifically a number of points, among them:

- Sewage system, currently inoperative;
- No heating system;
- Overcrowding of rooms, including sleeping areas;
- Kitchen, in need of redecorating and cleaning and floor needs recovering;
- Dining room also needs redecoration, cleaning and floor recovering;
- All bathrooms must be cleaned;
- All broken windows must be replaced.

Saanich Ald. Leslie Passmore asked if the school was a restaurant, or business catering to the public, if the same conditions would apply.

Mr. Elphick said all such institutions come under the same regulations. The school is free in the sense that it is unstructured in classes and curriculum, but it charges an annual fee for about 20 persons who attend as boarders.

CUPE Signs Pact

DUNCAN—An agreement has been reached between the board of school trustees and 30 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 60 of Cowichan School District.

Salary and committee chairman B. C. Anad said increases granted are effective Jan. 1, 1969; July 1, 1969; Jan. 1, 1970 and July 1, 1970, with a final adjustment Dec. 1, 1970 for lower categories.

The final adjustment will bring these categories into line with other districts by the end of 1970, Mr. Anad said.

The raises give the employees an average increase of 15.5 per cent by Dec. 1, 1970, at an average cost to the board of 5.69 per cent for 1969 and 6.4 for 1970.

Warning Given

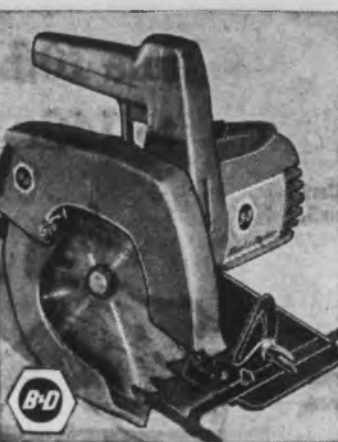

NORTH COWICHAN — North Cowichan Fire Chief Jack Scouler said he thought a cigarette end was the cause of a grass fire Tuesday afternoon.

The department was called to the outbreak at 2:30 p.m. at Lakes Road beside Brackendale Poultry Farm.

"We caught the grass fire in time," said Chief Scouler.

Library Book Budget Given Drastic Slash

The Greater Victoria Library Board drastically slashed its 1969 book budget by four-fifths Tuesday in a special meeting called to deal with its financial problems.
The radical cut was forced by a decision of the five municipalities served by the library to pay their $4 per capita grants based on 1966 instead of 1968 census figures, resulting in $28,000 less for the library.
Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Central Saanich agreed to use the more recent figures on condition all the municipalities involved did the same, but Saanich refused and the arrangement fell through.
Of the $70,000 originally requested for book purchases, only $16,155 was approved — about 23 per cent of the library's total $69,808 budget. This compares with $62,435 last year and $66,007 in 1967.
To offset the tiny approved figure, the board plans to apply $40,000 of its $47,000 provincial grant towards book purchases even though this may jeopardize the size of the grant in future years.

Howdy for Haida
Sealand's talented killer whale now goes by name of Haida and meets young winner of contest which produced name. Stephen Davis, eight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Davis, 1257 Oakmount says hello to Haida with trainer Graeme Ellis. More than 3,600 entries were submitted in contest, and four suggested name Haida after warrior tribe of Queen Charlotte Islands. These entries were placed in hat and Stephen's name was drawn. Prize was 100,000 pennies which Stephen plans to save until old enough to buy a car. — (William A. Boucher)

If the 1968 census figures had been used, all the additional revenue would have been applied towards book purchases.
A small amount of the provincial grant would also have been used and the board chairman said the full $70,000 would probably not have been spent.
"The purpose of the grant is to improve libraries, not to maintain them," warned board member Brian Tobin.
Chairman Ald. Frances Elford said one of the factors deciding the size of the provincial grant was the degree of participation of the municipalities concerned.
"With the cost of books rising each year," she said "we are actually losing ground unless we spend more each year."

GOING AHEAD
Chief Librarian John Lort said the combined funds would still fall about $20,000 short of the amount that was available in 1968.
The board members agreed slashing the book budget was the only measure short of putting people out of work, causing closures or lowering the standard of service available.
The new branch for Esquimalt Shopping Plaza will go ahead as planned. Its operating costs for the last four months of this year were guaranteed by $12,250 set aside for that purpose in the budget.
No present branches or operations were curtailed by the cuts, but the Oak Bay branch library hoped for next year has been indefinitely postponed.

Chairman Elford said the $15,000 that had been accumulated for it from provincial grants had been applied toward this year's budget instead.

STAFF MEMBERS
Two new staff members were hired earlier in the year and there was no provision for any more in 1969 except those in the new Esquimalt branch.

Salaries, including fringe benefits, accounted for $470,060 of the total budget. The library is in the second year of a three-year program of increases which will give its employees wage parity with city hall workers.

Chief Librarian Lort said people would have to wait longer for books and best-sellers would not be on the shelves at the time they were popular.

SPECIFIC TYPES
He said novels of specific types, such as mysteries and science fiction works, would also suffer from the small amount of funds available for books.

In approving the budget, all board members warned that next year's situation would be even more serious.

"If the library is going to just meet normal services and not expand, it will still need a far greater increase than the 25-cent-per capita rise guaranteed each year," said Chairman Elford.

BELOW MAXIMUM
She noted, however, the library had never exceeded its budget.

"We usually manage to stay about $3,000 below the maximum," she said.

Under the Public Libraries Act, the library board, like school boards, has the power to draw up its budget and submit it to the municipalities as an accomplished fact which must be accepted.

NEVER USED IT
The Greater Victoria board has never exercised this privilege.

"We have no intention of ever exercising this power," said Chairman Elford. "We realize the municipalities have other needs for their tax revenues."

The per-capita provincial grant of 18½ cents is the second lowest rate in Canada, followed only by Alberta, which gives 18 cents per person. Rates in the other provinces are: Ontario, 94 cents; Saskatchewan, 78 cents; Prince Edward Island, 54 cents; Nova Scotia, 48 cents; Quebec, 42 cents; New Brunswick, 28 cents; and Newfoundland, 24 cents.

Stanfield Takes Very Dim View

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield objected Wednesday to being left out of the constitutional conference but, he said, "I've been kept out of better places than that."

Stanfield said he did not object to the talks being held in private but felt leaders of the opposition parties should have been allowed in as observers.

Stanfield was not optimistic about the possibilities of progress in the talks because of deterioration of financial relations between the provinces and Ottawa.

Ottawa's Secret Parley Friendly Canada Safe—Bennett

OTTAWA (CP) — Secrecy was still the watchword, but Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers left the opening session of the federal-provincial constitutional conference Wednesday obviously satisfied with their progress in the delicate field of spending powers and tax sharing.

And the premiers who left with him gave a clear indication they were happy with the closed-door meetings although none would offer any details.

"A very friendly conference and Canada is safe," said Premier Bennett of British Columbia.

"I am just delighted," said Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan. "Now we're down to gut issues."

"I am very happy with the discussions to date," said Premier John Robarts of Ontario. But he would go no further. "It is the rules of the game that there should be no comment."

Trudeau and the premiers agreed on the secrecy aspect prior to the conference. It was reported to have been strongly re-emphasized by the prime minister when they gathered around the huge felt-covered table Wednesday.

It was in sharp contrast to the February constitutional conference here when all the discussions were televised live and reporters were allowed to sit in on the meetings.

It was reliably reported

Freeze Blamed

SERVICES DROP COMING?

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's armed forces may be trimmed to a strength of roughly 85,000 during the next three years from the present 98,000, according to informed defence department sources.

The cut would be made necessary by the three-year freeze on military expenditures announced last week by Defence Minister Leo Cadieux.

Defence department planners are trying hard to plot expenditures in such a way that service manpower can be maintained at as high a level as possible.

Efforts of the defence planners appear to involve juggling of personnel and capital costs.

Capping defence expenditures at the fiscal year 1969-70 level of $1,800,000,000, while costs keep going up, is tantamount of decreasing a cut in military strength unless equipment procurement is to go by the way-side.

Some experts say the ratio of capital and equipment costs to maintenance and administration costs is already beyond accepted military standards.

In the present fiscal year administrative costs are estimated at $1,316,674,000 compared to $1,239,154,000 last fiscal year—a 6-per cent increase.

Acquisition of machinery and equipment is estimated to cost $210,832,000, the lowest amount for several years. Last year the same budget item was $231,833,000.

Reason given for the dip is that the forces have just completed a five-year re-equipment program.

However, whole new programs already are on the horizon as the government talks about helicopter support for the projected mobile force in Europe, extended aerial and naval surveillance of Canada's fast-flying coastlines, and possible participation in a sophisticated new system of continental air defence.

Of the total defence budget in each of the next years, roughly $250,000,000 has been earmarked for annual equipment purchases.

Allard

General Didn't Say It

General Jean Allard, chief of the Canadian general staff has categorically denied statements attributed to him to the effect that current plans for the reduction of the armed forces are ill-timed and unwise.

The story of the general's criticism, printed in the Toronto Telegram on Tuesday, brought a response from the office of Defence Minister Leo Cadieux Wednesday, that "it is a piece of nonsense."

Author of the Telegram's article is Douglas Stuebing, who based it on an interview he had with Allard while the chief of staff was visiting the Canadian United Nations contingent on Cyprus on May 29.

According to Richard Jackson, of The Daily Colonist's

Calgary's June Snow Brings Record Low

CALGARY (CP) — A record low of 31 degrees was set here Wednesday afternoon as snow fell across the city for about three hours.

Labor Giant Dead at 89

Labor giant and president of United Mineworkers for 40 years, John L. Lewis, 89, died Wednesday night in Washington. He had headed union's welfare fund since retirement in 1960. See Page 33.

Stocks Skidding

Bank Jump 'Deplorable'

TORONTO (CP) — "Deplorable but obviously necessary" was how R. N. Steiner, Toronto Stock Exchange chairman, Wednesday described the increase in bank lending rates which gave the exchange the largest single-day drop in its history.

All the major Canadian chartered banks increased their prime lending rates to an unprecedented 8 per cent Wednesday, in the wake of a rise in the Bank of Canada's rate to them — announced Tuesday — of 7½ per cent.

The Toronto-Dominion Bank, which led the upward spiral with an announcement last week that it would raise its rate to 7½ per cent — ¼ per cent above the other banks' rates — jumped again to 8½ per cent.

Chicken Best Bet In July Shopping

OTTAWA (CP) — Housewives can expect no reduction in the present high beef prices during July, the agriculture department reported Wednesday in its monthly food outlook.

Pork prices, too, may increase and turkey prices will probably go up slightly. Broiler chickens will be plentiful at relatively low prices.

Poor Reward

Cheques Keep Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Put a little fun in your life. Try being poor.

That could be a slogan for a 35-year-old welfare recipient who says if the government ever starts a war on poverty, he will fight "on the other side."

Norman Browne, a high school graduate who lives on a maximum of $25 a week and says poverty is a ball, outlined his philosophy in a story he wrote in The Star Wednesday.

"Only the very rich and the very poor have complete freedom," he says.

"The very rich collect dividend cheques from stocks and bonds. The very poor collect cheques from welfare or unemployment insurance. It's easier to be poor and I think a lot more fun."

"I live on a maximum of 25 a week regardless of my income. This insures that I stay poor, and thus safeguards my freedom and independence."

He says he pays $15 a week for a room and kitchen, $2 for tobacco and extras and $8 for food.

Browne takes occasional jobs. Browne says his earned income for 1967 was about $500, and last year it rose $1,400. But he describes the idea of a guaranteed annual income as unrealistic and unworkable.

No Major Leaders Invited

Investiture of Charles Essentially Domestic

LONDON (CP) — Canada will be officially represented at the investiture of Prince Charles on July 1 by her high commissioner in London, Charles Ritchie, and no invitations have gone off to Commonwealth countries on a higher level.

College of Arms officials explain that this is because the investiture of the Prince of Wales is regarded as essentially a domestic, Welsh affair — not an international, imperial event like a coronation, which would be attended by heads of state.

Even in 1911, when the investiture of Prince Edward — now the Duke of Windsor — was a more lavish event befitting an era of imperial self-confidence, the assembly of guests was largely Welsh.

Sir Anthony Wagner, Garter King of Arms and chief aide to the Earl Marshal, said recently no invitations have gone out to heads of state generally. President Tubman of Liberia has been invited, he said, because he will be in Britain at the time of the investiture.

"I don't like the looks of this, Mr. President"

Aerosol Containers Carry Quick Death

TORONTO (CP) — Persons who sniff aerosol spray could be dead in 60 seconds, a California toxicologist warned Wednesday at the closing session of the fifth international meeting of forensic sciences.

J. Wallace Graham of Los Angeles County said the spray contains freon gas that can kill in a minute. Freon is an easily liquefiable gas used extensively as a refrigerant.

He said a 50-per-cent content of the gas in the air can kill.

Graham said 12 youths in Los Angeles County have died in the last two years from sniffing freon.

Robbed Abroad

CARACUS (UPI) — Four self-styled Robin Hoods pulled off a robbery Wednesday and got away with $550,000 from a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada at Puerto La Cruz. It was the biggest bank robbery in Venezuelan history.

U.S. Navy Likes It Here

Orange Visitor Arrives

By DON GAIN

An experimental U.S. Navy submarine only 50 feet long is due to arrive at the Esquimalt graving dock this morning for a joint two-month research program with Defence Research Establishment Pacific.

The junior-size submarine is coming from Nanaimo on a railway flatcar after a week-long journey from Baltimore, Md. It is based at Esquimalt. The submarine, named USS

X-1, weighs in at 30 tons and is only eight feet in the beam. Painted a brilliant orange, it won't be missed by early-rising Victorians who happen to be about as it is hauled to its berth in Esquimalt.

Manoeuvres will be carried out in Bute Inlet and Georgia Strait in company with the Canadian Naval Auxiliary Vessel Endeavour, which can be classed as a floating laboratory, and the submarine HMCS Rainbow, recently purchased from the U.S. Navy.

Chief scientist of the joint program is Dr. H. L. Grant, who heads one of two marine physics departments at DREP in HMC Dockyard. Dr. Grant said Wednesday the program is concerned with "certain problems in the tracking of submerged submarines."

Location of the experimental sites was determined by their depth and sheltered nature.

Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C., will be here for the research program, Dr. Grant said.

"We will be able to simulate the operation of a full-size submarine under deep-sea conditions," he explained, "but we can be more accurate in our navigation because we

Lockup Death

Alcohol, Pills Blamed

Respiratory failure brought on by the combined effect of alcohol and barbiturates caused the death of Anthony Ranger in a cell in the Victoria jail May 30, a coroner's inquest was told Wednesday night.

St. Joseph's Hospital pathologist Dr. Garth Walker, who testified as to cause of death, said a spinal fracture disclosed in his autopsy was not, in his opinion, a factor in Ranger's death.

Ranger, 51, of Duncan, had been put in jail the night of May 29 charged with causing a disturbance while being drunk.

During close to three hours of testimony the jury was told: Ranger had been in a fight in the Churchill Hotel beer parlor the night before his death and was knocked out for a while.

Because he was wearing a spinal collar, the police who arrested him took him to Royal Jubilee Hospital for a checkup to see if he was fit to be lodged in city cells.

He was admitted to the lockup and checked every hour starting at midnight until 5 a.m., when another prisoner was brought in. At that time it was noticed Ranger had stopped breathing.

He had been in veterans' hospitals a number of times since 1965 for treatment of overdoses of alcohol and barbiturates.

When his body was taken to hospital for an autopsy, two vials containing 168 phenobarbital tablets and the second containing 15 vial tablets, were found in his clothes.

Coroner Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre adjourned the case until June 19.

They'll Skip Honeymoon Trip

Widow Mrs. Annie Graves, 83, and widower Dave Thompson, 84, are "going to go right home and set up housekeeping" at 1067 Banks after their wedding June 21 in Metropolitan United Church. After bridal shower festivities Wednesday, Mr. Thompson happily complained like most bridegrooms, "I wish it was over." Shower was given by Mrs. Sayde Ritchie, who will be matron of honor. Guests included Mr. Thompson's daughter, Mrs. Ray Passmore; daughter-in-law, Mrs. Dave Thompson Jr., and best man, Charles Laferty. "We've known each other 50 years," Mr. Thompson said. (William A. Boucher)

Berry Pickers' Plight Has Labor Buffaloed

By DON COLLINS

Behind the scenes these days, some of Victoria's labor leaders are searching for a way to offer concrete assistance to the berry pickers of Saanich Peninsula.

They were said Wednesday to be giving serious thought to a specific course of action. But there has been no confirmation.

Meanwhile, they have said again this year — as they did last year — that they consider the working conditions and payrate for the berry pickers to be "deplorable."

Because of circumstances, however, labor has not been able to take a more militant stand, Victoria Labor Council president Jack Groves said Wednesday.

Some critics have accused labor of doing more for the striking grape pickers of California by going all out to support a boycott of the grapes.

Mr. Groves said a boycott of Saanich Peninsula berries is out of the question because such action would hurt some of the small farmers with whom labor has no argument.

Also out of the question, for the time being at least, is any thought of bringing the berry pickers into a union.

"It is practically impossible to organize these people because they are an ever-changing group," Mr. Groves said.

Many are classed as children and as such are too young. And for many others berry-picking is only a short-term job.

In the past, labor in B.C. has tried to tackle the situation through a barrage of briefs to the provincial government.

"But we have got nowhere," Mr. Groves said.

Legislation, though, isn't the answer alone, he said.

"You've also got to improve the position of the smaller farmer."

Most of labor's complaints

have been aimed at the bigger growers, he said.

Mr. Groves said labor is concerned with payment rates that provide four and five cents per pound of berries picked, lack of washroom facilities and the use of child labor.

Steel Cargo for Pipeline

By PAT MURPHY

The possibility of a water crisis this summer was foreseen Wednesday at a special meeting of the board of the Greater Victoria Water District.

The likelihood of an emergency hinges on the arrival of 275 tons of steel plate from Australia and the ability of Victoria Machinery Depot to turn the metal into 3,400 feet of 48-inch pipe.

Chief Commissioner Ronald

Upward told members of the board Wednesday that the early onslaught of hot weather and the possibility that a hot, dry summer was in the offing made him reluctant to gamble that the steel would arrive, the pipe be made or the weather change.

Accordingly, he urged that the board consider the purchase and installation of a wood stave pipe from the main water supply, Sooke Lake, to the five-mile tunnel which is designed to triple Victoria's water delivery.

The tunnel, which is still in the process of being cement-lined, would be flushed out and put into use if the weather remained hot and dry.

Manager of Victoria Machinery Depot J. W. Nelson was present at the meeting.

He said that his company would have been able to fulfill its contract with the water district and deliver the pipe by July 8 if delivery of the steel was made as arranged.

However, Mr. Nelson said, labor troubles intervened in Australia and the ship carrying the steel didn't get away on time.

AIM AT SPEED

Arrangements had been made to offload the steel to a barge and bring it directly to Victoria. Every effort would be made, the manager said, to facilitate the job once the steel arrived.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen were in agreement on the question of VMD responsibility in the matter and felt that any extra cost to the water district should be borne by VMD or its bonding company.

"I just can't see us taking any other attitude with our responsibility to the people of the district," Mayor Stephen said.

NAME OF GAME

Mayor Curtis agreed. "I agree that the name of the game is get the pipe in operation and avert an emergency but, on the other hand, often we're dealing with a firm and delivery is promised—that's it," Mayor Curtis said.

Mr. Upward pointed out several times during the meeting that a period of rainfall would solve the whole problem and make extraordinary measures unnecessary.

On that basis the board rejected the stave pipe and plan and placed the onus on VMD to make good any loss which would be suffered by the water district because of failure to deliver the 48-inch pipe on time.

'UNACCEPTABLE'

Chairman of the board Mayor Stephen said that there was a storage supply of about two billion gallons in the Goldstream watershed.

"However, I am informed that up to this point we have used about 400 million gallons of that and if the present usage rate continues we shall be down to practically zero in August."

"We can justify pressure difficulties to the people," the mayor added, "but it would be quite unacceptable to tell them that we cannot deliver water."

Request Came After Budget Set

Saanich Refuses Library Blame

Saanich council's representative on the Greater Victoria Library board said Wednesday his municipality could not be blamed for drastic cuts made in the library's book budget.

Ald. Alan Newberry was discussing the board's reduction of the book budget for this year by four fifths.

"The use of 1966 census figure is written into the library agreement," he said, "which has been signed by all the participating municipalities. Therefore, it's not as if Saanich were inflicting this policy upon the library board. It's an integral part of the agreement."

The board had asked that 1968 census figures be used and four municipalities agreed but Saanich did not.

"We must remember," Ald. Newberry continued, "that Saanich has grown so much in relation to the other municipalities that basically this was asking Saanich to pick up a greater share than the others, an extra $16,000."

"This request came after Saanich had set its budget and its mill rate."

BUDGET INCREASE

Acting Mayor Leslie Passmore pointed out that Saanich, although not giving as much to the library as the board had sought, increased its library budget by about $35,000 this year.

"As far as I can see, the library is in the position that many of our departments are in," he said. "They'd like more money but, with the increased taxation which is going to come about, we feel that the library has to curtail the amount it will get, in the same way as some of our departments. It's just as simple as that."

OTHER CUTS

"It's just a case of trying to keep the mill rate down to as low a level as possible without unduly restricting services."

Ald. William Noel said Saanich had to turn down a fire department request for additional public works programs: tional men, cut the road program, drainage "and many added.

Rocks Delay Trip to Sooke

Fishing trawler Odin ran onto rocks off Oak Bay golf links Wednesday evening, staying about two hours until rising tide and another trawler helped her off. Scene was visited by several curious pleasure craft. Trial Island lightkeeper Jack Horn said Odin then headed toward Sooke under her own power, apparently undamaged. — (John R. McVie)
